No Bolshevism Needed A Battleship, Hardly Remembered, Mildly The World Loves Titles

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., FEB. 12—In one column you read about a "mob" of 1200 idle men, fighting police in Cleveland, 20 in the mob injured, officers hurt.

In another column you find comfort, perhaps, in news from Washington that our national banks have resources of over 29 billions of dollars.

Seven thousand four hundred and eight institutions have on deposit more than 22 billions.

A country so rich ought not to have so many men willing to work and idle.

You are told that the mob of rioting unemployed in Cleveland had been influenced by "Bolshevik propaganda."

It is very easy to say "Bolshevism," but when a man is out of work, worried and perhaps hungry, he needs no help from Lenin to make him dangerously dissatisfied.

Men adrift on a raft in mid-ocean that had never heard of Lenin or Bolshevism have killed and eaten each other.

The British possess the greatest fighting ship in the world, the Rodney, built and paid for.

Innocent American delegates suggested that the British should scrap that ship, in the interest of lovely world peace. At that British statesmen smile politely and say they really can't quite do it.

This guileless nation, after the Washington conference, destroyed and threw on the junk pile splendid new battleships, including some not completed.

And the British destroyed some pretty blueprints.

They probably would oblige us by preparing and destroying some more blueprints. But when it comes to destroying a finished battleship costing millions of pounds—that is something else.

Some mild editorials were printed, here and there the Gettysburg speech was read.

But the dead are VERY dead. One hundred and twenty million Americans appreciate our three greatest men, Washington, Franklin and Lincoln. But they appreciate them quietly, and for a majority of us they are not very real.

The world still loves titles. In a Los Angeles lawsuit about money collected for a newly invented religious "cult," you meet a mild-looking gentleman, called "The Four Winds of the Whirlwinds." He wrote down with his typewriter 50,000 pages dictated by angels to the priestesses of the "Great Eleven Cult."

"Concords of stars led the priestesses to various locations, and there the angels did their dictating."

Men and women gave tens of thousands of dollars in return for nonsense of this kind, which proves that the human race is largely foolish.

Republican statesmen, their names not mentioned, are said to be agitated because a Democrat has been elected to Congress from Calvin Coolidge's district in Massachusetts.

This is considered a reflection on Republican party government, and the "statesmen," to employ the popular "pseudonym," wonder what in the world could make any voter dissatisfied.

Perhaps some Americans in Massachusetts think it is about time for the government to concentrate something more constructive than whiskey.

In spite of Uncle Sam's ardent and foolish appeal, through his London delegates, for the abolition of submarines, the submarine, fortunately for this country and thanks to France and Japan, will remain.

The British, dependent for their food supply on surface craft, to which submarines are fatal, naturally want the submarines abolished.

This nation would like to oblige the British and would cooperate with them undoubtedly in any effort to thwart starvation tactics.

But we need submarines in the present state of international barbarism, to make our harbors, coasts, island possessions and the Panama Canal safe.

And the safety of this country, NOT OF GREAT BRITAIN, should be the first consideration of those on the American Government's pay roll.

The Transcontinental Air Line, established by Gen. Atterbury's Pennsylvania Railroad and Mr. Storey's Sante Fe, contemplates the use of bigger air planes to carry 35 passengers each. W. B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Co., is here planning for the bigger planes that Ford would make. They probably would be built at Long Beach, Calif., on the Pacific, close to Los Angeles.

WOMEN SEEK U.S. VOTE ON DRY LAW

Mrs. Norton, Member of Congress; Mrs. Sabin, Others Argue for Referendum

Washington, Feb. 13—A group of calm but determined women today raised their voices on Capitol Hill in protest against prohibition and William Cabel Bruce of Maryland, a former senator and caustic critic of the dry law, spoke for an immediate change.

It was the second day of hearing by the House judiciary committee on resolutions.

Proposing either repeal or a referendum on the 18th Amendment, the women argued that the time had come when the electorate should pass by ballot upon the dry law.

And speaking for women's anti-prohibition organizations claiming more than 100,000 members backed the proposal of Mrs. Mary T. Norton, Democratic Congresswoman from New Jersey, for a national referendum.

MRS. NORTON ON STAND

"Would you have other provisions of the Constitution submitted to a vote of the people?" Representative Michener (R.) of Michigan asked Mrs. Norton at one point.

"No, but prohibition affects the lives of the people more closely than any other amendment," she replied. "Only 5 per cent of the people voted on prohibition."

"But don't you think that members of Congress and members of the Legislatures voted the sentiments of the people?" asked Representative Sumners (Dem.) of Texas.

"Sometimes from the way members of the House vote on amendments I wish they had the courage to vote their convictions," she retorted. "How do they know the sentiments of the people?"

"If they don't guess pretty well they won't stay in office," replied Sumners.

Mrs. Norton is author of one of the resolutions to repeal the 18th amendment and explained that it would amend the Constitution to permit a referendum on the amendment.

Mrs. Norton stood bareheaded before the committee, she wore nose glasses with a broad ribbon. Her black purse rested on a table before her. It matched her tailored black crepe de chine dress. She wore black suede shoes and sheer chiffon hose.

Mrs. Norton said a referendum

U.S. Envoy Moore Is Very Ill

Los Angeles, Feb. 13—Alexander P. Moore, United States ambassador to Poland, is seriously ill at the Pettenger sanitarium in Monrovia, where he has been a patient for more than a week suffering from tuberculosis of the throat.

"It may be days or a month or so before we know just how serious Mr. Moore's contition is," said Dr. Joe E. Pettenger, "but he has been having considerable difficulty."

Failing in health for several weeks, Moore had delayed taking up his duties as ambassador to Poland to come West.

Moore, who is 63 years old, was born in Pittsburgh, and prior to entering the diplomatic service was publisher of the Pittsburgh Leader. He married Lillian Russell in 1912.

As ambassador to Spain and Peru, Mr. Moore won recognition as a diplomat.

Boston Steamer and Freighter in Crash

Enshrouded in fog, the Boston steamer, F. J. Luckenbach and the Norwegian freighter Frednes collided today off Marcus Hook, Pa. The Frednes was slightly damaged about the stern. Damage to the Boston vessel was not reported. Both steamers were bound for Philadelphia.

The F. J. Luckenbach, a freighter, owned by the Luckenbach Steamship Company, sailed from Commonwealth Pier, South Boston, for Philadelphia and New York two days ago. The Norwegian ship cleared from Pastelillo, Cuba, on January 31.

Two Children, Several Men May Die; Parents Excited as 1800 Face Peril

New York, Feb. 13—A terrific explosion blew out the windows in the Isaac Newton public school, No. 83, Brooklyn, and injured 30 children, two seriously, today.

The blast was caused by a still exploding in a garage across the street from the school, according to Fire Marshal Thomas B. Brophy, in charge of the investigation.

Brophy said firemen had found portions of a ruined still in the wreckage. He also declared that two rooms of the garage had been filled with illuminating gas which probably caused the explosion.

Several men were carried from the garage badly injured immediately after the explosion.

PARENTS PANIC STRICKEN

The blast, coming without warning, interrupted the school work of 1800 children between the ages of five and fifteen years.

Within a few seconds after the noise of the explosion had resounded through the district, thousands of persons, hundreds of them parents, blocked the corner of Dean and Schenectady sts., site of the school.

Frantic mothers tried to break through the cordon of police to rescue their little ones. Reserves, however, kept all spectators in line

FORD PLANS TO SPEND FORTUNE ON SCHOOLS

Auto Magnate Ready to Use 100 Million in Educating Youth of Country

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 13—Henry Ford plans to dedicate the rest of his life to education.

He intends to build a number of schools in various parts of the country—how many he does not yet know—but some of them will be very large institutions. He said today he "would not be surprised" if he invested one hundred million dollars in the project.

"I want to do all in my power to help young men of America to fit themselves into the world," said Mr. Ford. "Society owes it to the young people to educate them for useful citizenship and, for my part, I am going to devote the rest of my active days in the interest of trade schools and teaching.

"I intend to invest my money in my own way. I have a definite plan. Consequently I do not wish to be bothered by suggestions from persons who never made or saved a dollar, telling me how to spend a million.

"The schools will be strategically located throughout the country. I am not yet prepared to say where they will be situated, but our school, the Edison Institute of Technology at Dearborn, Mich., will be the principal school, the nucleus of the other educational institutions.

AS CURE FOR CRIME

"Every boy should learn a trade. He should have something to fall back on, something to keep his hand active and keep him out of trouble. I believe there should be a tehnical schoool in very industrial institution.

"When students come out of school, at 18 or so, people should want them. They should be in demand and not find themselves

Bay State Democrats Open Drive on Hughes

While the nation awaited the Senate battle over his confirmation, Massachusetts today flooded Washington with a wave of protest against the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice.

The state Democratic committee wired Senator David I. Walsh that his vote should be cast against confirmation, that "opposition is spreading like wildfire."

Labor organizations and members of the General Court added their voices to the rising protest against President Hoover's appointee to the post vacated by former President Taft.

The Democratic State Committee made known its serious opposition in the following telegram sent to Senator Walsh by Chairman Frank J. Donahue:

"Scores of your Democratic and independent supporters have got in touch with me today and asked me to urge you not to vote for the confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States Supreme Court.

"Yesterday you expressed the hope that the views of Mr. Hughes might change if he became chief justice. Views of Justices Butler, Sutherland and Van Devanter did not change after they became Supreme Court judges. Six reactionaries on the Supreme Court bench are enough.

"Imagine the protests that would go up from all parts of the country if the President appointed a lawyer with socialistic views to the bench. Don't forget the fight against Brandeis by the same forces that want Hughes.

"Opposition to Hughes is spread-

Senator Norris (R.) Nebraska, who opened the attack on Hughes on Monday, said today, "He will be confirmed," but he smiled broadly when asked by how many votes.

OUTCOME IN DOUBT

Senator Glass was of the opinion that the result was in doubt.

All senators in the doubtful class were the center of attention on the floor and in the cloak rooms as leaders anxiously sought to determine battle lines today.

It was conceded, also, that a vote might not be reached today. This was based on the presumption that those Democratic senators who have decided to vote against Hughes wished to make speeches.

Leaders of all factions were obviously surprised by the turn of events in the Senate. On Monday, when the judiciary committee reported the nomination favorably by a vote of 10 to 2, no fight was expected.

Democrats of the judiciary committee, led by Senator Walsh of Montana, the acting Democratic leader, all voted for a favorable report.

Senators Norris and Borah of Idaho, leaders of the Western Republican Independents, opened the attack against Hughes on the ground that his views of economics were prejudiced in favor of "big business" and "exalted property rights above the rights of the people."

GLASS JOINS ATTACK

Senator Glass joined in the attack and the discussion has been under way since.

After asserting the Senate would not set a precedent by rejecting the nomination and had "a right and reason to consider the environment, training and probably sympathies" of candidates for the Supreme Court, Senator Nye read lengthy extracts from the history of Hughes' record up to 1912. It listed several power corporations as among the clients of Hughes' law firm and said that the nominee started out as a young lawyer in the "lucrative field" of corporation litigation.

The history from which Nye read gave considerable space to a New

Relief Near for Girl Sobbing 91 Hours

Attleboro, Feb. 13—Reaching her 91st hour of sobbing at noon today, Miss Violet Michael, 19, declared, despite her suffering, that she will recover shortly.

Her attending physician, Dr. Edward R. White, was equally optimistic, and said he believed the sobs with which she has been racked since last Sunday night would cease within 24 hours.

The girl slept 5½ hours during the night, the longest sleep she has had since the attack began. She lapsed into slumber and did not wake again until 5:30 today.

An occasional diaphragmatic spasm disturbed her slumber, but did not cause her to wake. After her sleep she began sobbing again, this spell lasting for five minutes. Then the sobs stopped, only to soon begin again.

Acording to Dr. White, Miss Michael has reached and passed the "climax" of her strange affliction and the intervals between her sobbing spells are becoming longer and longer. Also she is taking more nourishment.

A spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm, and not any secret sorrow, is the cause of her condition, according to Antonio Bosh, her fiance, who says they are to be married in June.

NOAH BEERY IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 13 (AP)—Noah Beery, motion picture bad man, today in real life was waging a desperate battle against the death he has so ably portrayed in numerous villainous roles on the screen.

At the Hollywood Hospital, where the film "heavy" yesterday underwent an operation for appendicitis, his condition was described as dangerous.

Operating physicians said a gangrenous condition of the appendix was found and that it was yet too early to tell whether the infection had spread. Beery's physicians said he was able to talk a little when he came out from the influence of ether and that his condition was as good as could be expected.

France for Huge Navy, Japan Favors Slash

London, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Japanese delegation, in a statement given out this afternoon, declared that Japan was ready to accept a holiday in battleship construction until 1936, to reduce the tonnage of battleships to 25,000 tons and to reduce the maximum caliber of guns to 14 inches.

The French delegation, in a statement late today, announced its willingness to accept a naval program running from 1930 until 1936, establishing a fleet by December 31, 1936, aggregating 721,479 English tons.

This fleet would be divided as follows: Capital ships, coming under the Washington substitution rules, 156,466 tons; capital ships unt under the Washington substitution rules, 52,791; cruisers of 10,000 tons, 100,000 tons; all cruisers mounting guns with a caliber over eight inches, 24,859 tons; light ships (cruisers mounting guns with a caliber of eight inches or under), destroyers, torpedo boats, etc., 253,597 tons; aircraft carriers, 32,146 tons, and submarines 99,629 tons.

Under this program France would build 240,000 tons between 1930 and 1936.

Of this total 43,200 tons would represent a complementary building of 196,800 tons of replacement ships covering French losses during the war.

The French understand that under this plan the displacement of capital ships would run between 20,000 and 25,000 tons.

England also claimed some of the spotlight with a cruiser reduction proposal.

Great Britain bases her hope for world peace on the Briand-Kellogg pact, and "looks forward to a period in which armed conflicts need not be expected" and on these grounds can limit her cruiser fleet to 50 instead of 70, Premier Mac-

Henderson's announcement followed a declaration by the Archbishop of Canterbury that he was considering raising the question of the Soviets' Anti-Religious campaign in Parliament, should an investigation of conditions in Russia reveal no improvement.

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Testimony that Charles Evans Hughes, whose confirmation as chief justice of the United States is before the Senate, drew up the proposed contract whereby Muscle Shoals would be turned over to the American Cyanamid Co., was presented today to the Senate lobby committee.

Lawyer Raps Edison Co. on Coal Contract

Refusal of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston to disclose the price it pays for coal under contract was characterized as "an attempt to protect a pet contractor," by Attorney Wycliffe C. Attorney F. Manley Ives, for the company, denied that any protection was contemplated and said he was willing to give the figures to the commission privately.

FORD WILL AID SCHOOLS

shifting aimlessly without a definite purpose in life.

"The reason we have so much crime and racketeering is because schools do not teach our young men how to fit into the world. Racketeering is nothing but a revolt against the present improper and ineffectual system of teaching.

"If taught properly, every boy upon leaving school could go to an employer and say he was specifically fitted to perform a given task. Now they say 'I went through high school' or 'I went through college.' That does not mean anything.

"But if they said they are a machinist, a chemist or a cabinetmaker, that does mean something.

"I do not know how many schools we shall build, but some of them will be large institutions. All these schools will be self-supporting. Academic subjects will be taught in the lower grades, but as soon as the students are ready for it they will be given vocational training. All the arts will be taught.

"When a student is graduated he not only will have a good basic education but a trade that will enable him to immediately put his mind and his energy to practical application. The students will be taught to buy and sell, to be traders as well as mechanics."

Mr. Ford has no interest in the accumulation of money solely for the purpose of acquiring money, he asserted.

"Money in itself is nothing," he said. "It is merely a medium of exchange, an understanding between each and every one. Its real value lies in what it enables you to do for others.

"All classes have more money than they did formerly. Things are different in every way. More men have control of money who know how to use it than ever before.

"I don't say they are richer. I say they have more money. To be richer you must use money in the right way.

"I know in my own case I have no right to squander money and that I must use it for the good of the general public. I can think of no better way of using my money than in the cause of teaching.

"From the day I made my first car until today I have had to teach and I intend to go on teaching until the end of my days. I see no better way to be of service to humanity."

Swanky Terrier Now Champion of Dogdom

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Pendley Calling of Blarney, a swanky little lady whose tribe is as much a part of the Manhattan scene as Grover Whalen's top hat, trotted out of Madison Square Garden as grand champion of the biggest dog show in America.

Before a gallery of nearly 10,000 chuckling spectators she was judged the best dog in the 54th annual show of the Westminster Kennel Club, and that means just about the best dog this side of London. There were nearly 3000 dogs in the show, from all parts of the country.

Pendley Calling of Blarney—possibly "Pen" for short, although "Blarney" fits better—is a wire-haired fox terrier, with a hammer-shaped head, mutton chop whiskers, tan ears, curly white coat with a black spot here and there, and the swaggingest stub of a tail that ever beguiled a judge.

"Pen" belongs to John B. Bates of Morristown, N. J. She won prizes in Europe before carrying off everything in the terrier class and finally the grand championship in this show.

No one could look at "Pen" without grinning, and the way she would coyly cock her head and look up at the judge, W. L. McCandlish, a tall and solemn Englishman with a monocle, was irresistibly funny.

Japs for Navy Holiday and Cut in Armament

Donald told the House of Commons today.

The proposed reduction of the number of cruisers to 50 is, of course, dependent upon agreement of the naval conference and upon adequate limitation of the projected building program being made by other powers and will be for the period covered by such agreement," MacDonald said.

NO MENTION OF U. S.

The Japanese statement generally agreed with the previous British and American announcements, but, to the surprise of the other delegations, failed to make any mention of their demands on the United States for a 70 per cent heavy cruiser ratio.

The paragraph in the Japanese statement touching directly on the cruiser problem said:

"Japan attaches special importance to eight-inch gun cruisers and desire to maintain minimum strength sufficient for national defense, taking into consideration the strengths held by other powers."

Japan is convinced, the statement said, that because of the geographical location of her country the submarine is necessary as a means of defense. At the same time Japan will co-operate with the other powers in strictly regulating the employment of submarines against merchant marine.

WOULD LIMIT SUBS

Japan proposed to limit its submarine tonnage to its present force. The dimensions of submarines should be limited and the age limit should be fixed at 13 years.

Another suggestion was that the limitations of the Washington treaty with regard to airplane carriers should be extended to vessels of this class of less than 10,000 tons.

The memorandum further suggested that the age limit of airplane carriers of more than 10,000 tons should be prolonged to 26 years, but should be fixed at 20 years for other types.

With regard to vessels of special classes, Japan said it felt that she must have a force proportional to that of other powers but that she was willing to reduce it proportionally as the forces of other powers were reduced.

ALL EYES ON FRANCE

Japan's statement was eagerly awaited in view of the British and American announcements of naval aims, said that Japan also was ready to agree to the prolongation of the life of battleships from 20 years to 26 years.

Japan attaches special importance to cruisers armed with 8-inch guns and wishes to maintain "the minimum force sufficient for the needs of national defense, taking into consideration the forces possessed by other powers."

The maximum tonnage of 6-inch gun cruisers should be from 7000 to 7500 tons and that of flotilla leaders and destroyers should be equally limited, the statement said.

The age limit of cruisers was suggested at 20 years and that of destroyers at 16 years.

Early today he was busy preparing to place before the delegations this evening the vital figures which are of the utmost importance, since they are interlocked with the thus far unsolved Franco-Italian naval parity controversies.

One of the premier's first moves was to call on Secretary of State Stimson at the American headquarters. It was understood there was a consultation regarding France's proposed figures. Later Secretary Stimson saw Robert L. Craigie of the British foreign office and this afternoon Premier Tardieu and Prime Minister MacDonald were to meet.

There was frankly a certain amount of concern over what the French figures will bring forth. It seemed inevitable that there would be conflict between Premier Tardieu and Italy's foreign minister, Dino Grandi, who speaks for Premier Mussolini. Tardieu and Grandi must settle Italy's demands for absolute naval parity with France, a demand which France thus far has adamantly refused to concede.

GEN. EDWARDS MAY RUN FOR SENATE

"Daddy" of Y. D. Is Endorsed by Liberal Civic League as All-Party Candidate

Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, former YD commander, may be a candidate for the United States Senate.

The "Daddy" of the Yankee Division intimated this himself when he refused to deny that he would refuse to be drafted as a candidate in the coming senatorial fight.

Gen. Edwards' name was brought into the ring when the executive committee of the Liberal Civic League, Inc., announced that it endorses him as an all-party candidate.

At the same time the committee announced that it intended going into every congressional district in the State and fighting to defeat every congressman who votes "dry" when the district had voted "wet."

REFUSES TO TESTIFY

In addition to his intimation that he might not be adverse to becoming a candidate, Gen. Edwards revealed that for the past two weeks the House judiciary committee at Washington has been trying to induce him to visit the Capitol and give the committee his views on prohibition.

This, the general said, he has refused to do and has wired the chairman of the committee that he will not appear to testify unless a subpoena is issued for him.

When informed last night that Conrad W. Crooker, general council of the Liberal Civic League, had wired all Massachusetts congressmen, putting forward his name as a candidate of all parties for the United States Senate this fall, General Edwards said:

"It is very interesting. I have had no political ambitions. I have always been a Republican, but agree absolutely with the great speech made in Congress last week by Congressman Beck that 'this party cannot be half wet and half dry.' His speech, in my opinion, is unanswerable.

"Telegrams have been pouring in on me lately for my stand on the prohibition question. For the past two weeks the House judiciary committee has been after me wanting me to go to Washington to testify before the committee on prohibition conditions. I have refused and told them that the only way they can get me there is by summoning me."

Opera Star Seeks Divorce

Hoover Hooks Big Fish

Here is the proof that President Hoover offers that he caught a 15-pound sailfish off the Keys of Florida. Laurence Richey, his secretary, is seen raising the sail. (A. P. photo.)

Hoover Bakes in Sun; He's Now a Deep Red

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 13—President Hoover went aboard the Saunterer immediately after his arrival Monday and has not since put foot on land. He has sat in an open boat on an average of six hours a day fishing in the full glare of a semi-tropical sun, and his face is burned a deep red.

Some 60 pounds of sailfish behind the judiciary in the battle of bending poles and slender lines the President and Mrs. Hoover set out today to regain angling honors for the executive branch of the Government.

The capture of the expedition's largest trophy thus far, a 65-pound sailfish measuring seven feet ten inches, by Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, caused the chief executive to abandon plans for a 25-mile trip south and to concentrate on the nearby island studded waters which Mrs. Stone visited.

While Mrs. Hoover recorded Mrs. Stone's catch with a motion picture camera Justice Stone landed a 40-pound sailfish from Mr. Hoover's boat.

Mrs. Stone's success recommended the southern sport to the other women of the party and today they, too, took a hand in the angling preparations.

DISCORD PARTS MUSICIANS

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Miss Nanette Guilford, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has announced her intention of seeking a divorce from Max Rosen, concert violinist.

Miss Guilford, who is 23 years old, and Mr. Rosen, who is 31, were married November 23, 1928, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gutman. She said she would apply for the divorce on grounds of incompatibility of temperament.

"I am convinced," she said, "that it is very difficult for two musical artists to make a success of married life."

Marie Negotiates for Son's Wedding

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Bucharest, Feb. 13—Secret negotiations are being conducted between Queen Marie of Rumania and the Italian House of Savoy to bring about the engagement of Prince Nicholas of Rumania to Princess Giovanna of Italy.

All hope of the engagement of Giovanna to King Boris of Bulgaria has been abandoned. Boris insisted at Rome that his first son be baptized in the Orthodox faith, as the heir to the Bulgarian throne, according to constitution, must be Orthodox. Though Nicholas is of the Orthodox religion, he is willing that his offspring be Catholics.

Bad Investments Close Bristol Bank

Bristol, Ct., Feb. 13 (AP)—The City Deposit & Discount Company, established a little more than a year ago, failed to open its doors today. Losses suffered through allegedly poor investments are believed to be responsible for the bank's failure.

According to a statement issued by the state banking commissioner, a recent examination conducted by examiners of his department disclosed losses which apparently impaired its capital and surplus. Securities immediately saleable, however, the statement said, "are sufficient to pay depositors."

Deplores Attack on Parley Delegates

Washington, Feb. 13—The State Department does not intend to attempt to answer critics of the American delegation at the London naval conference or the program it is urging there so long as the conference is in session, but its feeling toward congressional and other spokesmen who have announced opposition to various developments at London or who have come forward with constructive suggestions of their own was reflected by Joseph P. Cotton, the acting Secretary of State, who said:

Charge Bank Officer With $70,000 Theft

East Hampton, Ct., Feb. 13 (INS)—A warrant charging embezzlement was issued today for the arrest of Earl B. Stevens, former treasurer of the East Hampton Bank & Trust Co. Recently a shortage of $70,000 in the funds of the bank was announced. The warrant did not specify any amount.

Stevens was reached in Colchester and it was learned he agreed to come back here for service of the warrant.

PROTEST LOAN MEASURES AT HEARING

Somerville Leaders Divided on Petitions to Borrow Outside Debt Limit

Bills to permit Somerville to borrow money outside the debt limit for public improvements were approved and protested at a hearing conducted by the legislative committee on municipal finance.

Three measures were before the committee on petition of Mayor John J. Murphy and the board of aldermen, to authorize additions to two junior high schools, repairs to elementary schools, a new central police station and the two new fire stations.

Mayor Murphy was supported in his plea to "modernize Somerville" by heads of the departments and Senator Warren C. Daggett and Representatives James Hagan, William P. Corbett and Joseph J. Borgatti.

Opposition was voiced by ex-Mayor Leon M. Conwell and William S. Howe, unsuccessful mayoral candidate last year; and three Republican House members from Somerville.

ing like wildfire. In another week his confirmation would be unthinkable. There will be no reflection against Hughes personally in your vote against him.

"He is too old to change and his views upon human and property rights are not the views of the majority of the American people today."

CALLS HUGHES UNFRIENDLY.

Charles J. Mahoney, legislative agent of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen said: "I regard Mr. Hughes as being very unfriendly to organized labor. I am surprised at the action of Senator Walsh in coming to his defense."

Representative Daniel J. Coakley, of Chicopee, former mayor of that city, said: "I firmly believe the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes to the office of Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court is ill considered and should not be confirmed. I am opposed to Mr. Hughes' appointment because of his labor record.

OPPOSED TO REWARD.

"I am also opposed to his appointment because of the fact that it is plainly in the nature of a reward by the Republican party for his services in stepping down from the United States Supreme Court as an associate justice to run for the Presidency of the country.

"After resigning the office he was defeated for the presidency. Now he is appointed to the chief justiceship of the same court by Republican President. It is clearly a reward for his services to the partp and I do not approve of the action.

"Ih he had desired to be a Supreme Court judge why did he not remain on the bench when he was there? Regardless of whether he is fitted by training for the place he ought not be chief justice of the highest court in the country."

Representative Thomas H. Carr of Jamaica Plain said: "I am opposed to the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes to the chief justiceship of the United States Supreme Court and hope that it will not be confirmed.

SEES SINISTER METHODS

"It is in my opinion an expose of the sinister and unscrupulous methods used by the invisible government who time and time again has disregarded the human equation and are actuated by a desire to serve other than the masses.

"It is plainly evident that the people fully realize the significance of this exalted position, its powers vested in it by the constitution and the sanctity of the precepts that are contained in the constitution, which was the foundation of this exalted institution.

"The words of Senator Norris of Nebraska plainly show that conditions existing in Washington at the present time should be remedied and existing evils eliminated so that the people of the United States would still maintain the respect that is worthy of the personnel of this high tribunal."

The Democratic stalwart, Whitfield Tuck, said:

"I certainly am astonished, after the statements made by Senators Borah, Norris, Dill and others, giving reasons why Charles E. Hughes should not be confirmed as Chief Justice of the highest court in the land, to see our Senator Walsh, who stands for human rights against the dollars, defending Hughes.

GRANFIELD FACES PROBLEM OVER PARTING FROM CHILDREN

MOTHERLESS THREE HIS BIG WORRY

They Fear His Departure for Washington as Congressman-Elect

Springfield, Feb. 13—When a man enters politics he does so with the knowledge that public service must result in some sacrifices on the part of himself and his family.

The price William J. Granfield must pay for a seat in Congress is separation from his three motherless children—and today the cost of victory was worrying him.

Since last August he has been both mother and father to them and now Eleanor, Billy and Jack, who lost their mother only five months ago, are going to lose their dad—at least temporarily.

Every day since the death of their mother, the congressman-elect has left whatever business he may have had in the middle of the day in order to lunch with them at home, giving them every possible minute of his time in an effort to lessen their sorrow.

Now that he must go to Washington and leave his dearest treasures behind, his victory takes on another aspect. He is faced with a real problem at the outset. He is to confer today with his sister here with respect to the children.

Since his wife's death the former Williston Academy and Notre Dame star athlete has made it a point to go home and have luncheon every day with his children. Although an extremely busy man, with a multiplicity of interests, nothing has been important enough to prevent him from being with his kiddies during the midday meal.

ANOTHER DUTY

He revealed this in his charmingly appointed residence in Longmeadow, with its fine paintings, oriental rugs and lovely home atmosphere, while discussing his plans for the future.

"I have had luncheon with my three children, Eleanor, nine; Billy, seven, and Jack, two, every day since my wife died last August. And, incidentally, I must make sure their faces and hands are clean before they return to school. You know how youngsters are about those things.

"I have taken them to school in my automobile every morning. They're great kids. On election day Billy said to me, 'I think you're going to win, Dad. I think a lot of those Republicans are going to stay at home.' I guess some of them did, but a great many of the Republicans who went to the polls voted for me as a protest."

When asked to what he attributes his overwhelming election in a strongly Republican district, Granfield said:

"I think the stand I took on the prohibition issue and the present hard times in this district and in Massachusetts generally were responsible for my election.

"I laid particular stress on conditions in the mills and factories of this section of the state. Thousands of men and women are unemployed and thousands more are working on part time, despite the Republican cry of prosperity. I exploded that claim. I told the voters that after nine years of Republican rule we should have something more than false cries of prosperity.

MET GRIGGS BEFORE

"I played basketball, baseball and football all through this section with my principal opponent, Frederick D. Griggs, when I was on the Springfield high school team and he on the Chicopee high team, and I told him I would have preferred to have met anybody else as an opponent.

"I believe the voters of the district had confidence in my positive stand on the prohibition issue."

It is generally conceded on all sides in the Second Congressional district, which has been in the hands of Republicans for the past 40 years, that the last minute shift of Griggs, the "regular" Republican candidate, from "dry" to "wet" cost him many Republican votes.

Thousands of voters questioned Griggs' sincerity, and, believing his shift was one of political expediency, cast their ballots for Atty. Granfield, whom they considered a consistent straight-shooter."

EXPECTED VICTORY

When it is recalled that Senator Frederic H. Gillett, who represented the district as a congressman for years, and was elevated to Speaker of the House, was solidly behind Griggs, Atty. Granfield's triumph is all the more astounding.

"I expected to win," said Granfield, "but not by any such plurality. My election resulted from a combination of circumstances. It was due in part to my stand on prohibition, partly because the voters were disgusted at the unemployment situation and the Republican cry of prosperity, despite the hard times, and partly to my broad acquaintance in this valley, where I played basketball, baseball and football while on the Springfield high and Williston academy teams.

"I believe I know at least 2000 voters in the district by their first names. But in all events, I consider my election a protest on the part of the voters at existing conditions."

"As to prohibition, I am a firm believer that the Volstead Act

Family Man Who Conquered Republican Party

Eleanor Billy Jack

The greatest pleasure of Congressman-elect William J. Granfield, who smashed the Republican grip on the second district, is that which he gains from the golden moments he spends with his three motherless children. Eleanor is 9, Billy, 7, and the baby, Jack, is 2.

The Congressman-elect

Since the special election brought him a political triumph which has aroused the attention of the entire nation, Congressman-elect Granfield has been a busy man, but never too busy to answer the telephone and receive the congratulations of some well-wisher. Granfield is well known for his prowess as an athlete.

Cancer Pain Relief Method Is Praised

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

San Francisco, Feb. 13—Cancer patients are relieved of their intolerable pain with the most surprising promptness, when they receive the Coffey-Humber adrenal cortex extract injections.

"Nothing like that has happened in medicine before. The alleviation of awful pain by this method is itself an achievement of the greatest importance. Even if Drs. Coffey and Humber haven't discovered a specific cure for malignancies, they have certainly found a remarkable means to lessen the chief cur of cancer, that is unbearable and cruel pain.

"It is quite plain that Coffey and Humber are the first experimenters who have obtained an adrenal hormone that decreases cancer pain and may be proved to abolish the disease."

This weighty opinion was given by one of the most distinguished medical scientists, Dr. Edgar L. Gilcreest, the founder and secretary-treasurer of the Pacific Coast Surgical Association, before which Drs. W. B. Coffey and John D. Humber read their epochal discoveries of cancer at the Del Monte session last Saturday.

PLEASED WITH RESULTS

Dr. Gilcreest's pronouncement was supported by Dr. Thomas F. Mullen. Both these leading surgeons had visited the Southern Pacific General Hospital this forenoon, where they had an opportunity to observe the latest phases of Coffey-Humber experimental clinical work.

"The authorities of the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago had wired to me asking me if the Coffey-Humber treatment was reliable," said Dr. Gilcreest. "So I went down to see Drs. Coffey and Humber. I was immensely impressed by the extraordinary and quick relief from pain that had come to many of these patients from the extract injections.

"There is scarcely anything so torturing, for instance," continued Dr. Gilcreest, "as the cancer of the tongue or of the lip. Now, in such cases the extract injection lessens pain and enables the patients to move about their tongues and feel human again.

INTERESTS SCIENCE

The theoretical light that their experiments may throw upon the nature of cancer growths is of the greatest interest to science," affirmed Dr. Gilcreest. "Science wonders why some cells grow to large sizes and others remain small, why some cells become the cells of one organ in the body and the other cells go to another region.

"Perhaps the Coffey and Humber research is the beginning of investigations which might lead science to answer all these fundamental questions of biology. Through such basic knowledge alone man will gain the mastery over himself that is the aid of scientific researches.

"The Pacific Coast Surgical Association feels naturally gratified that two of its original and esteemed members, Coffey and Humber, presented so epochal a report before its sessions.

Running for Office Is Just a Habit With This Man

Chicago, Feb. 13 (INS)—William Grant Webster, who probably has hurled his hat into more electoral rings than any other man—and has never been elected—today launched another campaign, this time for Congressman-at-large from Illinois.

Webster has been a candidate for President, Vice President, United States senator, congressman and state senator. He has run for office in New York, Ohio, Minnesota, Iowa, Indiana, South Dakota, North Dakota, Nebraska and Oregon in addition to Illinois.

GIRL CASHIER IS MISSING

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP)—The People's State Bank of Maywood remained closed today as search was intensified for Miss Laverne D. Lindgren, 25-year-old cashier.

A warrant for her arrest was issued. Auditors have reported her books in such condition they cannot interpret them.

Elmer Langguth, 35, president of the bank, was released under $100,000 bond. The charge against him is embezzlement. It was Langguth, bank officials said, who sponsored Miss Lindgren in her three year rise from switchboard operator to bank cashier.

A $35,000 home which officers said Miss Lindgren recently built in Riverside was financed, according to Langguth, by money the young woman received from the estate of her grandmother. Langguth said that "not one cent of the bank's money went into that house."

Mexican President Is Recovering Fast

FLOODS IF BIG RAINS COME

Flood danger loomed again in Vermont today as temperatures above freezing prevailed generally throughout New England.

According to weather bureau officials, if there is much rain there within the next 24 hours—and that is the prospect—the situation will become acute.

With a forenoon temperature of 52, Boston apparently was due today to set a new February 13 record, the present record being 60 on this date 29 years ago.

Showers are in the offing for tonight. Tomorrow is due to continue comparatively warm, with a gradual drop in temperature tomorrow night. The mercury today was ranging more than 30 points above yesterday. A low pressure wave, centering over eastern Canada, is the cause.

Favor Pensions for Police, Fire Widows

The legislative committee on pensions today reported a bill making it mandatory that cities and towns pay an annuity of $1000 to the widows of police officers and firemen killed in the line of duty. To the $1000 would be added $200 for each child under eighteen years of age.

Children of St. Mary's in Charlestown to Honor Pastor at Reception

Rt. Rev. Mgr. John W. McMahon, D. D., for 48 years pastor of St. Mary's Church, Charlestown, will tomorrow observe his 83d birthday, when he will be tendered a reception by the parochial school children of the parish in the morning, where Mgr. McMahon will bestow his blessing on the children. He will celebrate mass at 7 o'clock in St. Mary's Convent, Monument sq., adjacent to the parochial residence.

Mgr. McMahon, in company with the Rev. Fr. Ralph W. Farrell, chaplain at the State Prison and assistant at St. Mary's Church, visited his Alma Mater at Holy Cross College in Worcester, of which he is the oldest living alumnus, and was warmly greeted.

BORN IN CHARLESTOWN

Mgr. McMahon, one of the oldest priests in Boston archdiocese, is in good health and enjoys his daily walks about Charlestown. Felicitations are today pouring in on the venerable priest on the occasion of his coming birthday.

He was born in Charlestown Feb. 14, 1847, and is a graduate of Charlestown High school. He was an assistant at St. Stephen's Church, Hanover st., North End, for nine years after his ordination, until 1881, when he was appointed pastor of the old St. Mary's Church on Rutherford av., Charlestown, succeeding the Rev. William Byrne, who became vicar general of the archdiocese of Boston.

At the centennial celebration of the parish in October, 1928, Cardinal O'Connell stated that his presence at the solemn pontifical mass in observance of the centennial was a personal tribute to Monsignor McMahon, who was called a "model for young priests to follow."

BUILT NEW CHURCH

During his 43 years as pastor, Monsignor McMahon has erected the new St. Mary's Church at Warren, Winthrop and Soley sts., Charlestown, the cornerstone being laid in 1887. He has also constructed for his parish a parochial school and a parish clubhouse, and acquired property for the parochial residence, the convent and St. Mary's Women's clubhouse on Monument sq. He also remodeled the old convent on Winthrop st. for additional schoolrooms. In May, 1929, he was elevated to the monsignorate.

PROBE WARREN BROS. DEAL

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 13 (AP)—Two requests had gone forward today from a legislative investigation committee to George B. Crafts, vice president and general counsel of Warren Brothers, construction firm of Boston, [illegible] of the State of Mississippi.

While the House committee continued its effort to determine the truth in charges that the money was paid in settlement of a proposed antitrust suit against the Boston firm, the names of Lester Franklin, chairman of the State Tax Commission, and Carl Marshall, special counsel for a Senate highway investigating committee, were placed in the record of an investigation.

Atty.-Gen. George T. Mitchell in testimony before the House committee, said a suit against Warren Brothers and others for violation of antitrust laws of Mississippi had been drawn and was ready for filing.

U. S. Is Defender and Court in Death Case

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 13 (AP)—The State of Minnesota went into federal court today to prosecute a United States customs officer on charges of second degree murder.

The Government itself is defense attorney, for it has contended Emmett J. White acted within his rights when he killed Henry Wirkkula of Big Falls, Minn., on June 8. A county attorney is the prosecutor. The case was transferred to federal court at the request of federal authorities. One woman is on the jury.

An early State witness was to be Mrs. Wirkkula, who was with her husband and two daughters when White and another customs patrolman ordered the Wirkkula automobile to halt and submit to a rum search. The Government contends Wirkkula disobeyed and that only then did White fire.

Four Injured in Auto Crash Near Seekonk

Cuts were also suffered by Grace Ryan of Providence and by an unidentified woman. All were treated at Rhode Island Hospital in Providence.

LIQUOR BUYER TEST TRIAL FALLS FLAT

Government Can Find No Seller; Changes Charge; Other Purchasers Face Arrest

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—The charge against Joseph Patrick Carley of "buying" a half pint of gin, heralded as a test of the liquor buyer's guilt under the Volstead law, collapsed in police court today.

The prosecution was unable to find anyone who would admit selling the gin to Carley.

The charge was changed to one of possessing liquor and it immediately dropped from one of prime importance to simple another prohibition case.

Asst. Sec. Lowman announced today the charge against Carley was expected to determine the government's attitude toward prosecuting buyers of liquor. He added that a test of the purchaser's liability under the Volstead act had never been made and commented after hearing the charge had been changed that he hoped a test case eventually would settle the matter.

District of Columbia officials, nothing daunted by the quick change of affairs, said they intended to bring other charges of "buying" against persons found in possession of liquor. It was explained it was necessary to have an illegal vendor of liquor admit selling before any headway could be made with the charge against Carley.

Carley was arrested outside an alleged speakeasy and the officers reported they found half a pint of gin in his pocket. He gave bond after he was charged with buying the liquor and went home with the prospect of much litigation ahead of him. The prospect changed quickly today after he was arraigned in police court.

Bootlegger Dead, Sheriff Wounded

Everett, Wash., Feb. 13 (AP)—Al Kinsman, alleged bootlegger, is dead and Deputy Sheriff J. W. Thomas lies seriously wounded as the result of a gun battle at Kinsman's ranch, north of Arlington, Wash., when officers attempted to search the premises for liquor.

Armed with a search warrant, Thomas, with Sheriff George T. Stever and Deputy Jess Jackson, went to Kinsman's isolated ranch to look for liquor.

Cites Elections as Proof of Prohibition Growth

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP)—Asserting that anti-prohibitionists are growing fewer and fewer in Congress and State Legislatures, Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, today said this was evidence of "the diminishing power" of the anti forces.

"Today the liquor crowd finds itself unable to muster more than a corporal's guard where its word some years ago was law," he told the editors advisory section of the International Council of Religious Education.

Cherrington pointed to "this waning of the power of an anti-social force" as "significant evidence of the trend of public sentiment" after 10 years of prohibition.

Yellowley Will Stay in Chicago, Says Doran

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today that E. C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator at Chicago, would remain in that district, and characterized reports that Yellowley was to be transferred as erroneous.

The commissioner said, however, that George Hurlburt, deputy administrator at Chicago, had requested he be transferred to the west coast, and Doran said this might be done if a place could be found for him.

Frank Cunningham, deputy administrator at Milwaukee, Doran said, was being considered as Hurlburt's successor in Chicago if the latter were transferred.

Motorcycle Officer Shot in Bootleg Chase

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 13 (INS)—Raymond R. Crack, 32, motorcycle policeman, was in a serious condition today from a bullet wound in his jaw as the result of a running gun battle with bootleggers.

Edison 'Gambles' and Goes Broke at Fair

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 13 (AP)—The Edisons and the Firestones went to the Lee County Fair.

The inventor had "great fun" carrying a huge stuffed yellow rabbit which his wife won at one of the booths.

Both Mr. Edison and his crony, Harvey Firestone, staked 35 cents each at a booth, but were unsuccessful. They played number 11 each time.

"Let's go, I'm broke," the aged inventor said to Mr. Firestone. Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Firestone fared better, Mrs. Firestone matching Mrs. Edison's rabbit with a baby doll. Mr. Edison selected the yellow colored rabbit for his wife from a variety of other trinkets offered her.

Trick rides caught the eyes of both Mr. Edison and Mrs. Firestone, but the inventor was most pleased with a diving dog. The pup shook hands with the electrical wizard to win the remark:

"That's the smartest dog I ever saw."

A few minutes later when Mrs. Firestone insisted on having her fortune told, Mr. Edison chuckled and remarked, "You can't beat the women. They always want to find out about the future."

Leaving the grounds almost reluctantly, he smiled to a questioner:

GERMAN RIOTS ARE LINKED TO SOVIET PLOT

Berlin, Feb. 13 (INS)—Daily increasing acts of violence, assaults on political enemies, systematic burglaries of arms and munitions shops, open air demonstrations in defiance of police regulations and indications that radical elements have obtained a footing in the army and navy have led to charges here that Communists, under direct orders from Moscow, are fomenting a new revolution designed at the establishment of a Soviet regime in this land.

Prussian police reports illustrate increased Communist activity. The police in 1929 had to interfere with indoor meetings in 50 per cent more cases than in the previous year. Arms and munitions have been confiscated on rioters in 545 cases this year, as against only 297 in 1928, and the police have lost 14 killed and 113 injured in clashes with radicals.

To stop what is called a "secret civil war" the Reich minister of the interior is considering issuing more stringent regulations about carrying arms, and it is even planned to prohibit carrying daggers and "knuckle-dusters" and incorporate these weapons in the list of arms which only persons with special permits are allowed to carry.

The Socialist Central organ Vorwaerts openly charges the increased activity of Communists is due to direct orders from Moscow. The paper declares the Soviets are obviously dissatisfied with the German committee and want more action.

The latest incident in the long series of Communist demonstrations occurred yesterday at the Opel motor works at Russelsheim in which the General Motors Corporation of America holds a controlling interest.

Several hundred Communists invaded the plant, according to the report to the Worwaerts, stopped the machinery and ordered the workers out on strike.

Order was restored when police raided the place and arrested the ringleaders of the demonstration.

ENVOYS CAUGHT BY CROOK

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Every embassy and legation in Washington has been warned by special details of police to beware of a short, dark stranger with a penchant for separating prominent men from sums of $100 each.

The diplomats were told the stranger promises, in return for such a sum to see to it that the name of each client is made socially prominent. The police action came at the request of the State Department.

Official cognizance of what Detective Sergeant Joseph Waldron, in charge of the investigation, termed a "racket," was taken when Ambassador Orestes Ferrara of Cuba, was approached by the stranger, who suggested he would be only too pleased to place the ambassador's name in the society page of newspapers in every hamlet, village and town in the United States.

Now, not only Ambassador Ferrara, but some 53 other ambassadors and ministers are ready for the short, dark stranger.

RED ORGANIZER ADMITS TAKING SOVIET ORDER

The admission that revolutionary instructions were received by him from Russia, today in municipal court won a nine-months' sentence for Richard Davis, Providence Communist organizer.

Davis is one of 10 defendants who appeared in court as a result of the recent "unemployment" riot staged in front of the State House.

Following his admission that he received his instructions in "an indirect way" from Russia, Davis was given the heaviest sentence of the 10 by Judge Zottoli.

He was sentenced to six months for assault and battery on Sergt. Thomas McMurray of Division 4, and three months for assault and battery on Inspector Joseph Pesorero.

Mark Whittier was given six months for assault and battery on Patrolman Clifford of Division 4; Alex Karowsky, three months for assault and battery on Sergt. McMurray, and Nichilas Peter, six months for assault and battery on Patrolman Thomas C. Fahey of Division 4.

Albert Daniels was fined the heaviest of seven of the defendants when he admitted he is a Communist. Judge Zottoli, imposed fines of $20 on each of two charges of sauntering and loitering, and carrying placards.

The others, who were fined $10 on each of two charges of sauntering and loitering, and carrying placards, were Arthur Barboza, Evald Anderson, Samuel Ozer, Krosto Kotti, Stanley Zupky, and Nicholas Peter. All appealed.

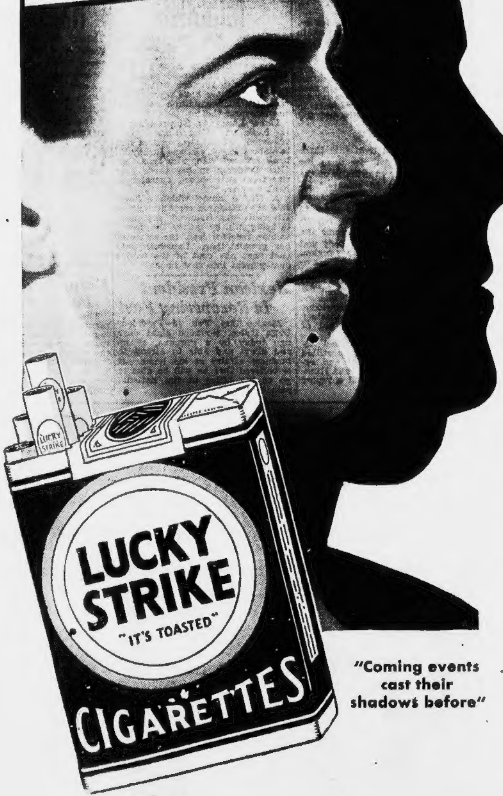
"SHALL SHAPE AND SHADOW OVERFLOW"
[John Greenleaf Whittier, 1807-1892]



"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*
By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper figure, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"
Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

BIGELOW WILL APOLOGIZE TO EX-KAISER

New York, Feb. 13—Convinced after twelve years of study that the former Kaiser was not responsible for the World War, Poultney Bigelow, noted author, will sail on March 7 for Holland to apologize to William II.

For 60 years a friend of the kaiser, Bigelow, now 75, will be accompanied by his wife on the pilgrimage to Doorn, he said. He added:

"The Kaiser has been subject to many unjust accusations since his troops crossed the Belgian border. Like many others during the war, I accepted as true these accusations framed for war purposes. I am convinced by recently released documents that Kaiser William II did his best to keep the peace and that Eurpean powers were eagerly awaiting any war.

"I will apologize to the Kaiser for having accepted these tales about him that then sounded so plausible. Our visit will mark the 60th anniversary of a friendship that had but one serious break, the great war."

'LOST' GENERAL TERROR VICTIM, SAY RUSSIANS

Paris, Feb. 13 (AP)—White Russians in France today formally called to Premier Tardieu's attention the disappearance of Gen. Alexander Paul Koutiepoff, who has not been seen since he left his home nearly a month ago to walk to the nearby Russian Officers' Club.

Today his friends and fellow-Russians addressed a letter to the French Government head, signed by Gen. De Goulevitch, chief of the general staff of the Russian army during the late war. In the letter Gen. Koutiepoff was called a "victim of Bolshevist terrorism."

Gen. Goulevitch's signature was followed by those of 11,726 other Russians. The signers reminded the French premier of their loyalty during the war, thanked France for her hospitality and declare: "We don't doubt for a single instant that the law will be observed and justice done to all guilty and that the real authors of the crime will suffer all its consequences."

The initiative for the letter was taken by the officers of Koutiepoff's old regiment. They recalled that he was wounded twice "fighting at the side of France."

Mussolini Backs New Decree on Weddings

Rome, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Council of Ministers, with Premier Mussolini presiding, today approved the draft of a decree whereby Protestant ministers and rabbis must be Italian subjects to perform marriage ceremonies for Italians under the new code resulting from the Lateran treaties.

The council, however, deemed it unnecessary to forbid foreign non-Catholic clergymen to officiate at weddings at all, since they exercise that function almost wholly for foreigners.

"Yellow Bird" Crew Plans Flight to U. S.

Paris, Feb. 13 (AP)—The newspaper Excelsior said today that Armeno Lotti, Rene Lefevre and Jean Assolant, crew of the transatlantic plane Yellow Bird, were planning a flight from Seville, Spain, to New York.

Their machine, which closely resembles the Yellow Bird, will be ready to start by the end of March, but it is likely that the airmen will test its capabilities by a preliminary flight to Abyssinia.

Care of His Children Is Granfield's Worry

ought to be modified. In 1918, while a member of the Massachusetts Legislature, I voted against ratification of the national prohibition amendment. My profession has taken me from time to time to places where I have learned something of the failure of prohibition and I believe the Government should do something to correct existing conditions and do it promptly.

"My legislative record was a safe and sane one and I shall proceed along the same line in Congress. There are undoubtedly many bills in Congress relating to both prohibition and unemployment and I shall do my best to consistently vote for what I consider the best interests of the people."

The new congressman-elect, upon whom the national political spotlight is now focused, believes U. S. Atty. Tarr of Boston "pulled a bone" so far as helping prohibition is concerned. When asked what he thought of the recent action of Atty. Tarr in causing the indictment of a buyer of liquor, Atty. Granfield said:

"I think his action will prove a boomerang. If all the persons who buy liquor were arrested, national prohibition would soon cease, as many of those who most strongly advocate prohibition would be among those arrested and that would bring an end to the hypocrisy. I believe modification of the Volstead act is bound to come."

Granfield was deluged with telegrams and telephone calls after the announcement of his victory. In his law office in Main st., 500 or more telegrams were scattered about his desk.

It was estimated that a telephone call was received every two minutes at his office during the 24 hours following announcement of his triumph. Almost every call was from an admirer congratulating him. And dozens of them were from Republicans.

Congressman-elect Granfield is 40 years old, having been born here December 18, 1889. He attended Springfield high school three years and then went to Williston academy, Easthampton, from which he graduated in 1910.

He graduated from Notre Dame with a law degree in 1913, and is a close friend of Knute Rockne, football coach, having chummed with him for three years while both were students at Notre Dame. Rockne always drops off in Springfield to visit Granfield when in the East.

Jack Elder, Notre Dame football star, is the idol of Granfield's young son Billy. The lad saw Elder make his famous 90-yard run in New York against the Army last fall. He attended the game with his father.

In addition to being a first class athlete while in high school and college, Attorney Granfield played third base for the Cincinnati Reds.

Congratulations were received from many prominent persons by Granfield, including U. S. Senator David I. Walsh, Mayor Curley of Boston; Andrew J. Peters, John F. Fitzgerald, former mayors of Boston; Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of Democratic national committee; Joseph W. Byrns, chairman Democratic congressional committee; Prof. Edwin A. Grosvenor, of Amherst College; Augustine Lonergan, former Connecticut congressman; Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois; Joseph B. Ely, Democratic leader of western Massachusetts; Larue Brown, president Jefferson Society of Boston; Frank J. Donahue, chairman Massachusetts Democratic state committee; Julian Codman, of Constitutional Liberty League; Conrad W. Crooker of Liberal Civic League, Inc., of Boston, and D. F. Sibley, executive secretary Constitutional Liberty League.

As the Second District's Congressman read all these kind words, while he answered the hundreds of telephone calls and as additional hundreds filed into his office and shook his hand as they wished him success in his new field of endeavor, his thoughts were on his three little children and their future. He's a fine father. He ought to make a splendid Congressman.

CLUB WOMEN IN DRIVE TO HAVE MORE MUSIC

KEEP music on the map.

This is the plea of Mrs. Mina del Castillo of Cambridge, chairman of the department of music for the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She asks that the clubwoman "keep music in the home, in the schools, in the factory, everywhere people congregate, in fact."

Mrs. del Castillo so pleads in order to combat "the ever gaining menace of canned music," which, she says "is destroying the livelihood of thousands of trained musicians."

Help raise the standards of radio programs by urging advertisers who mistakenly demand nothing but jazz and popular music from their musicians [illegible]. Teach music as an important educator in clubs, schools, homes and colleges.

"In other words, uphold your slogan—Music a Necessity, Not a Luxury," she commends.

To further the importance of music, the music division of the General Federation is offering a prize of $20 for the best essay from a club on "What My Club has Offered as a Music Enrichment for the Community." This should not exceed 300 words and must be sent to the music division chairman not later than April 1. [illegible] federated clubs are eligible.

In commenting on the contest Mrs. del Castillo says:

"The music division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is convinced that in order to [illegible] the community musically, there must be more music in the home, not by Victrolas and radios and player pianos, which are all very well in their way and help as a strong educational factor if properly directed, but self-made music, for the enjoyment of hearing music is as nothing to the joy of making it.

"We are, therefore, appealing to those parents who have been musically trained that their duty to their families do not end with attention to their physical needs, for their spiritual and [illegible] needs are fully as great. Have your children receive instruction on the musical instrument which most appeals to it.

WINCHENDON WOMAN'S CLUB

Civics Day will be observed in Library Hall, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with a colonial program in charge of Mrs. Walter C. Kenney. A monologue in pantomime, describing an old-fashioned tea and a modern tea, will be presented by club members. Mrs. Howard Elliott will read the monologue, while Mrs. Ann Hunt, Mrs. Guy Staples, Mrs. Elnore Prescott and Mrs. Irene Reid will take leading parts.

A quartet, composed of Mrs. Henry Johannesson, Mrs. Thomas Bridge, Mrs. John Fitzgerald and Miss Adele Tham, will furnish music for the afternoon. Mrs. Frederick F. Davis, Mrs. D. Lester Higgins, Mrs. Ray Tyrrell, Mrs. Guy Townsend will serve tea at the social hour to follow.

BOSTON CITY FEDERATION

The community service committee has charge of the February 21 meeting to be held at the Young Women's Christian Association building, 140 Clarendon st., at 10:30 a. m. and presided over by the president, Mrs. Carl L. Watson. After a brief welcome, the meeting will be turned over to Mrs. George W. Perkins, who will introduce the speakers.

The session centers around the Massachusetts Tercentenary celebration. John F. Fitzgerald, Miss Sybil H. Holmes, John Jackson Walsh and Mrs. Eva Whiting are to speak. Also Prof. Harold Perry of Harvard, whose talk is to be "What Price Smoke?" The occasion is the monthly meeting of the City Federation.

CLIFTON LITERARY CLUB

We all know that women have progressed, but how much?

This will be told to the members of the Clifton Literary Club at their meeting Thursday, February 20, at the On-the-Top-Club, Zero Park st. The meeting, arranged by Mrs. Otis H. Bates of Wollaston, was also detailed by Mrs. Charles Treadway and Mrs. E. A. Terhune. Mrs. Henry T. Morse of South Weymouth will speak on "Progress of Women."

HARWICH WOMAN'S ESSAY CONTEST

The club is sponsoring, through its education committee, an essay contest, open to students of good standing in the senior high schools of Chatham, Orleans and Harwich. "Two Decades of Cape Cod Life, 1920-1940," has been selected as the subject, and pupils have more than a month to work on it.

On March 31 the prize-winning essays will be read by the writers at the Modern Theater, Harwichport. Three prizes are to be awarded. First, five dollar gold piece; second, two and half dollar gold piece; third, one dollar bill.

The judges are to be Principal F. A. Bagnall of the Hyannis State Normal school, Supt. C. R. Stacy of the Yarmouth, Dennis and Brewster high schools, and Mrs. William E. Rowe, president of the Brewster Woman's Club.

Mrs. Albert C. Hardacker heads this active group of close to 150 Cape Cod women, a club founded and organized in 1921, and tremendously important in the activities of that section of the state.

STATE FEDERATION BROADCAST

On next Wednesday Mrs. John H. Kimball, fourth vice-president, will broadcast from WNAC at 11:30 a. m. on "Life, With a Capital L." Miss Iride Pilla, soprano of the Boston Conservatory of Music, accompanied by Miss Helen Gale, will be on the air 10 minutes later. Mrs. J. Norma Jeffery, director, will tell other clubs what has been accomplished by the ninth district in her broadcast.

ROCKLAND JUNIOR WOMAN'S CLUB

"It would be appreciated very much by the members of the club if you will please put this short announcement in your column," writes Amelia T. Levy, corresponding secretary of these alert and progressive Rockland Juniors.

These juniors, you know, are held up as models of junior membership throughout the state.

Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, third vice-president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, guest speaker, brought to the meeting a Club Institute session. Miss Gertrude Gardner, president of the group presided.

An innovation of the Club Institute was the passing of slips of paper to the girls with questions on them. Each junior was expected to stand up and give her views on one of these subjects, at least. The meeting was an informal one with much opportunity for discussion.

WEST MEDFORD WOMAN'S CLUB

The music committee, Mrs. W. T. Wright, chairman, has planned the program for the meeting next Monday at 2:30 p. m. in Community Hall and will present as the special feature, Mrs. S. P. Johnson, who will give a demonstrative lecture on toy orchestras in the schools, a work created by Mrs. Grace Drysdale. Club members are to perform on tiny rhythmic instruments.

Inventor and Shock-Absorbing Bumper

(Copyright, 1930, by the San Francisco Examiner and Universal Service, Inc.)

San Francisco, Feb. 13—Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins will arrive at Deception Island tomorrow on board the William Scoresby.

All on board are safe.

This was the word flashed from the Deception Island base of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic expedition to the San Francisco Examiner's radio station KUP at San Francisco.

For more than two weeks Wilkins and his three aides had been unheard from in the ice fields of the South Polar region. They were seeking a base on the ice packs suitable for the takeoff for an airplane flight across the Ross Sea.

The radio message from Wilkins came direct to his Deception Island base.

It is also stated that Wilkins and his entire party will leave for Montevideo on board the steamer Henrik Ibsen on Friday immediately upon his arrival at Deception Island.

Adverse weather conditions are believed to have prevented Wilkins' communicating with his base during the period he has been exploring the ice packs of the Polar regions. Last Monday, however, a whaler reported intercepting a message from the Scoresby. That message, however, did not reach the Deception Island station.

Think Adverse Weather Held Up Information

San Francisco, Feb. 13—Tuned in on Deception Island, radio receiving stations throughout the western hemisphere are attempting to establish contact with the base of the Wilkins expedition and obtain further details concerning Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins and his three aides.

On the basis of a brief message from the steamship William Scoresby, aboard which the party pushed into the South Antarctic, it has been generally agreed that the group is safe.

Doubtless, according to radio men, additional word has since been obtained by the base at Deception Island either by direct communication with the Scoresby or through messages relayed from whalers which took up the search for the party.

This Fish Story Wears a Truth Tag

Washington, Feb. 13 (INS)—The War Department OK's this fish story from the army engineers surveying the Nicaraguan Canal route. Corp. Croasdale, without hook or line, caught more than a hundred pounds of sea bass in two hours. The average weight of the fish was six pounds, and the catch was not considered anything to brag about down there, at the mouth of the San Juan river and in Greytown lagoon. Croasdale used native brush weapons and a machete and club.

ELOPERS SHUN 1-ROOM HOME FOR BIG HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Their first pre-nuptial social appearance a decided success, Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning, Jr., bank teller son-in-law and the 19-year-old daughter of Senator Couzens of Michigan, today were preparing for housekeeping amid surroundings resembling those to which the heiress was accustomed before her elopement.

Instead of occupying the one-room kitchenette and bath apartment they chose while planning their unexpected marriage, they will reside in a capacious dwelling in an exclusive residential district.

CHANGED THEIR MIND.

This was announced by Mrs. Couzens' secretary while the young couple greeted about 500 guests at a dance. The secretary said their chronicled intention of living in the modest apartment was without foundation. But the apartment house manager who accepted a month's rent from the shy couple less than two weeks ago said, dejectedly, they informed him yesterday they had "changed their minds."

Twelve ambassadors were invited to the party last night, the invitations announcing the affair for "Miss Couzens," and the secretary carefully explaining that it was not planned for the bride and groom, but to repay courtesies extended to the girl while she persistently refused to have a formal debut.

Flower-filled, both ballrooms of the Carleton Hotel were in use for the party, and about 40 Senators as well as Vice-President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann were present.

BRIDE IN BLUE TAFFETA

Greeting the guests with Senator and Mrs. Couzens, Mr. and Mrs. Chewning carried off the honors of the evening with easy grace. The blue-eyed, dark-haired bride wore a princess gown of blue taffeta, and her mother's dress was magenta velvet. Another daughter of the senator, and their son, visiting the family, joined in the affair.

Earlier, the Chewnings held a dinner party for their own close friends, about a dozen of them. They returned afterward to the suite in the Mayflower Hotel which they engaged after returning from a visit to the Virginia home of the groom's father, a physician.

Smith College Will Exhibit Dutch Art

Northampton, Feb. 13—An exhibition of Dutch art, including many choice paintings, will open in the Tryon Gallery at Smith college Feb. 17 and continue to March 10, under direction of Alphons P. A. Vorenkamp, associate professor of art at the institution.

The works, including rare furniture and terra cotta, range from 1530 to the beginning of the 18th century.

TERMS TRAFFIC IN DRUGS AKIN TO PIRACY

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.

Universal Service Special Cable

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Geneva, Feb. 13—The illicit drug traffic is even a greater crime against humanity than piracy, and should be dealt with accordingly under the laws of the nations. This is the burden of a resolution offered the League of Nations' advisory committee on traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs by Senor Vasconcelos, the Portuguese representative.

The resolution won the support of Sir Malcolm Delevingne, the British representative. He declared that the illicit traffic was so regarded in Great Britain and proposed that the question be studied by league jurists and added to the agenda of the next session of the committee. In this way, Sir Malcolm said, there may be found ways and means to increase the facility of extraditing illicit drug traffickers.

The report submitted by the American government for the last six months of 1928, showing the large numbers of drug shipment seizures form Europe, in the Far East, came up for discussion, but little comment was offered.

Senor Vasconcelos denied that a certain seizure bearing Macao labels originated from the Portuguese colony in China, declaring that he had a report from his government that such labels were used by smugglers to mislead investigators.

Letters From Readers

Gives Plan to Confute Foes of Greater Boston

Editor Boston American:

The suggestion for a Greater Boston shows the same reaction which followed every like suggestion in the past 30 years. The ninety and nine of the people living in the cities and towns in the metropolitan area outside of Boston are opposed to any union or annexation, whether by a borough system or any other proposed plan.

A study of the problem will merely result in presenting the benefits and the practical objections, both of which are now well known. The benefits may be obtained in large measure without destroying the autonomy of any city or town, thus overcoming most of the objections raised.

This may be done by a brief statute providing that the cities and towns within the metropolitan parks district as defined by the general laws of the Commonwealth, shall hereafter be known as Boston. They shall continue to hold the autonomy they now possess in every particular under general and special laws now applicable to each and all of them, save such as apply to existing fire, police and health departments therein.

The Metropolitan District Commission shall form a department of public safety for said cities and towns which shall create a unified fire and police division and a health division. All general and special laws relative to fire, police and health departments shall apply to said department of public safety.

The expense of said department shall be apportioned and assessed as provided by Chap. 92 of the general laws.

If the proponents of a Greater Boston object to such a law, the sincerity of their advocacy of a greater city may be questioned. Should they say that Boston and its officials should control those in charge of a unified department and spend the money for its maintenance, or should their proposed plan so indicate, they thereby furnish the very reason why the cities and towns will not join Boston in creating a greater city.

In this connection all must admit that the Metropolitan District Commission for many years has ably and prudently managed the metropolitan water, sewer and park systems, as well as the metropolitan police. That commission can be depended upon to so manage a metropolitan department of public safety.

As Mayor Murphy of Somerville said, and without criticism of individuals, Boston must show better conditions within itself, "streets for example," before other cities and towns will join it in any form of government, however limited. He sounded the real note of objection. Does mere size bring about better government? It does not appear so when we think of New York and Philadelphia. At Chicago we stand aghast.

Thinks Hub Women Should Wear Tercentenary Garb

Editor Boston American:

A picture of a Pilgrim maid which appeared in a recent issue prompts the writer to ask dress manufacturers of Boston to start at once to make such a dress of the period (1630), to the end that Bostonians may be distinguished among the influx of visitors coming to Boston during "Our Tercentenary Fete."

Right of Pacifists Upheld by Fighter

Editor Boston American:

Bishop Paul Jones, noted pacifist in the Episcopal church, who has suffered for his views, has again been turned down for an offical position in his denomination. It was expected that he would be co-adjutor bishop of the Episcopal diocese of southern Ohio.

He has again been dropped and thereby hangs a tale. I do not agree with him entirely, but I do believe we need such men as bishops who are sincere in their views and frank in stating them in the church. Germans are now awakening to the need of peace societies. They are reorganizing them and in the event of war breaking out they will oppose it in every way by refusing to serve. I am a hot-headed fighter, but I believe in according these pacifists some leeway in being part of this earth. I would even fight for their rights.

Prohibition Closed Mississippi Jail

Editor Boston American:

One of your letter writers asks if any town in the United States has given up its jail during prohibition. Mount Bayou, Miss., a negro town of 800 population, has torn down its jail recently for the reason that it has not been used in two years. This is the only town that I could find out putting its jail out of commission.

Thinks Prohibition Curbs Auto Accidents

Editor Boston American:

If the rum hounds have their way and the 18th amendment is to be repealed, what about the safety of motor drivers on every congested street?

Even under the restraint of prohibition, the stubborn fact stares us in the face that the highest percentage of motor accidents is caused by drunken drivers. What would the condition become with unregulated drinking coupled with the recklessness of human nature, is not pleasant to contemplate.

I believe the importance and pleasure of auto driving has now reached such proportions that the predominating sane and decent element of our population will never permit the liquor element to jeopardize the automobile business. If the 18th amendment should be repealed, the automobile business would just toboggan out of the picture.

Civilization would be set back 25 years. I cannot believe that the decent and intelligent population of this greatest of all countries will ever permit old John Barleycorn to return and destroy our modern scheme of things.

Do they say that prohibition can never be enforced 100 per cent? What of it? The laws against murder, robbery and all other crimes on the calendar cannot and never have been enforced 100 per cent! Is that a reason why they should be wiped off the statute books?

Race Party Would Breed Prejudice

Editor Boston American:

For the life of me, I cannot see how any person can stand for a Race Political Party and with others, I was glad to notice that the colored Congressman who spoke at the Old South Meeting House forum, did not push that subject.

Many of us are trying to overcome race prejudice in its varied forms, but if anything would promote it, it would be a political party of this type.

Would Penalize Lazy Students

Editor Boston American:

It does not pay for students to be lazy and get through college or high school by the skin of their teeth. There has been a plague of laziness among some of the students of the high school at Grand Junction, Col. Officials have taken this in hand with the result that students who fail in courses through laziness will have to pay $25 for the privilege of repeating them. This has been adopted by the city schools in many of the Western cities.

This complaint is not confined to Colorado; it is found right here among the educational institutions of New England, where lazy students are feigning illness.

Mother Who Smokes Reared Big Family

Editor Boston American:

There is another side to smoking besides that represented in the talk around Boston against it.

A person told me a short time ago his mother had been smoking since she was a girl. She is now 80 years old. She had 15 children, nursed every one of her children and reared 12. He added, "my father and mother were heavy smokers. It did not impair the health of any of us. All my mother's sisters smoked. In fact it was a rare thing to find a woman of French origin that did not smoke."

Faked Autographs of Founders Here

Editor Boston American:

Now that we are in the tercentenary, there is much talk going around about John Hancock, one whose penmanship stands out in the Declaration of Independence as one of the signers.

Some Boston people have the signature of John Hancock as an heirloom in their families. They think it is worth a great deal. If it is attached to a letter dated July 6, 1776, and addressed to Gen. Artemas Ward, commanding the Continental troops at Boston, it is worth about $5500.

If it is affixed to a state document in 1789, it will bring about $35. Boston is being supplied with a number of fake old time autographs of these signers of the Declaration of Independence. By the way, Button Gwinnett, one of the signers of this document, recently brought $51,000. Look out for the spurious ones in Boston.

6 FIREMEN ARE INJURED AT A SALEM FIRE

Salem, Feb. 13—Six firemen were injured, three so seriously that they were taken to Salem hospital, when the third floor of a three-story vacant tenement at 45 Mason st. collapsed while they were fighting a fire, throwing the firemen 20 feet to the first floor.

The three taken to the hospital in the police ambulance were:

CAPT. FRED HARNEY, 45, of 92 Proctor st., Engine 4, contusions, abrasions and lacerations of the head and body.

HOSEMAN EDWARD HARDING, 36, of 65 Essex st., Engine 4, cuts about the head and arms, possible internal injuries.

LADDERMAN MARTIN BAIN, 36, of 7 Pearl st., Ladder 1, multiple contusions and possible concussion of the brain.

The other three were treated at the scene of the fire and went back to their duties.

The fire was seen by Patrolman Thomas Cooper while he was covering his beat and he sounded the alarm. The three-story wooden tenement has been vacant for three months, Salem police say.

The blaze evidently started on the first floor, mushroomed through the walls and came out through the roof.

While the firemen were battling the flames on the third floor, the collapse occurred. They were assisted out of the building by Patrolman Cooper and firemen.

The crash could be heard for blocks around and at first it was thought many more were injured. Lieut. Charles A. Duffee at Salem police headquarters rushed an emergency crew of officers to the scene to assist in rescue work.

PROBE ORDERED

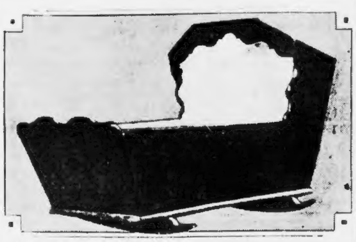
City Marshal Daniel Phalen of the Salem police ordered an immediate investigation to determine the cause of the fire, as reports had reached headquarters that the blaze was one of incendiary origin.

The scene of the blaze is near the roundhouse of the Boston & Maine Railroad yards and a number of railroad employes rushed over and assisted the firemen. Several families in the nearby vicinity were forced out of their homes by dense smoke.

Officials put the loss at $10,000.

Antique a Day

No. 22



The cradle shown above is well known to collectors of New England antiques. It is the hooded pine "Ware" cradle now owned by Mrs. Isabelle B. Woods of 7 Ivy st., prominent Boston amateur of Early American furniture. The cradle rocked its last occupant 91 years ago, after many years service with successive generations of the Ware family in Boston and Amherst. This will be further discussed by an expert in tomorrow's American.

Considerable interest manifests itself among readers on the subject of pottery, an example of which was shown yesterday in the picture of an old English teapot. There was little activity in the art of fine potery in England prior to the latter part of the 17th century. Earlier in the century, there had been some activity in Staffordshire, but the real impetus was received when John Philip Elers arrived in the train of William of Orange. The greatest contribution to English ceramics was made by the Wedgewoods in the first half of the 18th century. The discovery of the value of flint by Astbury in 1720 gave strength and whiteness to the product which had been lacking heretofore. The Five Towns, scene of Arnold Bennett's "Old Wives' Tale," was for generations the great center of English pottery manufactory.

Little was done in the art in America until Taylor and Speeler started the manufacture of white ware at Trenton, N. J., in 1855. America now successfully competes with the old world in this oldest of crafts.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American will publish from day to day interesting specimens of authentic antiques. Readers possessing genuine antiques, particularly articles of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association, are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. In case no photograph is available, the American will send one of its staff cameramen to photograph your antique if you live in Greater Boston. Material should be addressed to "Antique Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston."

U. S. WARNS OF SHIP HOLDUPS BY CHINESE

Shanghai, Feb. 13 (AP)—Activities of bandits and lawless soldiers throughout China were described today in advices from various areas as having become a grave danger, threatening the authority of the Nationalist government and making travel in the interior unsafe for foreigners.

In Hunan province, along the Hankow-Changsha Railway marauders posing as members of the provincial military, in addition to besieging and looting towns have begun holding up cargo ships belonging to the Standard Oil Company of New York.

These ships, plying between Hankow and Changsha, have been subjected to search by the marauders under the pretext that the vessels were suspected of carrying "contraband goods."

From these developments, American naval authorities ordered a gunboat at Hankow to accompany oil ships and prevent searches. Meanwhile consular officials at Hankow forwarded details of these occurrences to the American legation at Peiping. It is understood the legation filed a protest with the Nationalist government foreign office at Nanking.

DOG DECIDES OWNERSHIP IN COURT TEST

"Teddy," and Eskimo spitz dog, six years old, took a knotty problem out of Judge Maloney's hands in East Cambridge district court today, deciding for the judge that Joseph J. Clark of Litchfield st., Brighton, was his owner, not Mrs. Annie L. Ward of Western ave., Cambridge.

Mrs. Ward was in court charged with larceny of the dog. She declared it was hers, that its name was Prince, and that it was not a spitz but a samoyede.

Unable to decide between her and Clark, both of whom had supporting witnesses, Judge Maloney had the dog brought into court and placed in front of his bench, with Mrs. Ward on one side of the room and Clark on the other.

At a signal from the judge, Clark called "Teddy" and Mrs. Ward called "Prince." The dog unhesitatingly dashed over to Clark and leaped for him joyfully.

As Mrs. Ward continued to call "Prince," the dog went over to her but displayed no special pleasure.

Judge Maloney told Mrs. Ward he would dismiss the charge of larceny if she would give the dog to Clark voluntarily. She refused and wept, as did her daughter, but under threat of fine they consented and left court saying they would try to get the dog back to the civil courts.

OFFICIALS RAP LIGGETT STORY AS 'GOSSIP'

Local federal, state and police officials today characterized as "gross exaggerations," "gossip," and "ridiculous statements" the testimony of Walter W. Liggett, author of "Bawdy Boston," before the House judiciary committee at Washington yesterday.

Referring to his statement that he gave evidence to the local federal grand jury and expected indictments to ensue, officials declared Liggett had repeated only gossip.

United States Atty. Tarr termed Liggett's charges "gross exaggerations." Referring to an examination of Liggett by Tarr and his assistant, Hubert C. Thompson, Tarr said:

"Liggett admitted to me and to Thompson that his information about crime conditions in Boston was given him by taxi-drivers, policemen and newspaper reporters. He said he had no definite idea of conditions only such as was created by these talks."

Superintendent Crowley characterized Liggett's statements as ridiculous and very much exaggerated.

Gen. Foote, State commissioner of public safety, informed of Liggett's statement that there had been "liquor transactions even in the office of the commission of the public safety," indicated that he preferred to ignore the charge.

$200,000 LOSS BY 14TH BOMB IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP)—The 14th bomb of the year exploded early today in the Elston ave. factory district, doing $20,000 damage to the Right Welding and Boiler Repairing Co. plant and nearby structures.

On Jan. 28 last a bomb exploded at the front of the Central Paper Stock Co. next door to the welding concern. Police believe today's bomb was planted in the front doorway of the welding company building by mistake and that the paper stock company was the intended victim.

Michael Donay, owner of the welding company, heard the explosion at his home several blocks away. Believing another attack had been made on his business neighbor, he investigated and found his own plant had been the object of the bomb. A large hole was torn in the front hall of the one-story building, but the chief damage was to costly machinery.

Donay said that in the Jan. 28 bombing his plant was damaged more than was that of the paper stock company. He said his plant was operated entirely by organized labor and that there had been no troubles or threats of any kind.

The explosion was the second in successive nights to shake sections of the North and Northwest sides of the city. A laundry was rocked by a bomb Tuesday night.

Seven Gunmen Seized in Chicago "Murder House"

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP)—Seven "big shot" gangsters, found behind the drawn shades of a room in which, not long ago, two others were murdered, were held for the grand jury today as gunmen.

Altogether, police took 425 additional prisoners during the day, bringing their "crime drive" total for five days to more than 2500. The seven found in the dingy second-floor restaurant were regarded as by far the most important of all.

In presenting them at the police "showup," at which suspects are paraded across a small stage before the victims of recent crimes, Chief of Detectives Egan said:

"Their names would grace a penitentiary roster or a hangman's warrant. They are of the O'Donnell gang."

Two of them were O'Donnell brothers, Myles and Bernard. (There is a third and better known O'Donnell, called "Klondyke.") There was "Three-Fingered Jack" White, once convicted of murder; George (Red) Barker, known as a labor terrorist and once charged with murder; Mike Quirk, Edward Sirnek and John O'Connor.

With the seven was arrested Frank Lacey, concerning whom police had no previous information.

Five minutes after the "pinch" eight lawyers were demanding that the men be promptly booked so that the bail could be arranged and the men freed. They were successful only in the case of Myles O'Donnel, who they represented as a "dying man."

During the questioning a photographer set off a flashlight behind Myles and he fainted. When he revived he said he thought he had been shot.

GAMBLER AND GIRL KILLED BY GANG

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—A woman identified as a dance hall hostess and her escort were killed early today by four gunmen who alighted from an automobile, chased them when they fled in opposite directions and shot them down.

The killers escaped in their automobile.

Several hours after the shooting the body of the woman was identified as that of May Smith, 24, who came to New York more than a year ago from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and had been employed as a dance hall hostess. Her escort was Carmine Barelli, 30, of the Bronx, who police said was known in the Bronx as a gambler and had a criminal record dating back to 1919.

Barelli and Miss Smith had just left Barelli's car at a garage and were walking along Inwood ave., in the Bronx, when an automobile drew up to the curb beside them. Four men alighted and Barelli's companion turned her head, screamed and ran north. Barelli fled in the opposite direction.

Two men chased each of them. The woman fell after running a few feet and standing over her, the slayers fired four shots, one of which pierced the back of her neck and another lodged between her shoulder blades.

Meanwhile, the other two men chased Barelli to a ramp leading into a service garage and fired five shots at him. One struck his chin and another entered his chest.

A negro washer at the garage where Barelli left his car placed the woman in a taxicab and started for Morrisania Hospital, but she died en route. Barelli was dead when an ambulance surgeon arrived.

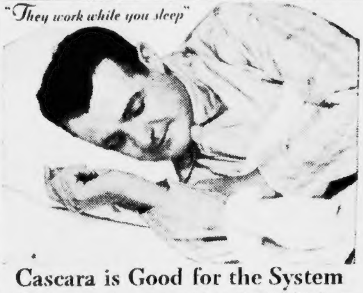
"They work while you sleep"



Cascara is Good for the System

What do you do when a sluggish system tells you the bowels need a little help?

The best thing yet discovered for the purpose is still the little candy Cascaret! Take one whenever the liver and bowels are not functioning as they should.

Cascarets are pleasing to the palate, and pleasant in their action. You eat them just like candy. They work while you sleep. Gentle, but thorough. Cascarets don't stir-up the stomach or upset the system. But they cleanse the entire thirty feet of bowels in one comfortable, thorough action that leaves the system clean and sweet; leaves you with an untainted breath, uncoated tongue, and clear head.

Cascarets are made of cascara—long regarded one of the most beneficial laxatives known to medical science. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice. Children love them. So do most grown-ups! Why take anything harsh when constipation threatens? Whenever a dull headache, lassitude, or sick stomach with loss of appetite warns you of poor elimination, a Cascaret or two is the most harmless form of help you could give a lagging system.

Take a candy Cascaret tonight and see how fine you'll feel in the morning—and for days after.

could give voters the privilege of registering their own will.

"The drys express their confidence that they have an overwhelming majority of the people of the United States in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment," she said.

"If so, why should they not welcome this test? Why should they not welcome the direct approval of the Eighteenth Amendment by the people themselves, the approval which the people have not heretofore had an opportunity to express?"

"Regardless of their convictions as to the 18th amendment, the American people are a good people, they are good intentioned, they want to be fair.

UP TO NORMAL AMERICAN

"A normal American citizen, regardless of beliefs on the 18th amendment, would readily concur in the principle that the amendment should not remain in the Constitution without majority approval of the people of the United States.

"I believe that practically every intelligent dry who can give this his considerate judgment will concede that it is best for this country that the 18th amendment should cease to be part of the Constitution when a majority of the people of the nation go to the polls and register their judgment against it.

"This resolution proposes nothing unsound, nothing that offends against the best judgment of a normal minded, wholesome intelligent American citizen.

"This resolution further provides that in case the people vote for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, Congress shall still retain the power to prohibit the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquors in violation of state laws.

SALOON GONE FOREVER

"The further provision is that notwithstanding the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, no state shall permit or authorize the conduct of a saloon.

"I believe the American people on the whole are well satisfied with discarding the saloon. They do not want to see it return.

"Many people, strongly convinced of the evils of prohibition, would object to returning the prohibitive power to the states alone if they thought such a course would lead to the return of the saloon.

"Therefore, I believe this provision preventing the states from reestablishing the saloon would remove this question from our problem and permit the fair determination of this question.

"If the people of the United States should repeal the 18th amendment, the powers would be restored to each State to follow its own policies in reference to this question. It will deny no state the opportunity to work out its own destiny.

"It will relieve unwilling states from the operation of a federal law that to people of great sections of this country, is unwelcome, obnoxious and what they regard as unwarranted interference with their local affairs.

The repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would restore us the same constitutional government adopted by our forefathers before the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted. It would grant instead of deny, the right of local self-government to the states."

Mrs. Sabin followed Mrs. Norton to the witness chair. She was also dressed in black. She is a former Republican national committeewoman from New York and represented the women's organization for national prohibition reforms.

MRS. SABIN APPLAUDED

At first the women of the land, she said, thought that prohibition would strengthen a weak character. They are now realizing "with heartburnings and heart aching," she asserted, "that if the spirit is not within, legislation can be of no avail."

Applause rang from the spectators when she added: "They thought they could make prohibition as strong as the Constitution, but instead they have made the Constitution as weak as prohibition."

Next to testify was Mrs. David Holmes Morton of Brooklyn. She is secretary of the Women's Committee for Repeal of the 18th Amendment.

"We demand outright, unequivocal repeal of the 18th amendment, free from modification, compromise or substitute," she declared, adding that it was up to Congress to work out details of how this should be done.

Miss Louise Gross of New York, chairman of the National Women's Moderation League, appeared after Mrs. Morton.

"National prohibition has failed in its purpose," she said. "Young people are drinking liquor obtained in speakeasies, at roadhouses and from bootleggers who cannot be regulated. The youth of our country is being destroyed by those unregulated and illegitimate purveyors of liquor."

ARMY PLANES VIEW ECLIPSE

Berkeley, Ca., Feb. 13 (INS)—Army airplanes will be pressed into service to record the fleeting glimpse of the total eclipse of the sun which astronomers hope to observe on March 28.

President W. W. Campbell of the University of California, an internationally known astronomer, announced the completion of plans whereby army planes will co-operate with university astronomers.

One plane will fly at 10,000 feet elevation, well over the highest clouds and will follow the half-mile shadow of the moon as it moves toward the northeast.

With the eclipse scheduled to last one or two seconds, the fast moving plane will enable observers to study the eclipse a fraction longer than from the ground. A second plane will be used to take moving pictures of the shadow of the eclipse and the eclipse itself.

Sound Riot Calls in Pittsburgh Strike

Pittsburgh, Feb. 13—A dozen riot calls sent police to various parts of the East End section where taxicab companies attempted to resume service halted by a strike of drivers in progress since Jan. 12.

A young woman was trampled by a horse, a mounted patolman was disarmed by a crowd, four drivers were sent to hospitals after suffering beatings and numerous stoning of cabs occurred, according to police reports. The woman, Miss Hazel Stark, 26, was treated for bruises.

Mounted Patrolman James Gallagher was disarmed by a crowd after he had arrested a man whom he accused of having thrown a missile at him. Police reserves rescued Gallagher.

ICE CARNIVAL IS A GREAT SUCCESS

MIDST FLAGS OF MANY NATIONS a great number of Boston's smart set gathered last evening to view the International Skating Carnival held at the Arena. As the following foreign skating champions were introduced his or her national anthem was played, while those fortunate enough to have seats at this crowded event stood: Miss Sonja Henie of Norway; Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Brunet of France; Miss Melitta Brunner, Karl Schafer and Ludwig Wrede of Austria.

SKATING ALSO AT THIS popular affair, which so successfully benefited the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital, included the socially prominent Mrs. Theresa Blanchard and Miss Maribel Y. Vinson. Miss Beatrice Loughran of New York, who so graciously arranged, directed and took part in a number entitled, "Veiling the Sun," had as her partner in this pair-skating event, Sherwin C. Badger, whose marriage to Miss Mary Bancroft took place a few years ago. The latter's sister, Miss Virginia Badger, is a bud this winter. Roger F. Turner and Nathaniel W. Niles, secretary-treasurer of the Boston Skating Club, were among the others who participated. It was a pleasing sight to see diplomatic representatives of the Norwegian and French governments here present their champions with flowers or gifts. The pageantesque costumes too, were both vivid and becoming.

THOSE IN THE AUDIENCE were for the most part dressed in small hats and fur coats, while the Junior League girls assisting with the selling of programs and the seating of people were in full evening dress over which they had thrown lovely party wraps, many being of white fur. The league members, headed by Miss Dorothy Lawrence, were Miss Polly Beale, Miss Katherine Brown, Miss Judith Chase, Miss Anne Clifford, Miss Mary Cowles, Miss Mary Cushman, Miss Alice Dalton, Miss Marian Duane, Miss Clara Dupee, Miss Eugenia Frothingham, Miss Ethel Grew, Miss Dorothy Hall, Miss Rosamond Haughton, Miss Elizabeth Hovey, Miss Katherine Howe, Mrs. Francis R. Higginson, 3d, Miss Caroline Mildrick, Miss Rosamond Musgrave, Miss Catherine Olney, Miss Gertrude Peabody, Mrs. Kimball Powning, Miss Barbara Proctor, Miss Sally Parker, Miss Rosamond Rust, Miss Elizabeth Scaife, Miss Elizabeth Spalding, Miss Mary Thompson, Mrs. Benjamin Thorndike, Miss Sally Wambalt.

"LOVE-IN-A-MIST," THE play the Fall River Junior League is producing in the Bijou Theater in that city, promises a great success. Many of the properties to be used have considerable historical value. A 17th century English Barton tray will be used for the serving of coffee. Old Sheffield candlesticks which belonged to a southern family in New Orleans also will be used. Mrs. Stephen French, formerly of Virginia, is taking the leading part. She will wear heirloom jewelry, safe with her today only because a faithful servant hid it in a clock and buried it when the noted Sherman marched to the sea. Among the number of other exceedingly interesting accessories is a tortoise shell box at one time included in Lord Kitchener's collection. It is a wedding present of one of the committee members. Mrs. Leonard Chase is chairman of the entertainment committee.

MISS ELIZABETH P. KENDALL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo S. Kendall of Marlborough st., has gone to New York to live, for the purpose of studying music. She is staying at a club. Miss Kendall's younger sister, Miss Vivian Kendall, is one of the season's debutantes. Her mother gave a luncheon in her honor in the winter.

DR. AND MRS. RICHARD KING are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter on Saturday. The future debutante is to be christened Marian.

AMONG THE BOSTONIANS sailing for Nassau and the Bahamas tomorrow are Mrs. W. A. Crosby and James H. Proctor of Boston.

THE TREND IS DECIDEDLY southward these days, Bermuda and Florida seemingly equally popular in the eyes of Bostonians. Mrs. John Butler Swann and her daughters, the Misses Marguerite and Helen E., are sailing from New York next Thursday for Bermuda, where they plan to stay at the Princess. The Swanns' residence is on Valley rd. in Milton. Mrs. George von L. Meyer of Beacon st. is leaving for Palm Beach today. Next Wednesday, Miss G. Winifred Thorndike, whose parents, the Harry Hill Thorndikes, live on Marlborough st., is departing for Palm Beach also.

LAST NIGHT AT HER PARENTS' home in Brookline, Miss Phebe Russell gave a "baby party." That is to say the girls and boys invited to the informal supper came dressed as infants. Miss Phebe is the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. W. Russell.

MRS. FREDERICK P. BAGLEY, vice-chairman of the memorial and anniversary committee of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, is entertaining members of the committee at her new home on Beacon st. at tea this afternoon. Plans are being discussed for the coming anniversary luncheon. Mrs. Bagley is carrying on the work so well started by Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman, chairman of the committee, who is now on a Mediterranean cruise.

ON SATURDAY MORNING at 11 in Jordan Hall, the third Ernest Schelling children's concert will take place. Oskar Shumsky, violin prodigy, will be the assisting artist. Among the sponsors are Mesdames George R. Agassiz, Gaspar Bacon, Thomas P. Beal, John E. Bolt, J. D. C. Bradley, Gorham Brooks, I. Tucker Burr, David Cheever, Richard E. Danielson, Carl Dreyfus, Alexander Forbert, Alvan T. Fuller, Henry S. Grew, H. P. Hardwick, Conrad P. Hatheway, Edward J. Holmes, Walter Hunnewell, James Jackson, George C. Lee, W. S. H. Lothrop, William A. Parker, John C. Phillips, William Lowell Putnam, Leverett Saltonstall, Montgomery Sears, George H. Swift, John E. Thayer, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., E. Sohier Welch, H. H. Whitman, S. B. Wolbach and Oliver Wolcott.

JOHN STORER AND HIS daughter, Miss Emily Storer, were joined at the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. by the former's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Theodora Storer, who were en route from their home in Cambridge to Sea Island, off the coast of Georgia. They will return tomorrow and will again stop at the hotel with Mr. Storer. Miss Storer has as her guest at the hotel, Miss Gwendolyn Moss of Boston. Rep. and Mrs. Charles Gifford have been joined in their apartment at the Hotel Roosevelt in Washington, D. C., by their daughter, Mrs. H. P. Claussen of Dedham, who will pass the remainder of the month with her parents.

TANNHAUSER WELL SUNG BY STARS

By MOSES SMITH

The two greatest figures of nineteenth century opera—Wagner and Verdi—supplied the bills for performances at the Boston Opera House yesterday by the Chicago Opera Company. Capacity audiences, as during each of the preceding performances, witnessed "Tannhauser" in the afternoon and "La Traviata" in the evening.

By coincidence both of these operas belong to the "middle periods" of the respective composers. And in both cases the later artist is discernible in his earlier work. Even aside from the revision of "Tannhauser" by Wagner after he had attained artistic maturity, the ear recognizes characteristics that were to flower in the Ring, "Tristan," "Meistersinger" and "Parsifal."

Nor does the presence of so much "um-tum-tum" accompaniment in "La Traviata" conceal Verdi's dramatic instinct, which breaks out often in the score. Of course the opera is primarily a storehouse of beautiful melodies. It is, therefore, the surest fire entertainment for the untutored opera-goer.

ABLY DIRECTED

As was to be expected from the triumphs in German operas last week, "Tannhauser" was given an able performance, far better than the Chicagoans' last previous presentation of this work. Emil Cooper, so successful in "Carmen" the previous evening, offered a beautifully rounded version of the score.

The work was intelligently, often beautifully, mounted. Scenery and costumery usually worked illusion. The chorus in the Hall of Song was ably directed and, in the third set, when the Pilgrims stopped at the cross, they directed their attention to it rather than obviously to conductor and audience. The lighting, too, was excellent.

As for singers in the principal parts the company was for the most part fortunate. Mme. Frida Leider, the most experienced in German opera, appearing as Venus, was, of course, outstanding.

Rosa Raisa, who was singing Elizabeth for the first time, made a noble figure; and her creation, which had dramatic and expressive power, would have been notable if she had not sung consistently flat.

BONNELLI'S FINE WORK

Theodore Strack was eminently satisfactory in the title part, singing with more refined tone and more discriminating nuance than anyone has used in this role in recent years. The greatest surprise, perhaps, was the exceptional work of Richard Bonelli as Wolfram. It was one of his "days," when his tones were of pure gold, when he did not have to force his beautiful voice to attain the requisite power. The mere mention of Alexander Kipnis' name as the Landgrave insured a first-rate interpretation.

"Traviata" in the evening, by contrast, was routine production, with one notable exception. Claudia Muzio showed us again a superb histrionic conception of the virtuous scarlet lady, and sang with such beauty and sincerity that a hackneyed opera was redeemed. Charles Hackett, as Alfredo, had neither the refinement of song nor the histrionic resources to appear convincing. Giovanni Inghilleri, making his local debut, was a competent Giorgio Germont—but no more.

It was Muzio who saved the day, or rather evening, and who accounted for the enthusiasm of the audience. Yet this same artist might have been heard in an opera not so shopworn as "Traviata." It has noble music, but so have other operas of Verdi that are not often brought to Boston.

A Department Devoted to Fashions, Decoration and Social Customs

Chiffon and Lace to Fore of New Mode at Resorts

NOW that the Southern season is in full sail we can discuss what is being worn rather than what will be worn. It rather looks as if lace and chiffon are fighting a painless fashion duel for social supremacy, and that they are well matched adversaries is apparent from the fact that each has the qualifications which make for the fluid silhouette of the moment.

Chiffon floats into view in either a sheer monotone guise or printed all over in the most fascinating vine or flower patterns. Lace varies its personality with filmy Chantilly, Alencon, or the less exclusive Spanish patterns, and colors itself in pastels, among which are blues and pinks, in black or white.

SEMI-SHEER fabrics, such as crepe Roma or georgette, flat crepe and the newly smart canton crepes, are well represented in the most fashionable wardrobes.

Moire, satin and the finer nets also make bids for favor.

The large floral pattern is in green, red, rose, black and yellow chiffon. The softly draped collar forms a V neckline, and a little bolero in front. The shaped hip yoke is softened by a sash belt, tied in front, and the long sleeves have similar tie ends at the wrist. The skirt is very full and slightly uneven, from its wide circular inserts. This frock is a particularly good choice for an afternoon bridge party or an informal evening affair among one's friends.

PRINTS are not satisfied with jungle scenes and street scenes, huge flowers and modernistic angles and curves, but must needs simulate the intricacies and daintiness of lace. Lace prints that pose thread-like patterns on dark backgrounds of navy blue, brown, and black, are new and different additions to the spring's array of fabrics.

Moonlight prints that look like the pattern of leaves against a sandy moonlit beach make their appearance on soft chiffons for graceful evening gowns and formal afternoon frocks. Tiny prints that repeat small patterns on a plain ground have won the name of shirtwaist prints.

AN interesting note in these colorful days is a bit of lace in color, adorning a white collar. The lace is dyed to match the dominant note in the print frock on which the collar is worn. Two new trends of the season are represented in this quaint fashion—that of the importance of lace and matching colors. Though ensembling is not new, novel ways of relating accessories to frock or suit are continually being discovered.

WHETHER you are a brunette with vivid coloring or blessed with one of those rare magnolia-like creamy skins that accent the red of your lips, you will be glad to hear that it is decidedly the thing to be one's self, so far as the complexion is concerned. After a season of brown-as-a-berry sameness we are to go back to our original pink-and-white complexions if one is naturally ours, or to keep our bronzed skins if suntan is becoming and natural.

Natural as we are to be, at least to skin depth, there will be need for accenting the natural graces of our complexion. There will be extra-careful selection of powders and rouges, and eye makeup that accents just enough and not too much.

Petticoat Adjusted to Individual Figure

WHEN princess lines are so important the matter of whether or not one's lingerie fits perfectly becomes a vital one. A petticoat (we must acknowledge this undergarment after years of snubbing it) has been made that can be adjusted to the individual figure. It is made in wrap-around style with three buttons and buttonholes on the narrow waistband that make it possible to adjust the band to the specific waist. The overlapping section of the skirt is elaborately lace trimmed and embroidered and the bottom of the garment is lace bordered.

ARTISTS OPEN FOURTH HUB EXHIBIT

The Boston Society of Independent Artists has opened its fourth annual exhibition in the Barn Gallery at 40 Joy st. and a glance through the catalogue shows a number of names belonging to ancient painters.

Among them are Charles Hovey Pepper who did valiant and kindly service in helping hang the show. His "Lone Pine" included in his own one-man show last year is one of his very fine water colors, a thoroughly artistic and craftsmanlike piece of work and his "Spiritual Adviser," a delightful characterization as well as decorative and harmonious in its rich color.

Eleanor Warren Motley who shows two pleasing water colors of flowers, Anthony Thieme with two of his well-executed canvases, "Gloucester" and "Quarry," fresh and clean in color, and Morris Hall Pancoast, with his snow scenes "The Red Truck" and "Cold Days" are among the number of those who seek to encourage the beginners and less advanced by exhibiting with them.

Ranking high among the amusing canvases in the show are two by Julia Turner. The "Lady With Red Hair" reminds us of those abstractions that were rampant at Provincetown last summer. "Man and Woman" is a most entertaining posterish study in few flat colors, the stout woman bending over the basket of clothes she is about to hang out displaying marvelous suppleness for one so solid.

Lucia Alice Warren's "Derelict" looks it name. Wilson Claggett's "Spanish Woman" is a good example of what we call the modernistic in figure painting. Margaret Sargent and Shaw McKean, Dorothy Loeb, William H. Littlefield, Peter Pezzati, D. T. Carlyle, Sonia Mazer, Henrietta M. King, Yasuo Kuniyoshi and Jido Fujita are among those experimenting in individualistic methods. So is Esther Williams, who expresses the dreariness possible to "A Farm In Winter."

The architect in Walter H. Kilham comes out in "The City," pleasing in color and composition. Jane H. Kilham's "Marigolds" and her note sketchy, impressionistic water color of "The Harbor," are both appealing.

Genevieve M. Thomas shows a long polychrome bas relief of her beloved peasants of Brittany—"A Breton Pardon"—in which she preserves the atmosphere of such an occasion, and Saul Yalkert a wood carving of a cat which is a remarkable piece of work, the artist cleverly making the grain of the wood serve him in his modeling.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THIS Cake Recipe?

Cream ½ cup butter and add gradually the beaten whites of 5 eggs. Sift 2½ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt and add alternately with ¾ cup milk to the first mixture. Beat well and bake in a shallow cake pan for about 40 minutes in a slow oven.

You can readily see that sugar is missing from this cake recipe. To be exact one and one-half cups. What a failure you'd have if you followed the recipe with this single but important ingredient missing.

Too often we are inclined to leave sugar out of our meals. As a result the food is not palatable. This is true of certain vegetables. Yet you can make them appetizing by adding a dash of sugar in cooking. For example, tomatoes, peas, carrots and spinach taste much better when a pinch of sugar is added. Also many stewed fresh or dried fruits are made more palatable by including sugar.

When nourishing foods are pleasant to the taste, you naturally eat what your system requires. Since sugar adds flavor to such foods why not cultivate the practice of using it as a flavorer? No doctor will prescribe against this suggestion. Neither will he object to the serving of simple puddings, cakes and custards for desserts. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

POPULAR SCREEN LOVERS OF SILENT DAYS REUNITED IN TALKIE TEAM

WIDOW OF DIRECTOR ON JOB

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13—R. K. O. is probably banking on the long memory of the public when they team Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes in "Cooking Her Goose." Mary and Lloyd played in innumerable First National Pictures. In fact, they were what might be called a permanent team. Then came the talkies and other contracts for each of them. Now they are emoting opposite each other once more with Donald Crisp directing.

Louella O. Parsons

Mary recently sold her house in the hills to Fred McIsaac, magazine writer. It is the house where she and Kenneth Hawks lived so happily before his tragic death.

I am told that jobs have continued to pour in on Mary ever since her bereavement. Everyone admires her bravery and her effort to carry on. She has, I believe, won much more consideration because of her attempt to be cheerful and not to parade her grief in public. It takes a real woman to do that and little Mary Astor seems suddenly to have grown up.

EPHE ASHER is back in the producing end again. He was formerly associated with Asher, Small and Rogers. Then the company separated, the partners going their various ways. Mr. Asher went to New York. He is back now at Universal City where he will supervise pictures. His first is "The Czar of Broadway," a story built around the life of Arnold Rothstein. Speaking of Universal, I am told confidentially that Tod Browning has been offered a three-year contract. Some of the early successes, such as "The Virgin of Stamboul" and "The Phantom of the Opera" were made by Mr. Browning who has a great flair for melodrama. He may remake these in the talkies.

IT looks as if Buster West is remaining in Hollywood permanently. At the time that he became engaged to Virginia Cherrill he had plans made to go to New York to do his eccentric dancing with his father, John West. But evidently he changed his mind, for now I hear he is on the Pathe studio lot, where he has been placed under a long term contract by Joseph P. Kennedy. Mr. West will not confine himself to acrobatics and dancing. He is booked for feature pictures, one of the first being a part in "What a Widow," starring Gloria Swanson.

* * *

WE can never mention Harry Garson without recalling the days when Clara Kimball Young was the loveliest woman on the screen. She had such implicit faith in Mr. Garson that she refused any offers to let anyone but him manage her. Whether or not she was wise to follow her own inclinations in this matter is unimportant. She is out of pictures. Mr. Garson is still in them. He has been casting director at Universal, but now I'm told he has resigned to produce pictures. His first picture will be an original story by Madame DeGresac.

* * *

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Marion Davies giving a highly amusing account of her flight from the train when it ran into a gas tank at Ventura. All of her friends telephoning and calling at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio to hear that she was all right. Harry Belmont, her director, sending her home to get some rest. Meanwhile a football game of the Gay Nineties, with Yale playing Columbia, getting a crowd in the back lot. Vivian Oakland in a dress of the period. Also Ilka Chase and Lenore Bushman. Walter Catlett wearing a light derby hat and a huge crysanthemum, looking exactly like one of the Boys About Town of about 20 years ago. Tandems, hansom cabs and other horse-drawn vehicles conveying these principals to the football game. John Stahl back from New York with his plans for production. Mrs. Albert Parker in a red summer hat and red dress lounging at the Brown Derby. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Someone's Getting Nosey

RICHARD BARTHELMESS AND CONSTANCE BENNETT
"SON OF THE GODS," coming to the New B. F. Keith's on Saturday, brings Dick Barthelmess to the talking screen in a master film. He seems to enjoy his role.

ROUGE MORE THAN LIPS

ROUGE has come into its own with the perfection of color pictures. On the picture sets in Hollywood heretofore it has been a step-child. In black-and-white pictures rouge photographs black, making bad shadows on the spot where it is applied. But in color pictures it highlights the players, and is a necessary part of the make-up. In "Sally," Marilyn Miller's first picture, now at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia, enough rouge to stock a drug store was accumulated by the corps of make-up artists working under Perc Westmore.

Ford Sterling

Every scene in the picture is in color, and all the feminine principals used rouge in their make-up. In addition, the chorus girls used it on their faces, their knees, elbows and ankles.

REALIZES HIS AMBITION

JASON ROBARDS made his screen debut with Mae Murray in "The Gilded Lily" and now he is giving her leading support in her first talking and singing picture, "Peacock Alley," the Tiffany production now showing at the Modern and Beacon and Egyptian Theaters.

Robards cherished an ambition all through his boyhood to be an actor. He studied dramatic art after graduating from high school in Saginaw. Jason's home town is Hillsdale, Michigan. During this time he was also working as a clerk in a manufacturing concern and at night he sang with illustrated song slides.

After perseverance he landed a part in the New York production of "Lightnin'," where he was seen by a Famous Players-Lasky scout and signed for the Mae Murray picture. A few years later he was touring in "Seventh Heaven," which took him to Los Angeles. Universal saw him and put him under contract and since then he has belonged exclusively to the movies.

His recent talking pictures are "On Trial" and "The Gamblers." In "Peacock Alley" he portrays a successful young attorney who comes from Texas to marry an actress and gets tangled in a drama of Peacock alley.

Angna Enters Concert at Hotel Statler

Angna Enters will appear Monday afternoon in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler, under the auspices of the Travelers' Aid Society. Kenneth Yost will accompany Miss Enters at the piano. During the interludes the program lists Bach, Palmgren, Debussy, Ravel, Schubert, Meyerbeer and Converse.

Henry Clive has been signed by Fox to make his appearance in Sue Carol's next Fox movietone picture as yet untitled. The story has a Greenwich Village artist as one of its principal characters.

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, Feb. 13.

BUFORD ARMITAGE, one of our leading young actors, vocationally, and by way of joining the upper flight of dramatists in his avocational time, has just completed another play. This one, a comedy, bears the title of "The Tattooed Lady," tentatively, but you're liable to hear of a change later in the week. The name suggests the carnival, and Buford's piece has nothing to do with circus folk.

This makes the second one Armitage has done inside a year, he and Philip Dunning, the big impresario and scenery man, already having concocted a rural comedy-drama called "The Buggy Ride."

Both, one hears, are listed for spring production.

* * *

Hatcher Hughes and Alan Williams, authors of Mrs. Fiske's vehicle, "It's a Grand Life," at the Cort, bear the unique relationship of teacher and pupil. Williams started his play as part of the obligatory work in Prof. Hughes' drama classes at Columbia and its idea so enthralled the latter he got together with the student to whip it into professional shape for Broadway.

* * *

The Theater Guild will bring Turheney's "A Month in the Country" to town on March 17. As an evidence of earnest intent, they placed it in rehearsal, they, along with Mr. Shaw, being firmly convinced of the importance of being earnest.

Alla Nazimova, Dudley Digges and Henry Travers head the cast and the busy Reuben Mamoulian is staging it. Who remembers when Mamoulian was merely a misspelled name when and if it got into print?

* * *

This same Henry Travers, incidentally, is to be in the Guild's revival of "R. U. R." when that Capek jeer at the machine age takes over the Martin Beck stage for one week on Monday night. Others concerned in the acting will be Earle Larimore, Sylvia Field, Sydney Greenstreet, Harry Mestayer, Frederick Roland, Helen Tilden and Albert Van Dekker.

Of course, you recall "Sun Up." They finally had to tear down the theater to stop it. Well, now we're to see how the other half lives. A negro musical play called "Sun Down" is in rehearsal and threatening to sink Broadway next month.

* * *

Martin Brown, who arrived from England last week, is lending a hand in the direction of the play, "A Roman Gentleman," in which Hal Skelly and Mary Duncan are cavorting in local rehearsal halls. It opens Monday in Philadelphia and is due here the first week in March.

Then Brown will hie him to Hollywood, that beneficent bourn to which all authors go, sooner or later, and some return.

Violin Prodigy Will Appear Here Saturday

Oskar Shumsky, boy violinist, will be soloist at the coming Schelling Children's concert in Jordan Hall, next Saturday morning, at 11 o'clock. He will assist in the concerto for violin and orchestra by Jules Conus. The complete program follows: Fanfares, Liadoff-Glazounow; Beethoven, Overture No. 3, "Leonore;" Tschaikowsky, Symphony No. 5, W. Valkenier (horn solo); Poulenc, Sonata for horn, trumpet and trombone, Messrs. Valkenier, Mager, Rochut; Conus, Concert for violin and orchestra, Oskar Shumsky; Song, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," Skilton, "Indian Dance."

NOBBY HATS HER HOBBY

SHOULD anything happen so that Alice Day, who is starring in "In the Next Room," which will make its first Boston showing at the Scollay Square Olympia next Saturday, could no longer act in pictures and had to find some other line of work, she could turn to hat designing and perhaps become as famous along that line as she is as an actress.

Alice has always liked to design and shape hats; in fact it has been her hobby, a sort of off-screen pastime to counteract her steady acting. And "In the Next Room" she has designed the hats she wears in the picture, in which she plays opposite Jack Mulhall.

She would go to the wardrobe department and have the girl fit a piece of felt on her head; then Alice would give orders as to how it was to be put on, and where it was to go. She did not do the actual sewing, but one hat she sketched on paper to give the general idea.

"In the Next Room" is a First National production based on the successful stage play by Eleanor Robson Belmont and Harriet Ford.

COHAN'S SHOW IS BOSTON BOUND

News from Chicago chronicled the report that George M. Cohan has decided to forego the $1,000,000 offer made to him by motion picture interests to go to Hollywood and write and direct talking pictures for United Artists.

Several weeks ago the announcement was widely heralded of Cohan's enlistment in the ranks of legitimate writers, directors and players who were seceding from the older art of the theater to ally with the studios. In the surprise of the news it was thought at first that the famous stage personage was to permanently desert the legitimate theater in favor of the talking screen.

George Cohan hastened to correct this suspicion, and declaredthat he was to desert his old love only temporarily. He stated that he was gong to see what it was all about, and would return to the legitimate theater to carry on as before.

The latest news makes it apparent that Cohan has exercised his so often used prerogative of changing his mind, and that new loves cannot take the place of the old. He is appearing in Chicago this week in his own big comedy success, "Gambling," and has cancelled dates west of that point. His new route carries him to principal cities eastward and he will appear in this play in Boston beginning March 10 at the Tremont Theater.

Film Who's Who

NORMA SHEARER, screen star, is Canadian by birth. She was born at Montreal and was a society debutante in that city before coming to the United States to seek a screen career. In New York she made the rounds of the theatrical agencies, as so many thousands of other girls have done. She secured her first part as an extra girl in New York in 1921. After working in several studios as an extra she met Louis B. Mayer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The latter arranged for a test of Miss Shearer, which turned out to be a revelation. She was immediately placed under contract and went to the coast. After playing small roles in two pictures, she was made a lead in her third film.

Norma Shearer

Her pictures have been: "Pleasure Mad," "Broken Barriers," "The Snob," "Excuse Me," "He Who Gets Slapped," "Lady of the Night," "His Secretary," "The Actress," "A Lady of Chance," "The Waning Sex," "Upstage," "The Student Prince," "The Trial of Mary Dugan" and "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney."

Peppy Strutter

ELEANOR BROOKS

GAYETY GIRL VEGETARIAN

CARROTS, beets and cabbage are the three vegetables which keep La Villa Maye, now starring at the Gayety, healthy and full of pep, according to no less an authority than that young woman herself. She appears twice a day throughout the season, works up new "gags," practices new songs and dances, and in general does a good day's work. She, however, thrives upon her busy program and says it is all due to her diet.

She prefers the carrots and beets cooked without too much water and insists that the water in which the vegetables are cooked be served with them.

Crooks—Horowitz

Recitals of special interest to be given on Sunday afternoons in Symphony Hall are those of Richard Crooks, the American tenor who is to appear there on March 2, and Vladimir Horowitz, the famous Russian violinist who is scheduled for the afternoon of March 9.

LOVE SCENES ADD THRILLS TO TALKIES

THE talkies have given love its chance to show itself in all its glory, according to Dorothy Jordan, feminine lead with Ramon Novarro in "Devil May Care," now at Loew's State. This is Miss Jordan's third picture, her others having been "Black Magic" and "The Taming of the Shrew." She was formerly on stage in musical comedy.

Dorothy Jordan

"Love, as an emotion, had never reached perfection in interpretation, until the coming of the talking pictures,' she says. "Let me enlarge my statement by explaining a little of what talkies have brought to romance in drama.

"In romantic novels we had description only, without the physical reality of either voice or body. In silent pictures we had a visualization of an individual without voice, a visualization, which had the great advantage of being able to move swiftly from place to place, plus the ability of emphasis through the invaluable 'close-up.' On the stage we had both player in person and the voice. The stage, however, has always been handicapped by physical restrictions.

"Talking pictures wiped out the disadvantages named, almost overnight. A screened visualization of an actor or actress is now added to their voice. We now have dialogue combined with that great advantage of the screen, its marvelous facility of movement. In 'Twinkle Twinkle,' 'The Treasure Girl' and other musical comedies I have played many love scenes, but none more satisfactory than those in which Ramon Novarro whispers to me in an inn room, and later in a French chateau. From a stage these whispers, intimate as they are, could not be heard. Talking picture horns make them audible, no matter how far back you may sit.

"Further, singing is so much more effective in talking pictures than in opera, comic opera or musical comedy. Everybody knows that it is almost impossible to get the words of a song in a theater, if you sit farther back than eight or nine rows. In talkies, however, by mechanical arrangements in the recording, an orchestra can never drown out a voice."

ENGINEERS [illegible] are confronted with [illegible] of the most vexing problems [illegible] ... the present [illegible] are on the [illegible] difficulties.

THE BOSTON [illegible] ... Springfield [illegible] ... tune in WBZ [illegible] program [illegible] listener [illegible]

THE TERRITORY affected by these disturbances as plotted out by WBZA [illegible] represents [illegible] ... Boston people. One piece of the disturbance [illegible] with Springfield [illegible] ... and only [illegible] to the supposition that unusual good atmospheric conditions gave sufficient strength to the Springfield signal to mess up the Boston output.

SUGGESTION has been made that the Boston WBZA transmitter be shut [illegible] ... remedy [illegible] Springfield's power. The solution is not favorably considered by station officials. In the first place [illegible] certain mineral deposits between Boston and Worcester would absorb the Springfield signal as was the condition prior to the synchronization of the two stations several years ago. In the second place an increase in power at Springfield would make storms of protest from listeners [illegible] ... Springfield [illegible] ... who are still [illegible] complain bitterly that no other station can be brought in while the local transmitter is on the air. If greater power should be given Springfield there would be endless local complaints.

LISTENERS should not be hasty in diagnosing their own special radio [illegible]. It is a mistake to jump to the conclusion that bad radio reception generally is the fault of WBZ. It is just as much a mistake to suppose your receiver is at fault if temporary disturbance manifests itself. If trouble is found on WBZ's wave [illegible] ... quickly. If disturbance covers several wavebands you may attribute it to local interference, atmospherics or fault in your receiver.

False Faces

Everywhere you see women wearing false faces. They don't know they are wearing them. Their faces are covered with creams and powders in their effort to appear beautiful. They can't be blamed for wanting to look beautiful whether it is to please themselves or please others. It's up to all of us to make the best possible appearance. But true beauty is based on a good complexion and not made up of lotions, powder and paint. If your skin is rough and coarse, or disfigured with pimples, blotches or other blemishes, get rid of these first. Apply a little Cadum Ointment to-night when you retire and begin restoring your skin to what Nature intended it to be. Stop trying to hide the impurities of your skin with all kinds of creams, powders and lotions. Remove them with Cadum Ointment, a French preparation made in America from the original formula. A nightly massage with a mixture of one part cold cream and one part Cadum Ointment keeps the skin in fine condition.

Much suffering from skin troubles may be avoided by the timely use of this wonderful remedy. It stops the itching at once and is very soothing and healing, wherever the skin is irritated or inflamed. Cadum Ointment is good for eczema, pimples, blotches, chafing, rash, ringworm, cuts, insect bites, sores, cold-sores, tetter, etc.

An Investment that does not fluctuate in value—
Life Insurance

OWNERS of life insurance have had occasion recently to compare the stability of this form of investment with that of even the highest grade securities.

A chart of the market price averages of leading stocks for twenty years shows an irregular line that rises and dips, sometimes vertically, with "peaks and valleys".

There are no "depressions" in the investment values of life insurance policies. They do not fluctuate with business cycles. From year to year, the 44 million Metropolitan Life Insurance policies show a steady increase in values to policy-holders.

The man who regularly invests part of his earnings in life insurance can go to sleep each night with the knowledge that he is building an estate of the greatest security and with a sure investment return for every dollar paid in.

Life insurance is an investment whose value constantly increases the longer it is kept in force.

CHAPTER 10

DULCY knew that Angela and Vincent were perfectly happy in the moonlit solitude of the terrace, and that Mrs. Forbes was having the time of her life talking to Van Dyke. But Gordon wore a frankly worried air and Mr. Forbes seemed displeased about something, so she knew the moment had come for the hostess to show her ingenuity in bringing everybody together for a good time.

She gloated as she thought that Gordon probably didn't realize how discerning she was. She had detected that Mr. Forbes was too dignified to like games. And she had an idea for entertaining him that was nothing short of inspiration.

Dulcy hurried out to the terrace.

Forbes seemed to brighten noticeably as soon as she left the room. He turned toward Gordon with a friendly air and, apologizing for having spoken hastily that afternoon, said that he would like a moment to talk business with him.

Gordon listened intently while Forbes went into the history, lustre and profits of artificial pearls. He sat spellbound as Forbes enlarged on the possibility of introducing monogrammed shirt studs to the trade. Success was in his grasp, after all, if only nothing interrupted them. He would try to complete the deal now while Forbes was in good humor. When Dulcy came back anything might happen, and probably would.

"Mr. Van Dyke's going to play for us."

"Come, Mr. Van Dyke," Dulcy urged him, ignoring Gordon's frantic signals for her to stop. "You're going to play for us, aren't you? What was that piece you played at at Mrs. Kennedy's the other day—the nice long one?"

"Really," he protested vigorously. "I don't think I should play. Mr. Forbes and Mr. Smith would much prefer to discuss jewels, I am sure."

With a distracted air, Gordon took some sample pearls from his pocket and handed them to Mr. Forbes, hoping against hope that Dulcy would see, and understand that this was no time to interrupt.

"You'd like to hear Mr. Van Dyke play, wouldn't you?"

Forbes grunted assent, hardly knowing what he was in for. Drawing his chair closer to Gordon's he

FIVE HELD AFTER RAID ON CLUB

The five men arrested when federal prohibition agents raided the Faneuil Hall Athletic Club in Friend st., North End, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today before U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney on charges of violating the national prohibition act.

Three of the group, Rocco Palladino of Hanover st., and Eugene Martella of North st., North End, and Joseph Palladino of Princeton st., Medford, were held in bonds of $1000 each, while the others, Anthony Circo of Parkway, Revere, and Richard Risso of Billerica place, Boston, were held in $500 each.

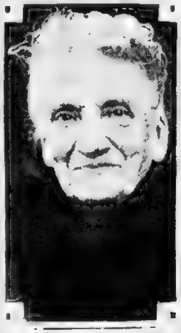
An ingenious device for replenishing the liquor supply of the club was discovered by the raiding officers. By means of a pole to which a line and heavy hook were attached it was possible for those in charge of the place to receive sacks of liquor from an adjoining building. When the liquor ran low the line was lowered and a fresh supply was hoisted to the clubrooms, agents said.

Suburbanite in Plea That Law Let Him Plant Sundays

Amendment of the laws relating to the Sabbath to enable suburbanites to work in their gardens and to make private repairs on their dwellings and garages, was urged at a legislative hearing today.

Vernon Mason of Dover declared that a man who has no opportunity to work on his property on week days should not be compelled to break the Sunday [illegible] by engaging in reasonable activities on that day.

Oldest Grad



Mrs. Maria Louisa Josephine Perry-Currier of Cedar st., Roxbury, a 91-year-old widow, is the oldest living graduate of the Roxbury high school and is to be the guest of honor at the reunion dance of the Roxbury Memorial high school for girls a week from Wednesday night. Mrs. Perry-Currier entered the school in 1854 and was graduated two years later.

OLDEST MALE GRAD SOUGHT

Who is the oldest male graduate of the Roxbury high school?

The Alumni Association of the school is seeking him to escort the oldest living graduate, Mrs. Maria Louisa Josephine Perry-Currier, 91, to the reunion entertainment to be held Wednesday evening, February 26.

Nearly a score of years ago the boys were ejected from the old Roxbury high school then on Warren st. and the present Roxbury Memorial High School for Girls which succeeded it has been an all girls school.

And now the Alumni Association wonders what has become of the hundreds of boys who graduated from there.

Edmund H. Cook, class of 1876, who lives at 68 Perkins st., Jamaica Plain, is the oldest known male graduate but President Dorothy Thompson Barsons '16 is anxious to learn if there is another aspirant for the honor of oldest graduate of the school.

Mrs. Currier, whom she believes is the oldest alumna, graduated in 1856. She is hale and hearty and keeps house at 2 Cedar st., Roxbury, where she was married December 29, 1861, and where she has lived continuously ever since.

Four years ago she had her first book published and in 1928 this was followed by another book of poems, Beacon Lights of Comfort and Cheer.

THIEVES SENT THREAT TO RICH MAN

Robbers Demand That Victim Redeem Stolen Property With $15,000 Cash

Salem police are searching for two young men who are believed to have made telephone calls to the home of Joseph L. Simon, early today, threatening him with death unless he redeemed jewelry stolen from his home in January by bringing $15,000 to a spot in the rear of the Salem depot.

Simon, who is a wealthy real estate operator and well known Republican leader, informed the police of the threats and an immediate effort was made to trace the calls.

The two men wanted checked [illegible] Salem [illegible] shortly after [illegible] and are known to have used a nearby pay station for several calls.

About 1 o'clock this morning Simon was aroused from his sleep by a telephone call. At the other end was a man with a husky voice. He said:

"This talk that your jewelry is in New York is a lot of bunk. We have the jewelry in our possession. We cannot get rid of it because the coppers are hot on our trail. Do you want your jewelry back?"

"Yes," replied Simon.

"Then we will do business with you. The jewelry is valued at $30,000. Give us $15,000 and bring it at 2 o'clock to the rear of Salem depot. We will not harm you and you will get your jewelry back in [illegible]," said the voice.

SECOND THREAT

Simon, thinking the call was a joke, went back to bed, but was aroused again at 3 o'clock. This time the stranger's voice was more firm. He informed Simon that if he thought they were joking he was making a mistake and that if he didn't come at 3 o'clock to the dark spot he would be a sorry man. "Remember this is your last chance and be sure and do not call in the cops," said the voice.

Simon, very much perturbed at this call, notified Lieut. Charles Duffee at Salem police headquarters who rounded up an emergency squad and with the aid of telephone operators traced the call to a Salem hotel.

Rev. Francis W. Maley, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Lynn, laid today before Mayor Fred Manning a $500,000 plan of relief for the poor and unemployed.

JAIL THREAT IN HARVARD RIOT

Jail sentences were promised today in East Cambridge court by Judge Arthur P. Stone in fining Henry T. Conway, 23, Harvard student, a total of $40 as the result of a riot by students in a Cambridge tunnel train.

The students were returning to Cambridge after the Harvard hockey victory over the University Club at the Boston Garden.

Conway pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in a public conveyance and to destroying personal property. He was fined $20 on each count.

A charge of destroying advertising signs was filed at request of the Eastern Advertising Co.

In imposing the fines, Judge Stone said:

"For this time I will impose fines but I issue warning to all students that the next time anything of this kind happens, jail sentences will be imposed to meet the situation.

LET ALIENS WHO VIOLATE LAWS BE DEPORTED

Send Them Back Unless They Accept Citizenship, Says Dr. Poling

Those who continue to be aliens [illegible] electing to remain out of American citizenship but by violating our laws and deriding our Constitution, should be sent back where they started from.

This declaration was made today at the Park st. church by Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York, conductor of a youth crusade at that church.

America, he said, is the land of opportunity and good if immigrants take the good road, and he cited the case of a friend's father who arrived here years ago unable to read or write.

He became a citizen, educated himself and now his son, overcoming physical and economic handicaps, has risen to a position of national distinction.

"It was America that did it," declared Dr. Poling, "and the way of Jesus Christ with a man is like the way of American citizenship only incomparably greater.

"Be not conformed to this world" was the clear-cut challenge of a great captain of the early church. He followed immediately with a declaration equally emphatic, "but be ye transformed."

What did Paul mean? Certainly he did not mean that Christians should be disobedient to civil authority. Christ himself died unjustly in recognition of civil authority. He had power to come down from the cross. He could have escaped.

Paul is not suggesting that we dodge our taxes and specifically he does not mean refuse or fail to vote. He was committed squarely to the admonition of his Master, "Render unto Caesar the things that belong unto Caesar."

Some there have been who have concluded that this incomparable Roman Jew was calling Christians to a life of solitude, sending them en masse to the desert or monastery. He was not.

Both by teaching and by example he made clear the fact that the Christian is to practice his faith in the open, is to meet life where life is, conquering its temptations and rising above its selfishness.

"But certainly we do know that the man who heard the Macedonian call did not look upon the world as a safe spiritual guide. In his day, as in our own day, many people were inclined to live by the code of "everybody is doing it." That code is always either unmoral or immoral. Those who measure their lives by it accept lower and yet lower standards.

GOV. GREEN IGNORES LIGGETT'S STORY OF GAY LIQUOR PARTY

WON'T DIGNIFY CHARGES BY MAKING REPLY

Michigan Executive Greeted by Allen on Visit Here; Will Speak Tonight

[illegible] Detroit officials today branded as [illegible] the statement of Walter W. Liggett, magazine writer, before a committee of Congress. Governor Fred W. Green of Michigan, whom Liggett named, declared in the city today that he would not dignify his accuser by making a reply.

Gov. Green was here as national commander of the United Spanish War Veterans and guest of the Massachusetts department, which he will address tonight at Faneuil Hall.

Liggett, whose previous charges about graft and corruption in Boston were repeated by him yesterday before the judiciary committee of the national House of Representatives, charged also that liquor was served and scantily clad dancers performed at a Michigan party which high officials attended.

REFUSES TO COMMENT

"I would not dignify this man (Liggett) on his charges by replying to them," said Governor Green at the State House, where he visited Governor Allen [illegible] of him after the [illegible] Boston [illegible].

According to the [illegible] of Liggett at Washington, [illegible] Michigan officials [illegible] Gov. Green, Police Commissioner William P. Rutledge of Detroit, former Mayor John A. Smith and four municipal judges and other officials attended the party, which he described and which took place [illegible] November.

One of the judges said today at Detroit that nothing stronger than ice cream was served and that the entertainment was provided not by [illegible] dancers but by a boys' band of 40 pieces.

Other officials [illegible] Liggett's statements as "lies." It was [illegible] at Lansing that Gov. Green would gladly appear before the committee of Congress should its [illegible] be desired.

POLICE HEAD AROUSED

An attempt to discredit Gov. Green" was the characterization made of Liggett's story by Judge Homer Ferguson of Detroit. He said there were speeches at the party, band playing and songs and dances by well known professional performers.

"I don't go where liquor is served or where dancers entertain. Anybody who says I do is a liar," said Police Commissioner Rutledge.

Governor Green was asked point blank today by Governor Allen during their conversation in the executive offices if he was going to run again. He replied:

"A good many people want to know that, so I won't commit myself here."

Governor Green was met at Huntington Avenue Station of the Boston & Albany by a committee composed of Col. Daniel J. Murphy, Department Comdr. Charles I. McCarthy, Past National Comdr. Col. Edward Gihon, Past National Chief of Staff Timothy W. Kelly, Dr. Peter O. Shea, past surgeon general; Past Department Comdrs. Charles J. Flanagan and Richard Flynn, Maj. Thomas Murphy of Natick and others.

He was Governor Allen's guest at luncheon at the Parker House. He also visited Mayor Curley at City Hall. His address tonight at Faneuil Hall is part of an observance of the anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor.

"We have heard out in Michigan how [illegible] you [illegible] thing in Massachusetts," the visiting chief executive told Governor Allen.

They talked of taxation. The Bay State Governor showed his guest a photograph of his baby son, and Governor Green promptly mentioned his own grandchild.

"I'd like to tell you all about my grandchild Nancy," he said, "but if I talked a week I wouldn't get any further than her early [illegible], so I'll desist."

He was presented with a pair of gloves and a replica of the State seal by Governor Allen.

Asked for comment on the election in the Second Massachusetts Congressional District, where William J. Granfield, Democrat, ran off with the honors in a Republican stronghold, Governor Green said:

"The election was somewhat disturbing to the Republican party. However, the dominant party, when industry is down, always suffers at an election."

COAST GUARD TRIAL ENDED

The trial of bootlegging charges against Frank Lepore, coast guardsman, was completed at the Navy Yard today, but its outcome is "nobody's business," in the words of Comdr. Hiram R. Searles, commandant of the Eastern division Coast Guard.

Lepore, whose home is in Roxbury, is a gunner's mate, first class, on the cutter Mojave. He suffered a gunshot wound in his home several months ago, the gun being accidentally discharged in the hands of his bride, he reported.

After being a patient in the Chelsea Marine Hospital, he was given a leave of absence to convalesce, and according to charges set up himself up in a Charlestown speakeasy catering to his mates on the Mojave.

He was arrested by the civilian authorities and turned over to the military for court martial. In the presence of a coast guard officer his bride is alleged to have attempted to swallow a piece of paper upon which appeared a list of the names of about 20 of his customers on the ship.

'Snob' Sponsor Raps 'Myth' of Lincoln

He ridiculed the reading habits of modern young folk, denounced the jargon of the modern literary training, [illegible] from [illegible] attacked the system which keeps boys unfit for book learning in school, and declared continuation school worth less than [illegible].

He reminded his audience that Lincoln's few months of instruction came from a man teacher, not from a little 20-year-old girl who had gone from high school to normal school and was crammed with notions.

Naming the seven books that Lincoln read as a boy, Prof. Rogers said they had served to develop the most superb prose style in America's history.

The modern boy, he said, would be flooded with books good and indifferent, magazine and fiction. Advertising slogans, motion pictures and newsstand fiction constitute the average reading [illegible]. And the product of [illegible] training write nothing but [illegible] jargon.

ASK MAXIMUM TAX LIMIT

A maximum tax limit for a period of years was asked for Boston in a communication sent by a joint committee representing the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Boston Real Estate Exchange to the legislative committee on municipal finance.

The suggestion was discussed as a substitute for the present practice of endeavoring to fix an exact tax limit each year at a [illegible] legislative hearing.

The communication was signed by Albert M. Chandler for the Chamber and Tarrant P. King for the Exchange and expressed a belief that the plan of a maximum limit should be a reasonable compromise between those who favor abolition of the tax limit and those who wish to retain some measure of legislative control over appropriations in Boston.

Urge Amendment of Card Game Law

Amending the law to allow charitable and religious organizations to conduct card games with prizes was urged today at a legislative hearing by Representative Francis J. Hickey of Boston.

Green Six Buries Amherst, 11 to 1

Booma and Johnson displayed some pretty team work in taking the puck down the ice. They also had a lion's share in the scoring with Johnson tallying four times.

In anticipation of an easy workout the Green was slow in starting, but soon some fast action started and Dartmouth went into an unthreatened lead.

Record Entry List for St. Joe's Show

A record-breaking number of boys will clash Saturday night in the 160 and 175-pound classes when St. Joseph's T. A. S. stages its weekly amateur boxing show at Mechanics Building.

There are also five other classes carded, 112, 118, 126, 135 and 147 pounds.

MALONEY IS VICTOR BY K. O. IN 4TH

By RINGSIDE

SOME say this, and some say that. But the record book will say that Jim Maloney, South Boston warrior, knocked out Al Friedman of Roslindale in the fourth round of their battle at Mechanics Building.

The show marked the opening of the Argonne A. A., and the net proceeds will be given to the fund for the family of Officer James Tro[illegible] slain recently while attempting to arrest an alleged burglar.

Opinion of the five thousand fans who crowded Mechanics to witness a very fine boxing program, is sharply divided on the cause of the abrupt ending of the main bout. Up to the fourth round, Friedman car[illegible] the fight to Maloney, and at [illegible] of the third stanza, there was little to choose between the men.

Many fans thought that Friedman had a slight edge on Shamus, although the South Boston warrior seemed not to have hit his real stride.

In the fourth round Friedman was counted out. To Ringside, who stared through the smoke, it appeared that Maloney clipped Friedman on the side of the head and followed it up with a left uppercut that sent the Roslindale boy through the ropes.

END COMES SUDDENLY

Friedman fell heavily, striking his head on the edge of the ring [illegible] arise, he was counted out. [illegible] at the ringside, it appeared as if Friedman, in a desperate attempt to land a haymaker, lost his balance as Maloney shifted and hurled himself through the ropes, striking his head, knocked himself out.

The climax came so quickly that it was difficult to tell just what happened. The only thing certain is that Maloney won and will appear on the Sharkey-Scott preliminary card against Moise Bousquillon of France on Feb. 27.

McCARTHY WINS BY KO

Jack McCarthy and John Sweeney met in one of the two semi final six rounders. The pair former amateurs, were looked upon to give the fans a thrill and they did. McCarthy won the contest by knocking Sweeney out in the third round. McCarthy knocked him down in the first for the count of nine.

Harry Devine of Worcester won the other six-rounder, defeating Pancho Villa of New Bedford. It was a great battle. Devine was former amateur and went overseas with Uncle Sam's Olympic team in 1928.

Frank Herlihy of Lynn defeated Tuffy Taylor in his four-rounder, while Eddie Callahan of Nashua won from Joe Vincha. Billy Gonyla, Worcester, knocked out Roy Bailey of Charlestown in the third round.

Jimmy Rogers of Cambridge scored a technical K. O. over Ted Coolidge of Manchester, N. H., in the fourth frame, and Hot Chocolate of Cuba defeated Lou Petrone, Worcester, in four rounds.

Bruins Defeat Pirates by 4 to 3

Fort Erie, Ont., Feb. 13—George Owen was handed a major penalty as the Boston Bruins chalked up their 28th victory of the season by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates 4 to 3.

After several minutes of loose play in the first period, MacKinnon took a minor for holding Gaynor. Weiland jammed with Fraser at the Pittsburgh goal and opened a gash above his left eye. Fraser was forced out. Boston's new forward line, Owen, Carson and Connors, went in and stormed the Pirates' net. Owen knocked Miller down in one drive and drew a major penalty.

Soccer Player Has Idea He Is Shires

Fall River, Feb. 13—A challenge to a few of the members of the Fall River soccer club to get in the boxing ring with him was issued by Nick Stewart, New Bedford soccer player, who made his debut in the boxing game Monday night at Bristol, R. I., when he was defeated by Jack Mackey on a decision. Stewart stated that he would like to fight soccer players in the future, and particularly the Marksmen, and that he would take on the whole club if necessary.

Great Victory!

New York, Feb. 13—The Boston Chess Club defeated the New York Athletic Club team in the first round of the Eastern championship contests. The Boston team consisted of W. C. Cogswell, R. M. Kimball, N. E. Bonney and Oliver M. Young.

GREEN SIX HAS CHANCE TO WIN

With the playing squads limited to 12 men Dartmouth's varsity hockey has an excellent chance to defeat Harvard varsity and square the series in the return game at the Boston Garden Saturday night.

Harvard's great wealth of spares has prevailed over many opponents but in the agreement with Dartmouth that the playing talent be restricted to 12 men the Crimson finds itself up against a team that appears just as strong and powerful.

There is no discounting the fact that the presence of Bobbie Giddens in the Harvard second line will be an important factor in Saturday's result. Giddens, believing that he would be declared eligible after the mid-year examination results were announced, has practiced faithfully with the various Harvard teams in the Garden.

Coach Brainy Bower of Dartmouth is depending largely on the sturdiness and brilliance of his defense. Player for player, Harvard has the call over Dartmouth in the forward line but the Green showed a very fine defense in the last meeting between these rivals.

Hank Johnson and Capt. Hal Booma, in Dartmouth's outer defense and Junie Hawkes in goal will be the trio that Harvard will have to overcome.

Baseball Practice Begins at Williams

Williamstown, Feb. 13—Baseball practice got underway at Williams College when a squad of 16 battery men reported to Coach Art Fox for indoor workouts in the cage. Capt. Alexander assisted the Purple mentor. Candidates Bright, pitcher, and Smith, catcher, are the only veteran battery men in college. The entire squad will be called out for indoor work next week.

Ryder Names 2-Mile Team in B.A.A. Meet

IF Jack Carew can step a fast enough quarter-mile in the time trials for the B. A. A. games on the Heights' board track today, he will run his first relay race of the 1930 season for Boston College against Holy Cross on Saturday p. m.

Coach Jack Ryder has confirmed the personnel of his two-mile gang. Tommy Meagher, Tom Daly, Jack O'Brien and Brendon Moynahan will race against Harvard, Holy Cross, M. I. T., Bates and Bowdoin.

But the makeup of the one-mile outfit depends on Carew's ability to upset the dope. Tom O'Brien, Joe McCabe, Bob Sullivan and Capt. Bill Mulcahy ran on the mile team last Saturday night at the Millrose games and are expecting to run again at the B. A. A. session.

Carew has been coming along fast and has a good chance of breaking in. It won't do any harm if Ryder gives him a try. Boston College has flopped twice before Holy Cross this season and Carew's addition might bring about a change in fortune.

Zeus Wilczewski has only been out on the track for the past fortnight, but is running in close to his best form. Zeus is always a good competitor, whether in shape or not, and he's expected to give Monty Wells, Ben Hedges and the rest of the sterling hurdlers a battle over the tall timbers.

Arthur Ward, sophomore distancer, has entered the B. A. A. two-mile run. Ryder still has faith in the prediction that Ward has the makings of another Leo Lermond.

Terrier Coach Limits Entries in N. E. A. A. A. U. Events

Coach Freddie Burns of the Boston University track team will limit his entries in the open N. E. A. A. A. U. events, in conjunction with the B. A. A. schoolboy meet Saturday afternoon at the Arena, to a quartet of sprinters and one man in the 1000-yard run. The Terrier coach is making this move on account of both the schoolboy and the big meet at night coming on the same day and he does not wish to run his men in both meets.

Both varsity and freshman relay quartets will run Saturday night and Burns cares more about having his charges perform well in the evening and will not run the risk of tiring any of them on account of the first meet.

He will, however, allow both Norm Bicknel and Lin Pattee to run in the 40-yard dash in the first meet. Pattee will run in the Briggs 40 in the evening, and Bicknel will run on the varsity relay four. But the short sprint in the afternoon will not handicap either of the boys in their showings later in the day but will simply serve as a good workout.

Two Records Set in Hub Relay Carnival

Two records were broken at the Boston high school relay carnival at the East Armory. English high took one of the honors and Hyde Park the other. The big Blue and Blue medley quartet, made up of Wisnewski, Schwartz, Freno and Scanlon, beat Latin and made the record time of 1:48 seconds, bettering the mark English made last year by four-fifths of a second.

In the district medley race, Hyde Park's four, composed of Bondarek, Russo, E. Donlan and Durst, outran Jamaica Plain's old mark of 1:52 1-5 seconds made in 1928. Brighton also got under this Jamaica time when it did 1:51 3-5 seconds.

Walker Will Weigh 165 for Lomski Go

Detroit, Feb. 13 (AP)—Mickey Walker, who regards his bout with Leo Lomski in Olympia ring tomorrow night as a step toward the light heavyweight title, will weigh in at around 165 pounds while the Aberdeen, Wash., fighter will have a seven or eight-pound advantage.

The third man in the ring will be Elmer McClelland who was selected last night and declared by managers of both fighters to be acceptable.

CHANGE SOUGHT IN B. U. A. A. LAW

The House of Representatives the student organization at Boston University, will petition the athletic council in its next meeting tomorrow to rescind its ruling of a year ago which abolished the custom of electing captains for all of the athletic teams of the University and substituted the method of having the coaches of the various teams appoint a leader for each contest.

The student organization voted unanimously to attempt to bring about the old system of having regular elections of captains for all of the recognized athletic teams. The House of Representatives also voted to petition the council to make all awards of athletic insignia at official college assemblies.

John D. Brewer has been appointed to attend the meeting of the athletic council Friday afternoon and present these two measures for the approval of that organization. As Brewer is the regularly appointed student representative to the council, he is entitled to a seat in the meeting and has the right to demand a hearing so the next move will be up to the governing body.

When the athletic council adopted the policy of abolishing elections of captains last spring, it was agreed to give the plan a trial for one year. During the past football season the plan was an utter failure and the players on the team neither co-operated with or respected the various appointees to leadership as they had with the elected leaders in past years.

Monty Wells Wins in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Feb. 13—Monty Wells, B. A. A. indoor hurdle champion, captured the 45-yard hurdles in 6 1-5 seconds at the annual Meadowbrook games here.

The University of Penn relay team defeated Georgetown to win the Wanamaker trophy. Sol Furth, New York University, finished second and Steve Pfeiffer, Pennsylvania, third.

H. Davidson of Millrose, with a 10-yard handicap, romped home ahead, in the 1000-yard handicap. R. Pfaltzgraff, unattached, who had a handicap of 40 yards, was second, and S. Wudyka, Meadowbrook, third. Davidson's time was 2.19 1-5.

Furth speeded to victory in the 45-yard sprint handicap for men, winning by a margin of about a yard from R. Quinn, University of Maryland, in 5 1-10 seconds. F. Alden of Swarthmore was third.

Stella Walsh, Cleveland, took the 45-yard international sprint for girls in 5 8-10 seconds. Myrtle Cook, Canada, was second and Helen Matthews, Meadowbrook, third.

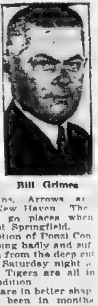
DEADLOCKED for third place in the Canadian-American League race, the Boston Tigers and the Philadelphia Arrows will play a very important game at the Garden tonight.

The Tigers have been courageously fighting their way out of a slump, which dropped them from the top of the standing to fourth place. They were going along in fine style until a combination of Springfield Indians and a flash light photographer broke their string of four straight victories in the City of Homes last Monday night.



Bill Grimes

Until they were upset by Springfield, the Tigers have scored wins over the Indians, Arrows and twice defeated New Haven. They were all set to go places when they fell in West Springfield.

With the exception of Ponzi Contant, who is limping badly and suffering much pain from the deep cut he received last Saturday night at the Garden, the Tigers are all in fine physical condition.

Mentally, they are in better shape then they have been in months. They feel that they have the sign on the Arrows, will break the tie and step into undisputed possession of third place after tonight's game.

LINE WORKING SMOOTHLY

Capt. Deacon Waite, who is well out in front in the race for individual honors, will start at center with Yank Boyd and Johnny Loucks on the wings. This line is functioning smoothly at present and all have been scoring with more regularity than has marked their play at any time this season.

Although he has not received as much credit for his wonderful ability as some of the other Can-Am centers, Deacon Waite is a standout. There are a number of N. H. L. clubs who cannot produce Waite's equal. He is a goal-getter par excellence but equally, if not more important, he is one of the greatest play makers in the pro ranks.

With wings of the Gainor and Clapper, Bill Cook or Conacher and Jackson type, Waite would be the talk of hockey. He has no peer as a stick handler and is a hard worker who is always giving his best, regardless of the score. No gamer player ever pulled on a pair of skates than Deacon Waite.

Flanked by Sonny Manning, who is beginning to produce, and Clark Heyd, Eddie Burke will be at center on the second line. This trio is beginning to flash and can be relied upon to hold its own against the Arrows.

REGAN ON DEFENSE

Bill Regan will start on the defense with Reg Mackey and as the big fellow has not scored for a couple of games, he is bound to be sensational this evening. Regan furnishes some of the biggest thrills offered by the Tigers with his [illegible] end rushes, but he has been [illegible] to keep the puck on his stick after getting through the defense.

He is going to try shooting from outside, instead of carrying right in on the goalie and may meet with better success.

Lessard, Andrews and Cahill will open for the Arrows, with Bob Taylor, Bradley and Klein working on the second line. Taylor turned in his best performances of the season against the Tigers in the last two games.

McCoy and Gardini Clash in Mat Feature at Arena

BUTH SEEK CHANCE FOR TITLE BOUT

Jack Conway Picks McCoy to Throw Gardini

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 13—Jack Conway was talking wrestling with Joe Stecher, former champion of the world, who is billed to clash with Gus Sonnenberg at Coral Gables on February 19.

When asked to pick the winner of the Bibber McCoy-Renato Gardini wrestling bout at the Arena in Boston tonight, Jack said: "I'm letting the family jewels ride on McCoy. The Cambridge youngster showed me enough wrestling class the night he battled Sonnenberg to rate a little backing. McCoy has youth, aggressiveness and much natural ability.

Jack's 1930 record for picking winners follows

Won	Lost	Pct

BOB "BIBBER" McCOY, Cambridge giant, will return to the wars in the Arena tonight when he will meet Renato Gardini, Italian idol, in the feature finish match of Paul Bowser's all-star tournament.

The battle between the brilliant young McCoy and the veteran Gardini will headline a card of six bouts.

McCoy, despite his youth and inexperience, is a slight favorite to whip Gardini tonight. The former Holy Cross athlete has adopted the flying tackle of Gus Sonnenberg, and he considers he is as good at this style of wrestling as Gus is. The other topnotchers have been unable to stand up to the withering crash of Sonny's tackle and Mc[illegible] Sonnenberg has not [illegible] Gardini or any man in [illegible] up before his [illegible]

Gardini, with victories or draws against many outstanding wrestlers is confident of victory. He is shooting for a match with Sonnenberg in this city and is in superb condition to give McCoy the battle of his life.

Count Zarynoff, colorful Russian star, is to meet Frank Yusko of South Boston in the semi-final match which will be one fall to a finish. Zarynoff by his amazing acrobatic style of wrestling, has become a favorite here. The agile Count will be favored to beat Yusko.

The preliminary card is up to the high standard of the finish matches. Ed George, undefeated University of Michigan star, will try for his 17th straight victory against Carl Lemle of South Boston.

Joe DeVito, rugged Italian heavyweight from Providence, will clash with Jack Sherry, heavyweight champion of Ohio who has been plowing through the New England wrestlers at a sensational pace.

Axel Anderson of Quincy will be paired with Jack Albright of this city, and Wladek Zbyszko, former heavyweight champion of the world, will tackle Bull Smith of Manchester, N. H.

Rival Fives Clash

The West End House will play the strong Lynn Y. H. M. A. team, composed of former high school and college stars, at the West End House Gym on Blossom st., West End, Saturday evening.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, "Golf's Greatest Teacher"

THE ATTEMPT TO CONCENTRATE IS WRONG

Each golf shot you make requires your attention. Your attention must be centered somewhere and, since the ball is to be stroked away, naturally the attention centers there. Now attention is not concentration in a golfing sense. You can have your attention centered in one thing and at one spot and not be conscious of thinking about it. But you cannot concentrate on any one thing without being conscious of the effort to concentrate. Thus in having your attention centered on the ball you give the matter of swinging your golf club and projecting the ball your attention as regards the action as a whole. You look at the ball not because you want to concentrate on it, but because you want to see it. It is the natural thing to see it. You see it just as you would see the head of a nail which you would drive with a hammer. If you thought of your arm or your wrist while "concentrating" as you drove the nail, you next would be concerned, no doubt, with some nasty language and the medicine cabinet. That's the golfing difference between concentrating and centering your attention.

No Red Sox Holdouts as Contracts Pour in

By JOE CASHMAN

SIGNED contracts are piling into the Red Sox office at Fenway Park almost as fast as Secretaries Hy Mason and [illegible] can get around to read them.

[illegible]

President Bob Quinn may have many things to worry about but holdouts [illegible] prove that the Sox boss must be [illegible] players reasonable [illegible] Bayne and Hurs Harmon [illegible] Bob Asbjornson.

BAYNE, a diminutive southpaw, is the second oldest player [illegible] Cleveland [illegible]

[illegible] he will probably have to show a lot more than he did last year [illegible] on the team.

Harmon and Asbjornson are kids who went South with the team last season and were farmed out to Pittsfield.

Hurs may not make the grade this season but judging from what [illegible] last spring, we wouldn't be surprised if he developed into [illegible]

So it looks as though Mr. Shawkey will have to seek somebody else to give away, but perhaps can persuade Bob Quinn to [illegible] Big Ed over to the Big Town.

International Golf Match Approved

London, Feb. 13 (AP) The question of playing international golf matches with the United States and France was approved today at the annual meeting of the Ladies Golf Union, which legislates for the 1130 affiliated clubs representing 100,000 women players of Great Britain. It was voted also to send teams to tour the dominions.

Lady Rhonda presided at the meeting which took affirmative action by a vote of 193 to 130.

The matches between women golfers of Great Britain and the United States, to be held in London in May, will be unofficial as there is insufficient time for the union to make plans for this year, but in the future such international matches will be given an official stamp. The question of finances is now under consideration.

Four New Skating Records Set Up

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Feb. 13. Four new world's records were established by competitors in the North American outdoor speed skating championships here.

Jack Shea of Lake Placid won the one-sixth-mile event in 21 seconds to clip 2-5 seconds from the mark established in 192[illegible] by Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B.

Art Pickering, New York, set a new intermediate half-mile mark of 1 minute, 22 1-5 seconds. Wilbur Marks, Chicago, lowered the junior mile mark to 3 minutes, 11 1-5 seconds, and Orlie Duffy, Toronto, set a new juvenile mark of 30 1-5 seconds in the one-sixth mile.

Start Season

Since [illegible] Allen has [illegible] wide path through the heavyweights, winning every fight except the two with Joe Monte. They were two sensational affairs and Brockton is still divided as to the merits of its two favorites.

[illegible] McNeeley, the [illegible] Cambridge youngster [illegible] other slugger, will have [illegible] on his hands in Danny Regan of Cartnet. McNeeley is a former N. E. heavyweight champion and has come along in leaps and bounds in the past few months.

Athletes Quit When Coach Is Fired

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 12 (AP) A walkout of athletes and sympathizing students over athletic policies of Transylvania, oldest college west of the Alleghenies, culminated tonight with the announcement that James A. Elam, athletic director, and C. A. Webb, assistant, would not be offered contracts next season.

The announcement was made by Dr. Elmer G. Campbell, acting president.

At the same time it was learned that most of the 20 football players, now on what has been termed a strike, have lost jobs that paid part of their expenses and may not return next year.

The president, however, said there was no question that a representative football team would be put in the field in the fall.

Transylvania, controlled by the Disciples of Christ, had one of the best football teams in its history last fall, holding Center to a scoreless tie in a game that marked the 15th anniversary of the first ball game in the West.

Somerville High Gym to Have New Track

Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville announced today that he has ordered the immediate installation of a running track at the new high school gymnasium in that city. Mayor Murphy believes the high school athletes should have every facility for training so that they can compete against the other high schools. The sum of $600 has been appropriated for the track which will be installed at once.

Tilden Beats Gallape in Straight Sets

Nice, France, Feb. 13 (AP) Bill Tilden, playing in improved form, crushed Raoul Galiape, the champion of Monaco, in the third round of the Southern France tennis championships today. The scores were 6-0, 6-1, 5-0.

Melrose and Newton Hockey Teams Win

Melrose High's hockey team held its place at the top of the championship interscholastic league series by beating the Stoneham High rivals, 4 to 0, in the second round playoffs at the Arena. This was the first of a doubleheader and was followed by an overtime game in which Newton nosed out Arlington, 4 to 3.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

ALTHOUGH President James E. Dooley of the Canadian American League has announced that he will deal severely with any players who resort to fighting, it is evident that some promoters have instructed their press agents to "steam up" the fight angle, in their advance notices.

Such tactics have a bad influence on the players and also [illegible] hate are thought provoked [illegible] in every game to bring about bad feeling between players with [illegible] as much [illegible] as to what a certain player intends to do to another.

If a club is such a poor [illegible] that it cannot draw the fans without promising a fight as an extra feature [illegible] for the good of the game and [illegible] withdraw from hockey.

Since a half dozen N. H. L. [illegible] have been gunning for [illegible] the Tiger defense man has become so famous that even his home town papers are devoting some space to his shuts.

Steps should be taken to force every hockey club to have a doctor in attendance at every game. Ponzi Contant was badly cut in the Springfield game at the Garden but as there was no doctor available, his injury was not sewed up until the following day. Although such a condition is wholly in keeping with the policy of the Tiger owners, it displays a lack of interest in the welfare of the players.

Tiny Thompson was suffering from a heavy head cold during the Maple Leaf game. This is a [illegible] plus some very [illegible] work on the part of his teammates was responsible for the five goals the Leafs ran in on the Bruin star.

Hago Harrington of the Rhode Island Reds will be out of hockey for at least a week. He had his tonsils, which have been troubling him for years, removed yesterday.

Jerry Geran, the former Bruin, who was a member of two United States Olympic teams, is now scouting for the New York Rangers. Jerry has been covering a territory in northern Ontario with Toronto as his headquarters.

Some of the New York scribes would do well to check up on their facts before they announce that Joe Simpson had never been guilty of throwing a stick until the recent Ranger game. A few years ago "Bullet" Joe heaved a stick which cost Edmonton a championship.

The Quebec Bulldog will play a return game with the Rhode Island Reds on February 23 in Providence. Quebec is anxious to be again affiliated with the Canadian-American League but there is little likelihood that it will be successful.

The governors of the Canadian American League are enthusiastic in their praise of Judge James E. Dooley as a chief executive. In the recent meeting held in New York more league business was disposed of than in all the meetings held last season.

When Referee Bill Stewart tried to collect the $40 fine which Davan slapped on Babe Dye at the Garden the Eagle shrugged his shoulders [illegible] that he did not [illegible] for any fine. The [illegible] was that Stewart collected from Manager Jimmie O'Donovan much to the disgust of the New Haven mentor.

Golf Show Opens Today at Met

Under the direction of Al Treviae, manager of the James W. Brine golf department, a two weeks golf show will open today at the Metropolitan Theater.

A nine hole putting course and a driving net have been installed in the Grande Lounge, which is situated under the lobby. Putting contests, which will be open to all, will be held daily and valuable prizes awarded to the winners. On Saturday there will be special events for high school boys and girls.

Between shows Fred Lowe, professional at the Brae Burn Country Club, will give free instructions to golfers and also offer exhibitions of various shots.

White Sox Leave for Camp Saturday

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP) An even dozen, split equally into playing and supervising halves, will comprise the official White Sox squad when the southward trip starts Saturday.

Catcher Clyde Crouse and Pitchers Bob Weiland, Ed Walsh, Jr., Gerald Byrne and Harold and Harwood McKain are the players. The rest of the official party will include Mgr. Bush, Coach Barney Kelly, Trainer William Buckner, Secretary Harry Grabiner, Lou Comiskey and Lou Barbour, traveling secretary.

Debaets - Beckman Lead Chicago Bikers

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP) Gerard Debaets of Belgium and Fons Beckman of Secaucus, N. J., [illegible] the lead in the six day bicycle race early today.

Going into first place last night the pair not only outfooted the attempts of other teams to grab the lead but gained a lap on the two teams now in a tie for second place.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 13 (AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former world heavyweight champion, defeated Dr. Carl Sarpolis, Cleveland, two out of three falls in a wrestling match here last night.

THE average healthy adult can stand the loss of a pint of blood from hemorrhage without difficulty. In such severe hemorrhage cases, however, complete rest for a long period is essential. Transfusions of blood from healthy persons to invalids are common.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX FINDS A GIRL THAT ISN'T

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

IS the "lost generation" dying out or has it discovered the life it's leading pays poor dividends?

Beatrice Fairfax

The "lost generation," you w[illegible] recall was a phrase used by one of our most successful writers on the title page of a best seller. The lost included those young people too young to bear arms, who had lived through the blood, sweat, horror of the World War so feverishly that nothing afterward really mattered.

To endure life for even an hour their crucified nerves had to be quickened by the blare of jazz, the wailing of saxophones, the consumption of almost a steady stream of "drinks."

Young people even those not so young enjoyed reading about the lost generation, following the same impulse, I suppose, that prompts us to read about the inhabitants of Mars, if any. For a time the Despair-and-Cinders school of literature had a tremendous following. Almost anyone who wrote a book about a young person of either sex who was compelled by an inner urge to do something desperate every three minutes by the watch was assured of financial success.

Then a book reviewer with a sense of humor picked out the heroine of one of these best sellers. She was of course perfectly beautiful, and no man could run an elevator in which she was a passenger for even a single trip without being permanently maimed in the heart. She went through life dealing wreckage like an infernal machine, and she made agitating reading for nice girls—there are still millions of them left, thank Heavens—who had experienced some difficulty in bringing John Thomas [illegible]

What was the use, with a high powered enchantress like that go[illegible]

[illegible] ... [illegible] ciferied to segregated three days in the life of the siren and made the interesting discovery that during the course of those seventy two recorded hours the lovely creature had taken over 100 drinks. On nearly every page her beauty was dwelt upon but not a word of praise for her capacity for liquor.

The gifted author of that best seller wasn't writing about life at all. He was writing a fairy story.

The case of Cinderella in real life is not nearly so rare as that of a lost generation heroine who gets away with it.

As the playful reviewer of that book pointed out, if the beautiful young creature had knowledge which enabled her to take thirty-three drinks a day and keep out of the inebriate asylum, why didn't she share the secret with her fellow creatures? It would have been worth millions to science, physicians, even to patent medicine.

Not that any of these agencies would have considered revealing the baleful mystery for the destruction of the next generation. But properly handled the discovery would have cured every dyspeptic.

But she never told. Furthermore, concealment or her potations made no headway on her complexion, her nose didn't even grow red and bulbous.

Common sense and experience are working miracles with what's left of the "lost generation." It has been dying out with tragic rapidity. Statistics relate in prose the number who have succumbed to tuberculosis.

And you don't have to look very hard or far to see that the girl who gives the best imitation of a lost generation heroine doesn't often marry well. She may have a good time while it lasts—but it doesn't last very long. Ask your family doctor, or glance over the reports of the Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The Snow Queen -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THE lady that little boys like. They pray for her coming. They think her fur cap the last delicious rarity of headgear. They think her icy blue eyes the loveliest and the kindest in the world. Of course they forget the bird's cold toes. They think her strange dress of drifting snow, sparkling in the sun, blowing in the wind as she comes, like face powder or smoke, the loveliest ever seen. They like her silver bells, her pale golden hair that is almost silver. They think her [illegible] cuffed gloves swanky. They watch for and whoop for joy over her blanket of immaculate white that she spreads for them to flounder in. They had rather walk to school in it than ride in a royal princess' [illegible]. They whine and wait to stay out in it long after the little feet and fingers have turned into wooden stubs and have to be thawed out later with tears and howlings, on a big flat piece of stovewood in the big oven of the fiercely red kitchen range, if you live in the country, in the gas oven or by the open fire in the drawing room if you live in the city.

The "milk boy," who creaks up the path in the chill, pale dawn doesn't think much of her. He [illegible] horse, with the breath in frost-gems on his whiskers, doesn't either! The father of the little boy calls her things, unless it's Sunday or vacation, when he can shrink into a little boy again and go tobogganing with HIS; but week days he likes the dark Summer Queen [illegible]

The [illegible] boy [illegible] He hopes [illegible] start her fairies, frail creatures of the middle sky, down the steep pathways of the air [illegible] flying, laying themselves soundlessly down upon one another [illegible] in the day that the sun won't [illegible] before he gets [illegible]

The Snow Queen came at [illegible] a little boy I know. And a little boy I know [illegible] to school and [illegible] of her studio on his tummy drawing.

Listen, World!

THE greatest menace to civilization isn't war or disease . . . it's SENTIMENTALITY—

Elsie Robinson

There are dozens of instances. Home Sweet Home. America First. The Glory of War. Respect for the Aged. The Dear Old Days.

Listen lovely, don't they? But what's the real truth about them?

Is war glorious? It is not. It is the utterly beastly tool of greed and commercialism.

Are the aged always worthy of respect? Far from it. They frequently deserve a severe bawling out.

Were the old days dear? Occasionally. Usually they were a mess from which we are lucky to have escaped.

Hokum-hooey-bunkum blah . . . that's what most of these venerable traditions really are. We promote and perpetuate them because we're too lazy and cowardly to face the truth.

It takes a lot of nerve and gumption to face facts and act on them. So we go muddling along because it would be such a whale of a job to change!

Real sentiment . . . that's different. Real sentiment is homage paid to beautiful and noble ideals. It is paid with mind and heart and backbone.

BUT SENTIMENTALITY, WHICH CONDONES ANY KIND OF PERFORMANCE, IS NOT HONEST HOMAGE. IT'S AN EMOTIONAL HICCOUGH . . . THE RESULT OF FAT KNEES AND A FLUTTERY DIAPHRAGM.

TELL IT TO ELSIE.

Even though he has to get his "guiding" within the prison bars.

"It's a touching letter, and by the time I'm through answering it, Mary will probably think I'm an Old Meanie. But here goes—

"Dear Elsie:

"I have a friend I met some years ago at a dance. He was 24 then. We saw one another frequently thereafter. Later, it developed that he had deserted from the army, although he was honorably discharged at the end of the World War.

"I tried in every way to steady him . . . to appeal to his better side, but despite all this, he is now in a state penitentiary, sentenced to three years, for taking an automobile.

"He writes to me, saying that my answers are a joy that I shall never be able to imagine. My friends and folks would be perfectly horrified to know what I'm telling you.

"I can't break away, when I read of his need of my letters. I want to help him. And my own weakness, if you can call it that, is an intense interest in human nature, especially the unusual types. For these two reasons I have kept on with this friendship, for it seemed as if I could not do otherwise. And really, Elsie, if you were to see him, you couldn't believe he'd do such things. He seems like such a nice boy.

Mary, don't kid yourself that you are doing this out of noble, abstract "interest in human nature." You are doing it because it excites your curiosity to play with fire . . . and it tickles your egotism to think that you are a power in another's life.

And both motives are dangerous.

There are a lot of people in prison who may have angel faces and a drawing-room technique, but despite that, they're no good . . . and you'll waste your time trying to help them, for they won't help themselves.

This would seem to be true of your friend.

There isn't one chance in a hundred that this correspondence will reform him.

But it may do you great harm. For "pity is akin to love," Mary.

Play safe, little girl. Write to this man occasionally if your friendship dictates . . . but don't continue this dangerous, intimate bond of sympathy.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER 30

"NO," she replied. "She just told you they weren't here so you wouldn't try to take them from her by force. I'm sure those are all she has."

But she was wrong.

Early that afternoon Hilda called up the house.

"I want to tell you I got two more of those letters, Missis," her thick slow voice came over the wire. "I going to get a new job and if you ever tell anybody anything bad about me I going to show Mister those letters sure."

Without another word she hung up at her end of the line, leaving Lovejoy shaken and frightened and half-sick once more.

At half past three Aunt Em arrived to help Lovejoy with the baby and the dinner.

"I'm glad you did get rid of that girl!" she declared in her quick energetic way when she came in. "I happened to come in here one day when you were out chasing around with that Alderson woman and she was lying on the bed in her room letting the baby yell himself black in the face and never going near him'—I never said anything about it because I thought it was your own business if you wanted to have a sloppy good-for-nothing like that in your house!"

Aunt Em was fond of saying that she never poked her nose into other people's business.

The truth was that she was always poking her nose into everybody's business. Finding out all things that did not concern her was the very breath of life to Aunt Em.

"Why did you let her go?" she asked now, taking off the black hat that Lovejoy had picked out for her the first day she had gone shopping with Aline. It had been plain and smart when Lovejoy had bought it. But now there was a paste buckle and a small bunch of white violets on it. Aunt Em had her own ideas about style and they were the ideas of 1890.

"Well I thought I ought to have someone who knew more about babies," fibbed Lovejoy.

Aunt Em nodded vigorously.

"You need a woman like Norrie Shane, that's what you need," she said, snapping off her words. "If you're going to run out for three or four hours every day, playing cards and going shopping with that painted-up Alderson woman you ought to have some responsible person with that precious baby . . . It would be better for you to do the housework yourself and have someone like Norrie for him."

She knew that she could do all of the housework in three or four hours every morning. Then she would be free until it was time to get dinner.

"And if I peel all the vegetables and make the salad for dinner in the morning," she went on thinking, "I'd be free at all every afternoon until half past five. And if I had a woman like Norrie in the house I never have to worry about the baby."

"You'd better talk to her about salary," Aunt Em answered. "She's out of a job right now, and she's coming here at half past five to see you. I told her as soon as you telephoned me that you'd let that Hilda go."

* * *

On the second of June Tom and Lovejoy moved into the new house at the corner of the lane and Tudor rd.

They didn't have much to move from the old house. Just their trunks, three of them—and the few little odds-and-ends that they had bought since their marriage.

They took them all up to the new house in the automobile, and Norrie Shane brought the baby in his buggy. Norrie all in the spotless white of her uniform, with her plain good face glowing with happiness.

"It's so nice to be here with my own friends," she said on that first night when the three of them sat down to their first meal in the new house. "If I were working in some big house, among strangers, I'd be having my dinner on a tray up in the baby's room."

Butter Is Good for You

SINCE the days of Cleopatra butter [illegible] an important part in the [illegible] of [illegible]

Martha Lee

[illegible] its a pound [illegible] we have learned that real [illegible] of good health and that one of the best promoters of [illegible] good creamery butter and plenty of [illegible] By eating butter we [illegible] to create beauty [illegible] Egyptian sisters for [illegible] used [illegible] externally while we [illegible] age of enlightenment [illegible] beauty [illegible] of proper eating.

[illegible] of butter [illegible] for winter months [illegible] This [illegible] in the winter months few adults or children are exposed to the direct rays of the sun as is the case during the other and open seasons of the year.

The [illegible] system, therefore, is [illegible] an important food element that assists the body in warding off minor illnesses. Just because we do not get out into the sunshine does not mean that our system does not require this vitamin. We [illegible] get it through our daily diet and as stated before, [illegible] butter is one of the [illegible] this vitamin.

The [illegible] craze to be slim has [illegible] a greater toll than you [illegible] even dream about. Many of the calamities may be traced directly to the exclusion of butter and other vitamin-rich foods. Because butter contains minerals, vitamins, salt and water in addition to its fat—as is not the case of many of the other fats on the market—it does not have so great a fattening power.

The use of butter makes all foods better. [illegible] foods attract and [illegible] a well-baked potato with a part of good creamery butter [illegible] its mealy flesh.

Canned or winter vegetables are made doubly appetizing by the use of butter or cream sauce made with a butter foundation.

And what more appropriate accompaniment than a big piece of butter to a well broiled juicy steak! Just the necessary finish to bring out the delicate meat flavor. To add to the temptation of the dish, serve sauted pineapple slices around the steak. The pineapple, of course, will be sauted in butter.

There really is no substitute for butter flavor, especially when butter may be purchased at about two-thirds the price we paid for the same product a year ago.

Butter cakes contain real food, so do all dishes made with butter. The following are a few suggestions, but your experience as a cook will, I am sure, remind you of any number of dishes, good though they be, that can be made better with butter.

WAFFLES

2 cups flour. 3 tsps. baking powder.
½ tsp. salt. 1½ to 2 cups milk.
2 eggs. 1-3 cup melted butter.

Sift the flour, then measure. Mix and sift with the other dry ingredients. Separate the eggs, beat the yolks slightly, then add 1½ cups of milk. Mix into the dry ingredients, beat well. More milk may be required to make a pour batter depending on the type of flour used. Then add the melted butter, slightly cooled. Beat thoroughly. Finally cut and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Preheat waffle iron until it sizzles when a drop of water is placed on iron. Pour in some of the waffle batter and bake from 2 to 3 minutes, or until waffles are crisp and brown. Do not open iron while steam is being emitted as this will cause waffles to fall.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Mrs. Beeckman's Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If I have a friendship ring, would I call and think of my friend as my fiance, sweetheart or my "boy friend"?

My friend asked me to be ready for his cousin's and sister's wedding which will be in a few weeks. Is it proper to go without a written invitation from them?

Melrose. ELLA G.

UNLESS, by his words, he has indicated that he wishes the ring to be a more significant symbol, I guess that the best thing would still be the idea—a friend. But friendship rings aren't in good form, for unless a girl is engaged to a man she should not allow him to give her jewelry.

Here again you will show better taste if you do not go to the wedding without an invitation. In his enthusiasm your friend charmingly and graciously invites you to go with him, but the hostess or hosts of the wedding parties must determine such invitations, and it is they who must extend them.

Dulcy Has a Few More Spasms of Trouble

"Hush!"

Forbes was so absorbed in studying the samples in his hand that he did not even notice that his wife had sped across the room to sit on the piano bench with Van Dyke.

Something seemed to be lacking and Dulcy tried nobly to fill the gap.

She held it out to Angela, who was too absorbed in gazing at Vincent to notice. Vincent looked as if he would appear deeply stirred by the music, or die trying.

"Bravo" she called as she applauded, but to her great embarrassment the piece was not an end.

"I thought he had finished," she observed audibly to Mrs. Forbes who giggled nervously.

Dulcy was forced to admit that perhaps this piece was a little long. For his next number she would suggest something shorter. She wanted everyone to have a good time.

Eventually the piece came to an end with a flourish. Dulcy waited for a full moment of silence to make sure that she wasn't mistaken this time. Then she rushed forward to thank him, but Vincent had taken the center of the stage.

Brushing his hair back with a languid gesture, he seemed to be bursting into song as he spoke.

"It was beautiful" he proclaimed in a voice choked with emotion. "It made me think of Araby and the moon-soaked desert. I wish," he added in a fervent tone, "that I might do something as inspiring for you."

Gordon had led Mr. Forbes half way out of the room in search of a quiet place in which to continue their business discussion when Dulcy called him.

EVENING News of Street AMERICAN New York Stocks MARKETS

GOLD PROBLEM IS DISCUSSED BY DR. KLEIN

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

What is the relation between prices of commodities and the supply of gold? So many would-be experts have [illegible] on this [illegible] in conflicting and unsatisfying ways [illegible] decided [illegible] what a [illegible] man [illegible] President Hoover [illegible] selected [illegible] best [illegible] in the [illegible] to consume [illegible] on a major scale, commodities for which gold or its equivalent is paid.

Dr. Julius Klein

We felt rather confident Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, would not give an answer [illegible] the heads of the average [illegible] or because he was formerly an instructor at Harvard. Says Dr. Klein: "Like nearly everyone else I am of course much interested in the question as to the relation between prices and the supply of gold.

* * *

"As you know, whole volumes on the theory of money have been written by disciples of the quantity school or of the commodity school, and there is almost an equal amount of literature devoted to the thesis that both schools are right, in part. As a matter of actual fact we can check up the gold stock of the United States with the indices of commodity prices and show important failures of prices to fluctuate with the gold stock.

* * *

"Nor do commodity prices fluctuate evenly with the total monetary circulation. On the face of it, therefore, the quantity theory has definite limitations. But so also [illegible] commodity theory have [illegible] limitations insofar as we [illegible] able to get reliable statistics on the aggregate commodities in existence at any particular time. One thing that the classical economists overlooked was progressive efficiency in production. Costs of production [illegible] know might fall rapidly enough to more than overcome the influence of increased circulating medium.

* * *

"You are aware of the popular accusation in Europe that Uncle Sam has 'sterilized' much of his acquisitions of gold from Europe since the war. Certainly the reserve [illegible] now hold something like $1[illegible] of gold in excess of the [illegible] requirements [illegible] Federal Reserve [illegible]. It is evident [illegible] within the country. Here [illegible] an arbitrary element which will probably continue to [illegible] the predicted relationship between gold and prices.

* * *

"We commonly meet this European accusation by pointing to the fact that the ratio of the total gold stock of the United States has steadily declined for a great many years and now stands at only six or seven per cent. As you see, we have sterilized gold, and we have not sterilized it. It seems that in every aspect of this intricate subject the only truth is that 'it is and it isn't.'"

Length of Setback Cut by Hand-to-Mouth Buying

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Feb. [illegible]—[illegible] County, [illegible] in charge of finance of the Pennsylvania Railroad, told me that the new American business policy of keeping inventories low is [illegible] shortening the duration of the trade recession.

Furthermore, the finance executive explained that the management of this great railroad regarded the transition as [illegible] passing [illegible] and were going ahead uninterruptedly with the gigantic program of modernizing [illegible] Specifically [illegible] confidence has resulted in [illegible] of the company's large [illegible] in new orders for equipment [illegible] of plans for electrification in congested sections of the Eastern seaboard and in mountainous regions, and in the building of new terminals in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Newark and elsewhere. The present program [illegible] Pennsylvania [illegible] would not be [illegible] for [illegible] years.

"We're [illegible] around us," Mr. County [illegible]. "We're in the transportation business and [illegible] transportation which seems [illegible] including airplane and bus. Whatever comes along we'll adopt."

Referring to the immediate business situation as disclosed by investigations along the eastern part of the United States through which the Pennsylvania passes, Mr. County said he still finds a good deal of caution. On account of low inventories, however, during the first fortnight of the new year it seemed that traffic was running ahead of the corresponding period of last year, especially on account of heavy coal movements ascribable to the severe winter in the Middle West. More recently, however, traffic has fallen about 6½ per cent below the 1929 level. Mr. County thinks that the real test of business will come in the spring, and he is looking forward to reasonably good trade. The chief worry in his mind is unemployment, including technological unemployment, resulting in the replacement of men by machines and a new technique of efficiency. Apart from the human angle, Mr. County pointed out that unemployment represents a reduction in purchasing power on which prosperity rests.

The standing of Pennsylvania stock as a media for investment rather than speculation Mr. County thought was emphasized by the fact that since the panic the company has on its list 10,000 to 12,000 additional stockholders. The total now exceeds 200,000. Moreover, as indicative of the supply of investment capital, Mr. County pointed out that only a negligible number of stockholders, in connection with recent new offering of stock at par, took advantage of the option to pay for the stock in two installments instead of one.

As a result of its consistent policy of reducing debt in the last couple of years, the company by the end of this year will have brought its debt slightly below the amount of stock outstanding. Mr. County thinks that the company has gone as far as it need in recasting its capital structure, and is now in position again to vary its financing plans as between stocks and bonds, in accordance with its shifting preferences and fluctuating money market conditions. In the rebuilding of the system since the relinquishment of government control, the company capitalized only one dollar out of every two spent, Mr. County said.

So far as the Pennsylvania is concerned, the chief advantage of the issuance of the final merger report of the I. C. C. is that it removes a technical barrier to further building up of the system. The long term gradual development of the system through undramatic, natural mergers was impeded until this technicality was cleared up. Mr. County said that the Pennsylvania is not opposed to mergers but believes that nation-wide grouping is still 10 years off.

* * *

Mr. County ascribed the new f[illegible] to their earlier improved operating efficiency. He recalled that the Pennsylvania has steadily been improving its operating ratio in recent years and pointed out that it has cut down its inventory of merchandise substantially and also of manpower. Mr. County said that the new hand-to-mouth buying policy of business men was contingent on improved railroad speed and efficiency. He said that if the railroads ceased to operate for three days it would emphasize how low accumulated stocks now are, and would give an enormous impetus to buying. Mr. County said that the railroad was now making third day freight delivery from Chicago instead of fourth day, and, unlike former times, was adhering to its schedule through the winter.

* * *

Mr. County indicated that it is now the unwritten policy of the Pennsylvania to issue new stock at par.

This is in contrast to numerous industrial corporations which during the new era period sought to exploit their own stockholders by offering new stock far above book value at unseasoned prices.

NEW YORK LIFE BUSINESS BIG

New York Life Insurance Company's dividends in 1930 will amount to $71,775,000, according to the company's annual statement. The new business in 1929 amounted to over $957,000,000. On December 31 the insurance in force was $7,266,000,000, while the company's total resources were $1,635,000,000, invested chiefly in bonds and real estate mortgages.

In his annual message to policyholders President Darwin P. Kingsley points out the significant part which each policyholder is taking in stabilizing the economic situation of society at large. The total insurance in force in American and Canadian companies is now about $110,000,000,000, of which about one-fifteenth is in New York Life.

This $110,000,000,000 exceeds the resources of all the banks by about $31,000,000,000 and is many times as large as the total resources of all foundation and Endowments for Education and Research. Outstanding life insurance, says President Kingsley, "is the greatest trust ever created.

"As a group you are not capitalists, yet you have become the greatest of capitalists.

"Following your impulse of self-protection you have created the greatest of all beneficial institutions.

"Seeking to banish the need of charity from your own household, you have shown how the need of charity may be completely banished from every household."

Croft Sees Good Business Outlook

Chairman H. W. Croft says in part: Outlook for the coming year is quite encouraging, as contrary to fears of impending depression frequently heard in recent months, volume of business has been well maintained and the new year volume has opened up very satisfactorily.

United States Envelope Co. declared regular semi-annual dividend of $4 per share and an extra dividend of $1 per share on common stock and usual semi-annual dividend of $3.50 per share on preferred stock, all payable March 1 to stock of record February 15.

Drilling Machine Orders Increase

Chicago, Feb. 12—January business of the Rockford Drilling Machine Co., a subsidiary of Borg-Warner Corp., showed a substantial increase over January, 1929, according to C. S. Davis, president of Borg-Warner. Included in recent contracts is one for clutches from the American Austin Co., producers of a new light car, which is the American edition of the British machine.

MOVEMENTS IN WALL STREET CONFLICTING

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

Prices headed upward at the opening under the leadership of the public utilities and a few high grade industrials such as American Can, American Tobacco B, and U. S. Steel common, which were marked up to new high levels for the year.

The market turned irregular in the early afternoon on a renewal of selling pressure against Simmons Co., Gillette Safety Razor and the mail order issues.

CAR LOADING UP.

Business news was mixed in character. Freight loadings in the week ended February 1 were considerably larger than the week before, but fell below the same week last year, and were the lowest of any corresponding week since 1925.

Copper stocks showed a further slight increase in January but shipments were slightly larger than the month before. Underwood-Elliott-Fisher showed earnings of $10.08 a share in 1929 which contrasts with $6.77 on a slightly smaller capitalization the year before.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4 per cent. Lowering of the Boston Federal Reserve re-discount rate to the 4 per cent level recently established by the New York and Chicago banks, was construed as an indication of a general easing of credit conditions.

POOLS IN UTILITIES

Pool activities accounted largely for the activity in the public utility group, merger rumors stimulating the advance in that group. Philadelphia Co., General Public Service, Brooklyn Union Gas and American Telephone were marked up 4 to 7 points to new peak prices for the year.

American Water Works was marked up 3 and a number of others advanced a point or two, one block of 10,000 shares of Consolidated Gas of New York changing hands at 115.

Professional traders are reported to have sold stocks freely on the theory that the market was entitled to at least a technical reaction after its recent sharp advance.

Other observers took the view however that the market had sufficiently consolidated its gains by the sideways movement of the last few days, and one of the large commission houses sent out a message urging its customers to buy high-grade stocks for a trading turn.

Weakness of Simmons, which broke 5 points to a new low for the year at 67½, which contrasts with last year's high of 188, was attributed to disappointing furniture sales of some of its recently acquired concerns. Gillette Safety Razor broke nearly 7 points to 89¼, also a new 1930 low.

Western Union sold 6 points lower, Safeway Stores 5, National Lead 4, Columbian Carbon 3, and Stone & Webster 3.

Seed Potato Rate From Maine Is Cut

Salisbury, Md., Feb. 13 (AP) Potato growers on the eastern shore of Maryland-Virginia were notified today that Interstate Commerce Commission had ordered a reduction in freight rates on carload shipments of seed potatoes to this territory from Maine. The commission order requires a reduction within 90 days from the 70 cent rate to 66 cents per 100 pounds, saving approximately $17 on a carload.

The Peninsula Produce Exchange, Inc., of Pocomoke, Md., carried the case to the commission last June, contending that the eastern shore section was entitled to a rate lower than the Norfolk base rate. About 400 carloads of seed potatoes are shipped annually from Maine to the potato-growing section of the eastern shore.

Muller Renamed as Head of Curb

New York, Feb. 13. W. S. Muller was unanimously re-elected president of the New York Curb Exchange; Howard C. Sykes was elected vice-president. Mr. Muller is serving his third term as president. He was foremost among brokers responsible for removal of the market indoors in 1921.

New Control for Utilities in Mass.

New York, Feb. 13. Eastern States Public Service Corporation of New York has acquired Grafton, Millbury and Oxford water companies from Atlantic Public Utilities Corp., also the latter's holdings in Massachusetts and 15 other states.

Grains Are Uneven in Chicago Market

Chicago, Feb. 13 (INS) Grains were uneven today. Wheat was unchanged to [illegible] down, corn off ⅛ to ½c and oats [illegible] up. Prices: Wheat March 11[illegible], May 123, 123½; July 123-124; Sept 126½. Corn March 88¼, May 92, 92¼; July 94¼-½; Sept 93-94. Oats March 45½, May 46¼, July 46¼.

Rutland Railroad Net Is Increased

COTTON MILLS IN ELECTRICAL TENDENCY

Individual motors and motors for group drives for the various machines have replaced the system of large power units in most mills, according to speakers at the textile forum of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers in the Boston City Club today.

"The present tendency is strongly toward individual motorization, particularly as far as looms are concerned," said John F. Reardon, agent of Grosvenor Dale Company, North Grosvenor Dale, Ct., the forum committee chairman, in addressing master mechanics from mills throughout New England. "The change," he continued, "is among the major developments in cotton manufacturing."

That the industry has been a pioneer in the use of electricity for power was brought out by the speaker. "Mills in the North used electric lights as early as 1879, and a calico printing machine was operated by an electric motor in Pawtucket in 1891.

"The development of the electric motor and its rapid adoption by the cotton industry is shown by the increase from 280 motors with a horsepower of 17,594 in 1899 to 241,725 motors with a horsepower of 1,602,160 in 1927. The increased use of the individual drive is indicated by the fact that during the same period of time the horsepower per motor decreased from 62.0 to 7.7."

Control of humidification and the general problems encountered in keeping mill equipment at the peak of operation condition were among the subjects for discussion. Other questions on the program included: "Should the master mechanic be responsible for all motive power, including motors and generators?" "What measures are recommended to take care of rush jobs in case of breakdown?" "What should be the relationship between the mill and repair departments?"

Things Lincoln Would Like and Dislike

Plea for Salaried Men Who Have Been Dropped; Chicago Warning

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—Lincoln would endorse at least some of our economic, financial, industrial and social developments since his day.

B. C. Forbes

In line with his innate democracy have been the great spread of wealth and the rise in the living standards of his "common people"; the notable increase in home ownership; the phenomenal spread of security ownership to a total representing almost four out of every five families; the accumulation of more than $28,000,000,000, mostly by ordinary folks, in savings accounts; the marked reduction in working hours and the consequent increase in the people's leisure; the rise in the number of pupils in schools and students in universities to the present total of 27,400,000; the capture of almost all the richest prizes in life of men born into neither wealth nor influence; the widespread movement among large employers to make provision for the sickness and old age of toilers.

Could he pass judgment on conditions of the moment, he would be more pained by the extent of unemployment than probably anything else, and by the utter lack of co-ordinated nationwide effort to meet the lamentable condition of those unable to earn their daily bread.

A suggestion: Those at present out of work include, not only manual laborers, artisans, clerks and other rank-and-file workers, but perhaps a larger number than ever before of men who have held responsible positions paying anywhere from $5000 to $25,000 and more a year. Most companies have machinery for handling seekers of ordinary jobs; but in many establishments there is no prescribed course for gaining the ear of a high-up by salaried men in search of work.

Of course, busy executives perhaps could not attend properly to their own duties were they to give up much of their time to audiences with applicants for highly-paid positions. But abnormal conditions now prevail, and executives who have been fortunate enough not to have been dropped because of consolidations, dullness or other reasons, should stretch a point to show consideration to victims of the economic revolution now under way.

Many men accustomed to handling responsibilities, and accustomed to earning five figure salaries, are not only willing but eager to make new connections at half their former remuneration.

Friends who are large-hearted enough to devote unselfish effort to placing men of the calibre here described complain that too often executives appeared to have acted most brusquely and inconsiderately. A plea is here made for a more humane attitude.

Apropos of living-and-letting-live, here is something new: A New York church has set up a Goodwill Court. Once a week three judges, selected for their fitness to deal with the particular type of cases to be heard, will sit to hear and settle employment disputes, social differences, business and financial troubles, and "mental conflicts." No charge will be made.

Facts were given here the other day about New York's arbitration tribunal and its settlement of 344 business disputes last year. This church (John Haynes Holmes' Community Church) is carrying the conciliation idea into wider fields. Doesn't the idea impress you as possessing worthwhile possibilities?

If the second city in the United States is permitted to continue much longer in dire financial straits, unable to pay policemen, firemen and other municipal servants, and unable to keep schools, hospitals and other city institutions functioning normally, there is danger that municipal bondholders, not only in Chicago, but throughout the country, may become apprehensive and start selling. They may reason that, if the great city of Chicago can fall in such a bankrupt state, unpleasant developments might easily occur in cities of lesser wealth.

The Chicago situation possesses not merely local but national interest and seriousness. It is all very well to play politics up to a certain point; but when politics threaten to play havoc with confidence in municipal bonds, of which billions are outstanding throughout the country and many millions have constantly to be marketed, it is high time to call a halt. The menace is sufficiently grave and far-reaching in its potentialities to warrant attention from President Hoover.

CURB MARKET UTILITIES ARE HIGHER

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—One of the most vigorous forward movements of the new year in the utility shares sent the curb market substantially higher today. Several leading utility shares achieved new high levels for the post crash period.

The proposed merger of Stone & Webster and Engineers Public Service whetted the appetite for the electric power issues and stirred up a varied assortment of rumors of further important realignments within the industry. The consolidation movement in the electric power field appears to be far from completed.

Electric Bond & Share was a leader in the advance, rising more than 3 points to a new high for the year above 102. The stock touched 50 last November, having sold as high as 189 during the earlier bull movement. Niagara Hudson rose more than a point to a new 1930 peak above 17.

It is understood that a simplification of the corporate structure of the Niagara Hudson group, similar to that under way in Commonwealth and Southern, will shortly be announced. American & Foreign Power warrants, American Gas and Electric Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Engineers Public Service warrants gained about 2 points each.

A few of the industrials made fair gains. Deere shot up several points in a few sales and Aluminum Co. sold up a few points. American Chain reached new high ground for the movement, in response to an analysis indicating that the company is earning substantially more than it was a year ago at this time. Automotive equipments generally were inclined to rally. Thompson Products A and Nachman Springfield making fair progress.

* * *

Oils were fairly steady but dull. The statement of President Farish of Humble Oil yesterday that there is no immediate prospect of an advance in mid-continent crude prices was rather discouraging.

Investment Trust shares were largely quiet, although Goldman Sachs attracted some buying during the morning. Mines showed little response to the January copper statistics.

Cotton Pegging at 16c Is Proposed

State St. hears the formation of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, to which the Farm Board will advance initial credit of $10,000,000, means it proposes to use its vast resources to peg price of wheat on Chicago market at $1.18 a bushel. Inferentially, it also proposes to sustain price of cotton, through formation of similar stabilization corporation, at 16 cents a pound.

Cotton Seed Crush in Half Year Off

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Cotton seed crushed during the six-month period August 1 to January 31, was announced by the census bureau today as having been 3,577,262 tons, compared with 3,716,884 in the same period a year ago, and cotton seed on hand at mills January 1 totaled 760,745 tons, compared with 999,198 a year ago.

National Banks' Resources Larger

Washington, Feb. 13 (INS)—The aggregate resources of the 7408 reporting national banks in continental United States, Alaska and Hawaii on December 31 last amounted to $28,882,483,000, exceeding by $958,173,000 the amount reported by 7473 banks as of October 4, 1929, Comptroller of the Currency John W. Pole announces.

Cotton Is Stronger After a Reaction

New York, Feb. 13 (INS)—The cotton market was reactionary today following Tuesday's strength, and prices declined from 4 to 14 points in the early trading. March sold off 7 points at 15.70, May 4 off at 15.98, July down 8 at 16.17, October 10 at 16.33, December 14 at 16.50, and January down 14 at 16.47. Foreign cables were also a depressant upon this morning's market. Midday cotton prices were stronger. March sold at 15.81, and May was once more about 16.00 cents to sell at 16.10. July was at 16.25 and December at 16.61.

Boston Bank Has a New Idea to Guard Checks

THE February issue of the Savings-Banker, the official organ of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts, describes a new idea in Christmas club checks which will protect the merchants as well as the members of the clubs from fraud and through the stealing of the checks. The article is as follows:

To the Provident Institution for Savings in Boston, the oldest incorporated savings bank in the world, goes the credit for an entirely new idea in safeguarding Christmas club checks. Christmas checks are issued by the million all over the country about December first of each year, and are used and accepted as payment for Christmas presents and merchandise bought in stores throughout the entire country.

* * *

Owing to the tremendous number of these checks which are released and used at the same time it is impossible to give the same care to identification as is usually the case. This fact is well known by sneak thieves, and many Christmas club checks have been stolen from mail boxes, the indorsements forged and the checks used to buy merchandise. Of course, the bank does not lose, but serious inconvenience and loss has been caused to the merchants, and the banks themselves have been put to a great deal of trouble in identifying indorsements.

To do away with this loss and inconvenience, Carleton S. Gifford of the Provident Institution for Savings has designed a new style of check. The depositor on taking out Club membership is required to sign on the lower of the two signature lines at the right-hand side of the check. When he receives the check at the end of the year, and uses it to purchase goods he signs again in the presence of the person who is accepting the check. This is exactly on the principle of the travelers' checks and furnishes a positive identification. If the check is to be deposited instead of used for cash, the depositor merely signs his name for identification and then makes the usual endorsement on the back of the check.

While the travelers' check style is not new, it is the first time, so far as is known, that it has been put to the use of the Christmas Club check, and the example of the Provident Institution for Savings will doubtless be followed within the next year by a great many other banks which operate savings clubs.

In order to obtain the benefit of the new style of check as early as possible the bank has arranged at considerable expense and inconvenience to itself to introduce the new style check at once, and to obtain the signatures of present members of this year's Christmas Club as rapidly as possible on the new checks. This means that the Christmas checks issued in December, 1930, by the Provident Institution for Savings and all other club checks issued by that bank from then on will use the new style of self-identifying checks.

FINANCING IS $603,834,000

New public financing in the United States during the opening month of 1930 excluding domestic and Canadian municipals aggregated approximately $603,834,000, according to compilations announced by Otto P. Schwarzschild, editor of American Underwriting Houses and Their Issues. This total compares with $690,500,000 in the same month of 1929.

The review as rendered by Mr. Schwarzschild includes stock issues as well as bonds and notes. Preferred stocks of a set par were considered at par, while all no par stocks were calculated at public offering prices. His record was compiled from advertisements of syndicate offerings, and the head of the syndicate was assumed to be the firm appearing in the leading position in the advertisement.

On the basis of this compilation J. P. Morgan & Co. appeared during the month at the head of syndicates totaling $235,055,000; Harris, Forbes & Co. ranked second in respect to issues headed with $70,500,000, and close behind them comes Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., with $69,615,000.

The results of the month in respect to total business participated in, either as head or participant, show that Harris, Forbes & Co. accounted for the largest volume with $339,500,000. The Bankers Co. of New York ranked second, appearing in a total of $308,280,000, while the National City Co., occupying third place, practically paralleled this figure by appearing in $308,088,000. The Guaranty Co. of New York was fourth appearing in a total of $278,088,000.

An analysis of the month's financing as presented shows that public utility offerings totaled $403,949,000 or slightly over two-thirds of the month's total of $603,834,000; the investment trust group follows with $65,825,000, while railroad issues stand third with $42,483,000.

COMMISSION AIDS MERGERS

Washington, Feb. 13 (INS)—The Interstate Commerce Commission has taken a forward step in its plan of consolidating the railroads of the nation by authorizing the Baltimore & Ohio to acquire stock control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh, railroad authorities agreed today.

This action indicated the commission will handle the consolidation problem by piece meal instead of en bloc as provided in legislation pending for Congress.

The decision to give the B. & O. the B. R. & P., which is likely to be followed by similar action with the respect to the Buffalo & Susquehanna, will enable the B. & O. to establish a new short line between Chicago and New York.

The B. & O. will get the railroad under a contract with the Van Sweringen's Allegheny Corporation for the purchase of 43,021 shares of preferred and 96,927 shares of common, or 84.82 per cent of the outstanding stock, at $14,263,216.

The remaining 16,976 shares of preferred and 8073 shares of common will be purchased by the B. & O. at the same net price.

Aroostook Carrier Making Recovery

Bangor & Aroostook has been making some new highs on the current movement but is still off from high of last year. When it was selling in the eighties late last summer it was heavily bought on assurances that Maine was to have the largest potato crop since 1926. This would mean big earnings for Bangor & Aroostook well into March of this year. But the slump carried the stock down as low

Car Loadings Show Gain for the Week

Loadings of revenue freight week ended February 1 totaled 898,894 cars, says American Railway Association. This was an increase of 36,273 above the immediately preceding week.

United-Carr Fastener

Stone and Webster Are in $420,000,000 Merger

THE directors of Stone & Webster, Inc., have voted to offer an exchange of shares to stockholders of the Engineers' Public Service Company on the basis of six shares of capital stock of Stone & Webster, Inc., for each 10 shares of Engineers' Public Service common, according to announcement by Stone & Webster, Inc., following a meeting of the directors.

The directors of Engineers' Public Service voted to recommend to stockholders the acceptance of the offer of Stone & Webster, Inc. At the special meeting the directors of Stone & Webster, Inc., also declared a quarterly dividend of $1 per share payable April 15 to stockholders of record March 14, 1930.

* * *

In announcing the exchange offer Edwin S. Webster, president of Stone & Webster, Inc., said: "The holders of Engineers Public Service common stock depositing their shares for exchange upon consummation of the plan will not only continue an interest in the business of Engineers Public Service Co., but also will secure a more diversified investment, because of the more numerous activities of the Stone & Webster organization. Holders of a substantial amount of Engineers Public Service common stock have already expressed their approval of the plan and their intention to deposit."

C. W. Kellogg, president of Engineers Public Service Co., expressed the opinion that the exchange offer of Stone & Webster was an attractive opportunity for Engineers stockholders to increase their earnings and diversify their investment, while still retaining a very substantial interest in their Engineers stock through the Stone & Webster stock received in exchange.

* * *

Stone & Webster, Inc., outstanding capital stock consists of 1,258,981 shares, which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and it is proposed to increase the authorized amount from 1,500,000 to 3,000,000 shares to provide for consummation of the exchange plan.

Present subsidiaries of Stone & Webster, Inc., include Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation, Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., Stone & Webster Service Corporation, Stone & Webster Associates Corporation, Stone & Webster Investing Corporation and Stone & Webster Realty Corporation. The Stone & Webster organization has been nationally identified with public utility industry for more than 40 years and its business now covers the whole field of enterprise from investigation, design and construction, to the operation and financing of otable public and private undrtakings in many parts of parts of the world.

During the past quarter of a century it has done more than $1,000,000,000 of construction work, and appraisals of plants and properties for more than 900 clients, having a total value of near $7,000,000,000, have been made. The steam and hydraulic plants it has built develop one-tenth of this country's installed central station output, supplying 20,000,000 people with electric light and power. The amount of uncompleted construction work on the books at December 31, 1929, was the largest in the history of the organization.

BOND MARKET CHANGES ARE NARROW

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Few outstanding changes developed in trading on the bond market today. Some of the foreign loans were active and now and then a domestic issue moved out of the narrow rut in response to special conditions, but the list in general varied slightly from the Tuesday close.

Sales, however, made a swing [illegible] increase and this broader activity, coupled with the firmness of the prime rails and utilities, was taken as evidence of substantial underlying support.

French Republic 7½s, which slipped off on Monday and Tuesday, recovered their declines on a 1 point rise, although they fell considerably short of duplicating their recent record high. Greek government 6s rose ½ and Italy 7s moved actively, touching 99.

Dealers report that new issues of high grade find ready reception. Little difficulty has been encountered in disposing of the local rails and prime utilities offered since the beginning of the year, although some of the secondary loans have lagged. Indications that the attitude still prevails are seen in the prompt oversubscription of the Morris & Essex [illegible] Monday and the $35,000,000 issue of Western Union 30 year gold 5s offered today at 100.

Subscription books for the latter closed soon after the opening. The listed 5s of the same company sold off a point to par, while the real estate [illegible] lost [illegible] points.

Atchison General 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 6s, Kansas City Southern first 3s, Southern Bell Telephone 5s and Lake Shore & Michigan Southern 4s, New York Central debenture 4s and Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s were miscellaneous trading favorites. Most of which made slight progress.

American Telephone convertible 4½s led the stock privilege group crossing 150 on a large turnover. Reading Coal & Ohio 6s moved up more than 2 points and both the Alleghany 5s were taken in better than average volume for small net improvement.

Other new bond offerings of the day included a $5,000,000 issue of State of West Virginia 4s and 4½s maturing between 1933 and 1950 and priced to yield 4.25 for the 4½s and 4.20 for the lower coupon obligation. The City of Rochester offered $4,165,000 in gold 4½s due 1931-60, yielding 4.10.

Providence Screw Earnings Increase

American Screw Co. of Providence reports for 1929 net income of $451,690, equal to $9.51 a share on the outstanding stock, compared with net income of $258,352, or $5.41 a share in the previous year.

Balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, showed current assets of $3,281,741 and current liabilities of $314,927, compared with current assets and current liabilities of $3,016,297 and $216,490, respectively, at the end of 1928.

At stockholders' meeting Pres. Samuel M. Nicholson stated that the outlook for 1930 is for satisfactory business despite a current recession in business generally. Expectation of officials, however, is that recession is only temporary.

Bendix Aviation Buys Corporation

Bendix Aviation Corp. has purchased Bragg-Kliesrath Corp., manufacturers of vacuum booster brake for motor vehicles. To speed output, large production orders will be manufactured at the Bendix Brake plant at South Bend, Ind., although manufacture, sales and service of the B-K brake will be continued for the present at the Long Island City factory.

Cambridge Seeks Fresh Financing

Cambridge will receive bids until February 17 for $815,000 4¼ per cent bonds of which $500,000 are City Hospital Loan and $300,000 school loan, both payable 1930 to 1944, and $15,000 street loan macadam, payable 1930 to 1934, all dated December 1, 1929. Bids for entire lot only will be considered.

Haverhill will receive bids until February 14 for $550,000 loan dated February 18 and payable October 8.

Bon Ami Gains

19th Wage Dividend Ordered for Help by Eastman

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 13—Eastman Kodak directors voted employes 19th annual wage dividend, payable July 1, representing a share in the earnings of the company. Wage dividend amounted last year to $2,204,628 for 15,841 employes and is based on amount of common stock dividends paid during preceding year. It is divided among all employes who, at beginning of the year, had been in company's employ six months or longer.

NEW HAVEN HAS GOOD FARES BUSINESS

New Haven railroad's freight traffic in January showed continuance of the recession which characterized December, although not more so than anticipated as a result of the general business letdown. The trend was quite in line with experience of other Eastern railroads. Passenger business has held relatively well.

Cars handled, both those loaded on New Haven's lines and those received from connecting lines, were off 7,315, or about 8 per cent in the four weeks ended Jan. 25 in comparison with the corresponding period last year. This would indicate considerably smaller gross earnings than the $10,594,857 reported for January, 1929, although there may be some partially offsetting accounts in larger mail and other revenues.

Comparison of net, however, may be much more favorable. [illegible] was promptly made to reduce expenses in every way and substantial economies have been effected. Furthermore, from the standpoint of operating conditions, New Haven had a favorable month in January with no excessive snowfall to cause large expense or hamper operations.

New Haven is splendidly fixed as to motive power and is receiving considerable new equipment all of which helps the maintenance situation. Surplus after charges, guarantees and preferred dividends for January is expected to compare well with the $494,677 reported after similar charges for January, 1929. In January, 1928, New Haven had a deficit of $194,576 after preferred dividends.

Beginning March 1 considerable saving in interest charges will be effected as a result of retirement of $17,000,000 5 per cent collateral gold notes out of treasury funds. New Haven has already bought in and holds some $6,000,000 par value of this loan, so that net amount outstanding is around $11,000,000. Paying off of this loan will result in some depletion of current cash position and eventually it is to be expected that financing will be undertaken to reimburse the treasury for capital expenditure and provide for another $1,000,000 maturity October 31 this year. A common stock issue is the probable vehicle when the time is right.

Allied Products' Earnings Larger

Chicago, Feb. 13—Preliminary figures of Allied Products Corp. indicate earnings of $800,000 for the year ending Dec. 31, 1929, after all charges, including depreciation, taxes, etc. This is equal to $18 per share on the Class "A" convertible stock outstanding. After payment of the $3.50 per share preferential dividend on the Class "A" stock, the balance remaining was equal to $8.33 per share on the 75,000 shares of common stock outstanding. On this latter, a dividend of 50 cents per share was paid on Jan. 1. The above earnings were at the rate of $6.40 a share on the combined Class "A" and common stock.

Current position shows assets of $1,850,000, compared with current liabilities of $288,000, which included federal taxes and dividends due Jan. 1. Cash and government securities totalled $828,000.

Essex Note Award Is Made in Salem

Other bidders were: Merchants' National Bank, Salem, 3.85 per cent plus $1.30; Gloucester National Bank, 3.895 per cent; Cape Ann National Bank, 3.97 per cent plus $1; Gloucester Safe Deposit & Trust, 4 per cent plus $1; Naumkeag Trust, 4 per cent; Sagamore Trust, 4.07 per cent; Bay State National Bank, 4.10 per cent; Beverly National Bank, 4.25 per cent plus $1.25, and Warren National Bank, Peabody, 4.25 per cent.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

APPRECIATIVE of the power of wind, Horace Frisby carried on ingenious experiments for many centuries, and finally succeeded (1801) incircling the globe in his wind-yacht, shown above. When becalmed, the intrepid airman merely blew into his own sails. Returning to his native land, many years later, he called himself "Lucky Horace," and only recently launched a movement to have monuments erected to himself at every crossroad and street intersection in America.

"No, boys—you're behind in the first half of the session. Get in there and don't fight."

This would doubtless be very gratifying to Mr. Einstein; but it's difficult to tell whether it shows a new interest in science or just the old interest in disturbance.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

You're not attractive, dear—but you're wholesome looking.

M'DEVITT IS MADE POLICE DEPUTY

Capt. James McDevitt forsakes his command of the Joy st. station tomorrow to become deputy superintendent of Boston's finest. He will succeed Thomas C. Evans who retired last year.

Capt. John J. Hanrahan, who was promoted from a lieutenancy only last October will take Capt. McDevitt's place in the West End section. Since his promotion he has been assigned to night headquarters duty with Capt. James J. Walkins.

RIDLON TRANSFERRED

Lieut. John S. Ridlon for many years attached to division 1, will be assigned to the superintendent's office in Hanrahan's place.

Born December 21, 1869, and appointed as a reserve officer to Division 1 in November, 1893, McDevitt's police career has been a notable one. In November of 1897 he was made a patrolman and assigned to the North End. Nine years later he was raised to a sergeantcy and attached to Station 3. He was transferred to Station 2 and in December, 1915, he was made a lieutenant and sent to headquarters. As a lieutenant he worked in the district attorney's office under the late Joseph Pelletier and returned to the Joy st. station in 1917.

Owing to meritorious work which brought commendation from police officials and private citizens, the policeman was appointed a captain to take charge of Station 13 in 1921. Later in August of the following year he was shifted back to the West End where he remained until his latest promotion.

LONG SERVICE

The new deputy, who will receive an increase of $500 yearly, is the father of James McDevitt, Jr., member of the flying squadron division of the department.

Lieut. Ridlon, who was third man on the civil service list, was appointed to the force in 1895 as a patrolman and was made sergeant in 1907. In 1919 he was raised to the rank of lieutenant to serve in the Hanover st. division.

Capt. Hanrahan, who joined the force in July, 1904, was appointed a sergeant in 1918. Less than 11 years later, during which he was made a lieutenant in 1925, he was raised to the rank of captain.

Mississippi Probes Payment of Hub Man

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 13—Disposition of $80,000 paid in currency by Warren Brothers of Boston to Mississippi representatives was under investigation by a House of Representatives special committee.

The money was said to have been paid by the firm in settlement of penalties for alleged violation of antitrust statutes.

DELAY IN WORK COSTLY TO L, CURLEY SAYS

Advocating bills to enable immediate improvements in the Elevated system, Mayor Curley declared before the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs that the delay is costing the road large amounts of money.

Potential riders, he said, are now using their automobiles rather than trolley cars. With the Governor sq. and the Huntington ave. situations cleared up, the road, the mayor felt, should be given a breathing spell of 10 years in which to make other improvements.

Mayor Curley said that as far as he was concerned the existing financial system would be followed in the construction of the Governor sq. underpass, unless the people in the referendum on disposition of the Elevated indicate otherwise.

CONFERENCE PROPOSED

Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the Boston Elevated trustees, suggested that a subcommittee meet the trustees, the newly created Metropolitan Transit Board and Mayor Curley with a view to bringing about an agreement on Governor sq. legislation.

Rep. Eliot Wadsworth of Boston said figures given out by the company show that while millions have been spent in improvements, the number of people served by the company is constantly falling.

Mayor Curley pointed out that Boston has relieved traffic by construction of thoroughfares costing more than $15,000,000 in 12 years. He spoke of costs in repaving streets battered by buses of the Elevated.

MAY "REPLY ON STUMP"

When asked by Sen. Charles C. Warren of Arlington, Senate chairman of the committee, whether he believed the trustees "have acted in the interests of the stockholders or of the public," the mayor remarked smilingly:

"I don't believe I'll answer that now. Maybe I will on the stump next fall."

Harriman said the Elevated already has been compelled to curtail service because it has reached the end of its rope in economies.

Rep. Luke D. Mullen of Charlestown, a member of the committee, claimed that the depreciation accounts of the company have been juggled.

Rep. Martin Hays of Brighton spoke in favor of this bill to construct a subway to Brighton and Newton from Governor sq. The cost, Mr. Hays thought, would run from $17,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Jury Is Instructed to Acquit Prisoners

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 13—The government rested its case in the Pottawatomie County liquor conspiracy trial here, and Judge Edgar S. Vaught instructed verdicts of acquittal for Bob Davis and Melvin Corbin, two of the defendants.

Judge Vaught held that the prosecution had not offered sufficient evidence to warrant conviction of Davis and Corbin, who were alleged to have played only minor roles in the conspiracy.

County Attorney Randall Pitman and Frank Fox, former sheriff, remained on trial with 13 others of the 102 persons originally indicted.

BIGGER AIRPORT BILL URGED AT HEARING

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The opening gun in the newest "Battle of Beacon Hill" was fired when the loyal boys lined up at the State House before the committee on harbors and public lands, and stated their case for the acquisition of further land in order to make the Boston Municipal Airport larger to care for present flying and future expansion.

Mayor James M. Curley, Corporation Counsel Silverman, Park Commissioner Long, Theodore G. Holcombe, manager of the aviation bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, and a traffic manager of a local flying company, were among those speaking in favor of the bills, one introduced by Mayor Curley himself as House 878, another by Senator Parkman, as Senate 109, and a third by Rep. William H. Hearn of East Boston, House 879.

All the boys spoke at great length about the necessity of enlarging the present airport area with an additional 40 acres of mudflats, which would be filled and cindered. The increase in area would give the operators of large tri-motored transport planes and heavy military ships a little larger breathing space in taking off and landing.

Elaborating his bill, Corporation Counsel Silverman explained that the city would spend $250,000 filling in the flats and extending the runways. Another $100,000 would be spent building a concrete seaplane ramp, thus bringing the airport up to date in this important branch of commercial flying.

Recorded in favor of the bill were Arthur L. Richardson, chairman of the State advisory board of aeronautics; Gardner Fisk, acting chairman, Boston municipal air board; C. Crawford Rollidge, Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Franklin Collier, aviation editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Enough arguments were presented to the committee to make it clear that the airport must not stop being developed, and that the best time to get going is right now or as soon as the winter slackens up.

Holcombe stated that he hoped to see the time when one part of the Boston airport would be used for landings and another part for takeoffs.

SOLO BATTLE ON

The battle for supremacy in soloing women students is now tied, all even. In case you haven't any idea of what we are talking about, it is the struggle between Adolph M. Backstrom, student instructor of Curtiss-Wright, and Charlie Emerson, chief pilot for Skyways.

Backstrom soloed the first woman at the Boston airport in 1928, and since then turned two more female pilots loose. Charlie Emerson came along fast when Skyways began to cater to the women students, and soon passed Adolph's record, setting up one of his own of four solos and one check-out.

Now Backstrom, with his customary nonchalance, turns two women loose in one day, one on her first solo, and the other a check-out, or one who has soloed before, and is turned loose in another type of airplane.

The two embryo pilots who were told, in that cheery voice instructors use when putting a student off on his own, to "go ahead," were Miss Edith Forbes, of Boston and France, and Miss Manila Davis, of the Curtiss sales force, and who also is hostess at the Curtiss hangar.

Miss Davis was taught to fly by Skyways, but had all her instruction in a Moth, so Backstrom, in order to give her two hours of aerial acrobatics, checked her out in a Fledgling.

In addition to these two, Backstrom soloed Mrs. Dorothy Warrick, of Flint, Mich., early in '28, the first female to fly all by herself at the airport here, and Miss Mae Slayton, of Boston.

Emerson, to list his accomplishments, turned out Miss Olivia "Keet" Mathews, on skis, the first one of her kind; Miss Eleonore Spear of Wellesley College and daughter of State Senator Spear of Portland; Miss Davis, Miss Wilcox of Radcliffe College, and Miss Betsy Kelley, who had soloed previously at her home in Pennsylvania and whom Charlie rode around with long enough so that she got the "feel" of the D. H. Moth.

Now that the boys are even the race is on again.

In addition to the two girls, Backstrom made his day complete by sending Student Stanley Boynton off on his first ride all by himself. Boynton made several landings and then grinned when the boys congratulated him.

TIMKEN IN TRI-MOTOR

When his family, the famous Timken bearing people, presented him with a Wasp-engined tri-motor Ford, H. H. Timken decided that it was time he found out how to fly one of the big "Tin Geese," so he hired Curtiss-Wright's flivver and had Chief Pilot Ralph Wickford take him around in it for an hour.

Timken made several landings, and Wickford declared that Timken, for a chap with only about 50 hours' solo, flew the ship with ease and confidence.

Thinking that it would be a good idea to start the new year right, Frank LeMan, sales manager of East Coast Aircraft, sold Charlie Payne, of Weston, a new Wright 165 horse Travel Air biplane, and also sold the new Barnes Airport Corp., of Westfield, the Travel Air dealer franchise in that territory. "Chuck" O'Connor is connected with the company up there, and they will have a new 165 Wright biplane within the next 30 days, besides ordering three other ships for the rest of the year.

Open Season for Culture

Husbands Will Be Interested

(Copyright, 1930)

A NEW HORROR in home life is advocated by Dr. Bruno Roselli, of the Vassar faculty. Speaking to 2000 clubwomen, he urges them to think less about the welfare of the world in general, and to spend more time uplifting their husbands.

Dr. Roselli, oddly enough, is a bachelor.

Men are too busy to acquire learning, he says, and it is up to their wives to educate them. The fireside is to be converted into a night school. The sports page of the evening paper is OUT. Talks by the missus on Greek architecture, Renaissance painting and Russian novels must take its place.

The season is open for culture, it appears. And unless we mistake the views of the average husband, it is also open for Dr. Roselli.

A Million Boy Scouts

There Should Be Ten Million

(Copyright, 1930)

THIS is Boy Scout Week, celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the organization in this country.

In those twenty years more than four million American boys have received the benefits of scout training. There are now 220,000 scout leaders and 600,000 boys enrolled. By the end of the year the scouts hope to have a million members.

They ought to have TEN million. Every boy of scout age should belong. Scout training makes for the best type of citizenship, is the best answer to juvenile delinquency, is the most effective way to combat the growth of the gang at its source.

How many scouts or ex-scouts are found in the ranks of bandits and gunmen and other types of criminals? You tell.

What this country needs is the boy scout, and MORE of him. That, statement holds notwithstanding the oft quoted remark of the late Vice-President Marshall about the five-cent cigar.

Make a Talkie

Leave It to Your Children

(Copyright, 1930)

IF you're a millionaire—so many of us are—have a talkie made of yourself.

It will interest your descendants.

The talkie is the modern improvement on the old family album or the ancestral crayon portrait. It will preserve you effectively for posterity.

Your great grandchildren ought to value it highly, and perhaps show it to their neighbors. They can point to it with pride as the authentic record of the founder of the family fortune. And it will probably furnish them with clean and refined amusement.

Consider also the advantages of the talkie as a bequest to those you dislike. It is far superior for that purpose to the proverbial shilling or set of cuff links. It would annoy them for generations.

Equal Rights for Women

They're Getting Them in England

(Copyright, 1930)

EVEN in staid old England women are coming into their own. They have the vote, now they are demanding equal rights with men to rob, steal and burgle—and are getting them. Out of every five crimes reported to police, a woman is prominently involved in one. At the present rate of progress they will soon be neck and neck with the so-called sterner sex.

Raids on country houses are the favorite form of woman's new activities. Shop window robberies and safeblowing are a close second. The bobbed-haired bandit that our British cousins used to read about in the States is now seen in quiet English lanes and hedgerows—a worthy successor to such eminent highwaymen as Robin Hood and Carver Doone.

Consider this also from Scotland Yard itself:

Studying the Stars

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

THE ingenuity of mathematicians and astronomers in devising methods for studying and analyzing the heavenly bodies is astounding. The weights of stars, hundreds of millions of miles distant from the earth, are determined with satisfactory accuracy. Also the velocities of stars, although very remote, may be determined in the apparently insoluble case when the star is moving in the line of sight.

Consider, for example, the case of two stars which revolve around each other. These are known as binary stars, because they come in pairs or companions.

Each moves in an ellipse about the other, which lies at one focus of the ellipse. This is due to Newton's law of gravitation, which requires one body to move about the other in an ellipse—a sort of flattened circle or oval curve.

THE problem would be comparatively simple if one of the stars was immensely heavier than the other. In that case one star would "stand still," while the lighter companion would describe an elliptical orbit about it.

In nature, however, the two companions are usually comparable in weight. Here neither star stands still; each describes an ellipse. By mathematical computation, from a study of these two ellipses, the weights of the two companions can be determined.

An ingenious and comparatively simple method has been devised for determining the velocities of stars, under the most difficult possible circumstances. When a star's distance is known, we can tell its speed across the sky.

But suppose the star is moving directly in the line of sight—namely approaching us or receding from us. How shall we determine its velocity in that case?

The spectroscope automatically analyzes the light from a star into its various constituent colors. The strip of light it throws on the screen is called a "spectrum." The shades are arranged, as in the rainbow, in the order of the primary colors; red, orange, yellow, green blue, indigo, violet.

The colors in the spectrum occur in the order of their wave-lengths, from red at one end to violet at the other. Red light is produced by the longest waves and violet light by the shortest.

It happens, fortunately, that when the light from a star is analyzed, it is found that the entire pattern of lines, shown in the spectrum, is shifted as a whole in one direction or the other. If the shift is toward the red end of the spectrum, the light emitted by the star is reaching us in a redder state than that in which it normally ought to be. Hence we infer that every wave of light is longer than normal, since red light has the longest wave length.

Consequently if the entire spectrum shifts bodily toward the red end, then we know that the star is receding from us. Likewise if the spectral pattern is shifted toward the violet end, we know that the star must be approaching us.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

BOSTON man will offer $100 for arrest and jugging of any hit-and-run driver who gets his man before joining the Canadian Northwest Mounted.

There should be second prize for the ambulance crew that drives up in time to qualify as the fanciest dressed couple.

The bump-and-scoot drivers have been winning all the elimination tournaments in the big cities for the last fifteen seasons. That's why Boston should add another cash prize for the pedestrian who discovers parking space wide enough for picnic ants to march four abreast.

A medal of Congressional disgust will go to the backseat driver who catches the most U. S. mail bags on her outstretched hand.

Honorable mention will be given to the village traffic cop who gives out the most direction with the least information.

Instead of slipping subpoenas to holiday drivers Mike Crowley's motorcycle police will give forth diplomas and allow the driver's wife to make the graduating address.

The chauffeur who gets sideswiped on a grade crossing will not only be voted the most popular member of the congregation but he will also retain the moving picture rights.

There will be cash bonus for the best operatic score written on a horn. And the driver who still uses 1929 license plates has a chance to claim the winning number in the government lottery.

It is the aim of Boston and surrounding municipalities to bring back the good old driving days of Ben Hur and the car of Juggernaut. Pedestrianism is almost effeminate nowadays. How would you have liked to have been a jaystepper in Babylon or Athens? If you managed to dodge a chariot the driver leaned out and smacked you down with a meat-axe.

Walking is a series of muscular contortions and reflex leaping with some spasmodic skidding to balance the diet. Instead of giving prizes for wallop-and-scamper drivers the money should go to the pedestrian who can cross the street without having his coattails hamburgered by the low-swinging taxicab which is coming to carry you home.

All that an experienced curbhopper requires is a running start and a fair field. We guarantee that no taxicab can beat us in a game of squat tag becuse our traffic experience is so talented that we could gallop through all the machinery in a steam laundry without losing a button.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

THE various subtle flavors of wines depend partly on the kinds of grapes employed, but much more on the fact that each vineyard has its own peculiar mixture of fermenting organisms, its own stud, so to speak, whose combined excreta have a distinctive buoquet.

H. G. Wells

From the physiolgoical point of view yeasts are very remarkable because they can live in the absence of oxygen. Nearly all other organisms have to breathe; they can no more live without air than a fire can burn without air.

But yeasts, and various other humbly organized plants, have different devices. True, if a yeast cell is supplied with oxygen it will breathe, taking in the oxygen and giving out carbon dioxide just as we do. But if it is denied an oxygen supply it falls back on another device; it turns sugar into alcohol and carbon dioxide, a process which yields energy just as combustion does.

It is because of this peculiar method of avoiding suffocation that yeasts are important to man. Buried in the dough of his bread they lighten it and make it easily digestible; drowned in flat fruit juice, they change it to sparkling wine.

BOOK TWO
The Forms of Life
CHAPTER FIVE
Vegetable Life

1. Stems, Leaves and Roots

AND now we come to a vast group of living things laid out for the most part upon a common plan—the plant world; its importance in our daily consciousness is second only to that of our own phylum of vertebrated animals. Its structural conception is still an aggregation of cells; it displays the phenomena of sexual reproduction, but in nearly everything else it is different.

A plant—our crude description will apply to any plant that bears flowers—consists of three essential parts; the stems, more or less rigid and holding the plant in shape and at the same time guiding sap from place to place, a system of green leaves spread like a net to catch as much sunlight as possible, and system roots branching eagerly in the soil, anchoring the plant and sucking up moisture and other substances upon which it thrives.

The life of a plant is so different from that of an animal, different even in its chemical basis, that we shall have to start again nearly from the beginning. We shall find in a simple physical fact a clue that explains and clarifies all the mysteries of vegetable life.

A plant subsists on water, carbon dioxide and various mineral salts. All have extremely simple and elementary molecules, and can under no circumstances be burnt. They contain no bottled energy, as the food of an animal does.

A plant, at night, consumes oxygen and gives out carbon dioxide. It breathes just as an animal does. Its leaves are covered with minute, barely visible pores, as it were, and through these pores the gases diffuse in and out.

The plant, then, is breathing, and therefore it must be burning something as fuel—but what is it burning? There is nothing in the substances absorbed by its roots that could be burnt.

In the daylight, or even in the presence of an electric light, results are very different. Things are just the other way round, for now the plant is absorbing carbon dioxide and giving off oxygen.

And in this fact lies the whole secret of the apparently foodless plant existence, for the plant makes its food in its own tissues—makes it out of carbon dioxide from the air and water, and a few simple salts from the soil. That is a thing entirely beyond the power of any animal.

The leaves of a plant are green because the tissues contain a characteristic green pigment called chlorophyll. Chlorophyll is a unique substance as far as the chemistry of animals and plants is concerned, for when it is present in a living cell that cell can absorb and make use of the radiant energy contained in light itself. That, in a word, is the secret of the plant.

It can drink the pure energy of sunlight, and it can use that energy to build out of the elementary substances that it absorbs the higher complex molecules of which its tissues consist.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE success of a psychoanalyst as of an M. D., depends largely on his ability to start a woman talking about herself, and then to sit and listen until she gets the last complex or complaint out of her system.

Lots of good physicians and psychiatrists have bought imported cars and duplex apartments on the strength of this bit of knowledge of feminine psychology. And, heaven knows, they have EARNED them!

A woman simply MUST have somebody to whom she can talk about herself! There is no mental medicine like telling somebody how you suffer! It is far more soothing than a nerve tonic, and far more stimulating than radium, gland pills or blood transfusion!

Any woman who can afford both a doctor and a psychoanalyst should not have to worry about her blood pressure or her hemoglobins. She should be perfectly happy, free from inhibitions and filled with sweetness and light.

Any husband who can afford to pay these specialists to listen to his wife's symptoms and soul problems by the hour, should have a peaceful home life, a good golf stroke and a free mind for his business.

Many a long-suffering man's health and nerves have been restored simply by sending his wife to a psychoanalyst for treatment. A good psychoanalyst is pretty expensive; but it's WORTH fifteen or twenty or fifty dollars an hour to a married woman, to have somebody LISTEN to her, and actually urge her to "tell him more!"

That is probably why there always comes a stage in the treatment when a young psychoanalyst has to warn his feminine patient not to fall in love with him. Pity is akin of love, and self-pity is love's first cousin!

As a repository for a woman's symptoms and sufferings, the average husband is less than nothing. He is a wet blanket. He has no SOUL! From the day he marries, a man's spiritual nature begins to bury itself under his business worries, his digestion, his neuritis or his golf complex.

The minute you begin telling him how your head or your heart or your conscience is hurting you, he runs for the aspirin or the smelling salts. Or else he suddenly recollects a business appointment and dashes out to the club. Or calls up the doctor! The sly dog!

A man simply cannot bear seeing his wife "suffer" all over the living-room furniture, when he wants to read his newspaper or figure up his accounts or get something on the radio.

But a woman always has SOMETHING the matter with her—either germs or nerves, or too much weight, or a soul problem. She is always suffering from "Symptomania."

A man can endure a lot of mental suffering in silence, but a woman must suffer out LOUD! And the better-looking and more sympathetic the specialist to whom she suffers out loud, the greater relief it gives her.

After all, whatever a psychoanalyst or a nerve specialist may charge it's a lot cheaper than paying alimony! And, he earns it!

Opium Rules League

Geneva Conference Did Nothing to Stop Drug Traffic

IF the American people had any illusions about the sincerity of the League of Nations' efforts to abolish the opium traffic, those illusions are now gone forever. Last week at the Geneva opium conference, the league unmasked itself and showed the glaring inconsistency between its PRETENSE and its PURPOSES.

The League of Nations, we have been told a million times in the last 10 years, exists to make this world a paradise. It exists to banish war forever. To abolish the white slave traffic, to gentle the tigers of the earth, to give heart to all the little woolly lambs, to dispense justice everywhere to the weak and to the strong, the savage and the uncivilized, the conquerors and the conquered.

It has done none of these things. It was never intended by its creators to be THAT kind of league. It was created to maintain the injustices and inequalities of the so-called peace treaty signed at Versailles in 1919. That treaty sowed the seeds of war and hatred in every corner of the earth. It tore nations to pieces, set up artificial governments, made colonies of proud native races and invented the League of Nations to guard and preserve these mad iniquities.

Were the Americans so foolish as to believe that such a league sincerely wishes to put an end forever to the traffic in narcotics? If they were, they need believe it no longer. Let them consider what the League of Nations' advisory committee on the opium traffic did at Geneva.

The members of that committee met and talked for three weeks. Then they retired to a conference chamber and drew up a report. It is a high-sounding set of recommendations for the control of the international traffic in narcotics. Read it and you come across many fine phrases, many regulations for estimating the amount of narcotics required by each nation, definite suggestions for the regulations of the manufacture of narcotics.

You read on and on and on and you almost decide that the league is sincere. Then you look for something in the report about limiting the PRODUCTION of opium. You find nothing, not a word about killing the opium traffic at the source—the only place where it CAN be killed.

Finally you discover that the delegates to this conference had their hands tied before they left their homes. The assembly of the league gave them NO AUTHORITY TO SUBMIT PLANS FOR THE CONTROL OF PRODUCTION. The league said to the conference: "You may discuss ways and means of choking traffic, but you MUST NOT talk about cutting down production in the fields and factories of the opium bloc. Talk all you want, but be careful not to DO anything!"

Well the conference has obeyed its instructions. The League of Nations has remained true to the opium bloc. It has kept faith with its members who produce opium and debauch the world for the sake of filthy profits. It has spoken fair words and approved foul deeds—and yet there are human beings of such blindness or effrontery that they ask the American people to join such a league as THAT!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—The zero hour for show people is when, especially after an extended run, the closing notice goes up on the back stage bulletin board. A theatrical company, despite its flurry of petty jealousies, becomes a closely knitted family.

For stars and principals it is economically only a brief vacation but for the great majority it means the weary rounds of the agencies and hunt for jobs. Sentimentally it is a heart wrench for all and there is no person so sentimental as the hardened trouper.

Their illusive world of spotlights, music, laughter and suppressed excitement crumbles over night and all must go separate ways. Life again becomes a stark reality—a plunge into genuine distress. Players, stage hands, electricians and even doormen are effected.

With it all no class of people are so courageous in misfortune. I have heard many in other walks of life—and turned on the tears myself—wail over the sudden stoppage of income but I have yet to hear a performer whine when he faces the tedium of being "at liberty."

The most improvident of all, they are cheeriest when there is little about which to be cheerful. Indeed, it is the custom on closing nights to clown the show. Audiences are frequently attracted on such occasions just to see what spontaneous foolery takes place.

One of the gaudy fables is the reputed haughtiness of stage stars toward their lesser brothers and sisters. Some of the closest attachments in the theater are among stars and principals and those in the chorus or other minor roles in the same company.

I was in at the death of a recent closing. After the curtain fell, all struggled up from dressing rooms in street clothes. The star, a truly great lady of exotic beauty, moved among them with effortless grace, shaking hands with the men and kissing the women. As she rushed to her car, her eyes shone with tears.

I waited on a Madison ave. corner today with a gentleman who was to meet his wife. Sighting her, he observed: "See that peculiar gleam in her eyes. She is going to rush up and adjust my tie." And she did.

On 125th st., in Harlem a little radio shop sells electric belts and has quite a lively trade. They are sold mostly to young Negro sheiks who believe they give a certain touch of personal magnetism.

Incidentally, there were in America, 25 years ago more than 7 factories turning out electric belts and there are three men who became millionaires through their exploitation. One now lives in solemn grandeur on upper 5th ave.

Sinclair Lewis, who does not tarry long in one place, is said to be considering a stay in India for a proposed novel. His most recent was written in Vermont. Among places he selected to turn out best sellers were Kansas City, London, Paris, Berlin and the West Indies.
